U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

JAY COOKE.

Subscription Agent, Philadelphia.

SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE RECEIVED BY THE

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

PLEASE CALL AND EXAMINE, OR SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

Putnam Clothes Wringer.

The ONLY reliable self-Adjusting Wringer.

The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb-screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second.

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers,

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zine will not oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers. It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours.

Poetry.

HEAVEN.

Beyond these chilling winds and gloomy skies
Beyond death's cloudy portal—
There is a land where beauty never dies,
And love becomes immortal.

A land whose light is never dimmed by shade
Whose fields are ever vernal,
Where nothing beautiful can ever fade,
But bloom for aye, eternal.

We may not know how sweet its balmy air,
How bright and fair its flowers;
We may not hear the songs that echo there,
Through those enchanted bowers

The city's shining towers we may not see,
With our dim, earthly vision;
For death, the silent warder, keeps the key
That opes the gates elysian.

But sometimes, when adown the Western sky
The fiery sunset lingers.
Its golden gates swing inward noislessly,
Unlocked by silent fingers.

And while they stand a moment half ajar,
Gleams from the inner glory,
Stream brightly through the azure vault afar,
And half reveal the story.

Oh land unknown! Oh land of love divine!
Father all wise, eternal
Guide, guide these wand'ring way-worn feet of mine,
Into these pastures vernal.

Select Miscellany.

PLOTS AND COUNTERPLOTS.

"Heigho, I am thankful haying time comes only once a year, and I shall be still more thankful when it is well over, for I am sick to death of this hurrying and driving from early morn till night, in order to get the work done. No time to draw a long breath even. They talk of a farmer's life being the most happy and independent of any. It may so for the men—though I doubt it—but I am positive it makes absolute slaves of the female part of the household, and I am constitutionally opposed to slavery in any form;" and I set down my smoothing iron on its little tripod and brushed back my hair from my heated forehead, for it was a warm morning in July and I was busy at the ironing table, clear starching and doing up the fine things. My mother was sitting by the window picking over berries for a roly poly pudding for dinner. Aunt Rachel Wentworth, mother's maiden sister, was standing by the cooking stove, superintending the making of milk porridge, to be sent with the men's luncheon, into the haying field for she esteemed it a far more strengthening and wholesome beverage than beer or coffee; while from the sink room beyond came the rattle of pans and pails, where Nancy, the hired help, was washing up the milk things. Through the open window I could see a row of white sleeved mowers, busy at their task—for the morning was yet young; my father leading the van, as hale and vigorous at sixty-five as most men a score or two of years younger. The sunbeams glinted back from the bright steel, as they swung their long scythes through the heavy swaths of clover and herdsgrass. The delicious scent of new made hay, the drowsy hum of honey bees, and the joyous notes of a whole choir of feathered songsters—who were flitting in and out among the boughs of the old apple trees—came borne on the cooling breeze that just stopped to part the green leaves with its invisible fingers, giving a glimpse of the fruit, nestling beneath—ere it stole softly in at the window, filling the great old-fashioned kitchen with music and fragrance. But I was tired and heated with my work and a little irritable withal, so that the pleasant sights and sounds failed of their usual soothing effect.

'I think, my daughter,' said my mother, in her mild, pleasant way, in answer to my petulant speech, you must have forgotten the lesson taught by the apostle, in the chapter your father read this morning, 'I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content.'

'I don't think St Paul had ever worked on a farm in haying time when he said that, mama,' I replied with a smile in answer to her gentle rebuke.

'Grace Fletcher Gordon, I am suprised at you,' said my aunt Rachel. My aunt was very fond of giving my whole baptismal patronymic probably because she bestowed it herself, though brother Harry always persisted that it was a misnomer, for there was nothing—he declared—either graceful or gracious about me but the name itself; but brothers, you know, are not always the best judges. 'I am surprised,' she repeated, giving the porridge a vigorous stir by way of emphasizing her remarks, 'a girl brought up as you have been and with the privileges you enjoy, grumbling because there is a little extra work to do at this season, and finding fault with Providence that has ordered your station in life. Think of the poor slaves at the South. Think of the English operatives'—

'Think of the inhabitants of Borioboola Gha,' I interrupted rather tartly, for aunt Rachel's reproofs were usually somewhat of the stinging nettle order. 'I wasn't finding fault with Providence, never thought of the thing. I am not insensible to the blessing and privileges I enjoy, and I trust not altogether ungrateful for them. I only took the liberty to scold a little because father has chosen to employ so many hands to help with the haying this season that it is all we can do, to do the work and wait upon them, leaving no time for anything else, not even for thinking. It is not like father to hurry so about his work. I never knew him to be so unreasonable before.'

'It won't be for long, dear,' said my mother, 'your father's very anxious to finish up the haying this week, for next week he is obliged to attend Court as juryman, and he always dislikes to leave an unfinished job behind him when he goes from home. You will have leisure enough after this, for as you are expecting your cousin Ruth Bowen next week I shall keep Nancy while she stays in order that you may have all the time you want, to enjoy yourself with her.'

'Oh thank you, mamma! How nice that will be!' I said with almost childish delight. 'What pleasant times we shall have, for Philip and Harry will be at leisure, too, and Frederic Lawrence is coming home the last of the week, so there will be no lack of beaux for our riding and sailing excursions, and do you know I have such a splendid idea in my head, don't tell on me Aunt Rachel, and mamma I can trust to your discretion. I am almost sure Fred and Ruth will take a liking to each other. I don't see how they can avoid it, and I shall do all I can to bring it about. Would it not be a capital match? Ruth is the dearest girl in the world, and I am sure Fred's equal couldn't be found anywhere.'

'Why, Grace Fletcher,' said aunt Rachel, 'are you turning match maker? better leave that to aunt Judy Collins, she won't thank you for taking her trade out of her hands.'

'Oh no! don't mean to be guilty of anything more than a little innocent manœvreing just to show them off to each other in the most favorable light, you know.'

'But are you sure,' said my mother, 'that neither of the parties has any previous engagement that might interfere with your plans in their behalf! It would place you in rather an awkward situation in that case.'

'Quite sure mother,' I replied. Ruth would certainly have told me if she had formed any engagement, and I am confident Fred is heart whole, for though he is such a favorite with the ladies I never knew, or heard of his paying particular attention to any one.' I thought there was rather an incredulous smile on mother's lip, but she said nothing. I have no doubt,' I added, 'that fate meant them for each other, and they will discover it as soon as they become acquainted.'

'Fiddlestick;' said aunt Rachel 'fate has nothing to do in the matter. You girls have your heads so full of lovers and matrimony that there is room for nothing else. You think marriage the be all and the end all of a woman's existence.'

'Oh aunty! what a libel! I for one believe nothing of the kind and to prove it I mean to follow your example and remain single for life. But you can't expect all women to be such heroines, and as Ruth will probably marry some time, and I am anxious that she should have a good husband.'

'Well,' said aunt Rachel, 'I advise you to have nothing to do with manœvreing; you are not calculated for it; and in this case, I think it would be labor thrown away. I've seen a good many made matches in my day, and never knew one turn out very happily yet; and as for your remaining single for life, there's somebody lives not a thousand miles from here, who will be very much disappointed, I'm thinking, if you keep to that resolution'

'What ever can you mean, aunty?' and I paused in giving the finishing touches to the plaits of glossy linen, and stood with iron suspended in my hand and my eyes opened wide with wonder at at the remark, for I was innocent of having a lover, but aunt Rachel only shook her head and pursed up her mouth with a knowing look as though she might say a good deal if she would, but didn't choose to, and I turned to my task no wiser than before. But a few moments later as I stepped into the porch for something I wanted, I heard mother say to her, 'Don't put such things into the child's head, Rachel. I don't think she ever thought of a lover in her own case. She is too young to marry yet, and I am selfish enough to wish that she may remain heart free for a long time to come. It will go hard parting with an only daughter.'

We were assembled in the family sitting room after the day's toil was over enjoying the coolness of the short summer evening: mother and aunt Rachel busy with their knittings and father and brother Philip occupied with their news papers, and myself, too tired or too indolent for employment, idly twining the tendrils of the woodbine that draperied the open window where I sat, around my fingers, when Harry, who had been up to the corner since tea-time, entered with a letter in his hand.

'Here's something for you, Gracy,' he said, as he held it up between his thumb and fore finger for inspection. Gilt edged and embossed envelope, the seal two doves, billing and cooing, and perfumery enough about it to set up a retail dealer in that article. Who of your correspondents sends you such a superfine affair as this, sis?'

'I don't know, indeed' I replied, as I took it from his hand, 'the hand writing is not familiar,' I added, as I glanced at the delicate superscription.

I broke the seal with some curiosity.

'Oh dear!' I ejaculated as I finished reading and threw it down, 'It is too bad.'

'What is it?' asked two or three voices in a breath.

'Why the letter is from Fanny Hale, and she writes that she is coming next week to make us a long visit. How provoking!'

'Why so?' said Philip, "why should you object to a visit from your cousin?'

'Because I never liked Fanny or Fannie as she writes her name. She was a very disagreeable girl when I knew her, and unless she has changed very much in the four years since I have seen her I am sure I shall not be able to endure her, besides cousin Ruth whom I do love dearly, is coming next week and I had promised myself so much pleasure in her society, and now Fanny's coming will spoil it all. Her visit would have been unwelcome at any time, but just now it is extremely annoying.'

'My dear child, what strong terms you use,' said my mother reprovingly.

'Can't help it, mama, I must speak as I feel.'

'But you should try to feel differently from this.'

'If you don't accord Fannie, more gracious reception than you have given her letter,' laughed Philip, 'she will not be likely to repeat her visit.'

'Let her come,' said Harry, 'the more the merrier. I prophecy we shall have fine times. Fannie's city graces will be a good contrast to Ruth's quiet, lady like manners and your rustic simplicity.'

'Rustic simplicity, indeed, Master Hal; I hope you will get enough of city airs before Fannie's visit is over, to value simplicty at its true worth.'

'What's the matter, Gracy?' said my father, rousing himself from his newspaper to take part in the discussion. 'Seems to me it's a new thing for my little girl to object to company, isn't it?'

'Yes, father, but in this case the company is not agreeable. Fannie is no favorite of mine you know.'

'Oh, I remember, you thought she didn't treat you well when you visited her some years ago. Well, you were both children then and she may have changed for the better since that time.'

'It is to be hoped so,' I answered, rather drily, 'there was certainly great room for improvement.'

'I trust at least,' he said, 'that you will not let your annoyance at her untimely visit lead you to treat her otherwise than with politeness and consideration due to a guest and a relative.'

'I will do my best, father, on the principal that what can't be cured must be endured.'

'I would rather my daughter should act from a higher principle than that of mere expediency,' said my mother gently.

'Thank you mamma, for reminding me that the motive was an unworthy one,' I said coloring a little at the mild reproof conveyed in her words. 'I will remember the golden rule, 'to do as I would be done by' and endeavor to treat Fannie with all kindness and courtesy, simply because it is my duty.' My mother's smile rewarded me.

'Are you not afraid Fannie's coming will interfere with the plans you have formed about Fedrick and Ruth?' inquired aunt Rachel slily, in a low tone.

'I suppose there is some danger,' I replied laughing, 'though I had not thought of it till you spoke; but I don't anticipate much danger to Ruth, unless you enter the list as her rival, aunty. Fredric admires you very much now, and when you really exert yourself to be attractive we younger ones stand but a slim chance.'

'You are a saucy girl,' said my aunt laughing and bridling, but evidently not displeased with the compliment, which was not undeserved, for though close up to forty there was not as yet, a single silver thread in her dark hair, and her eye was as bright and her step as elastic as at sixteen.

'What's that about plans?' said Harry, who had overheard a part of the remarks, 'tell me Gracy, you know I am excellent at planning.'

Shan't do it, Hal, this private, and you are not discrete enough to be trusted with important secreter.'

But now father laid aside his paper and opened the great family Bible on the stand. Work and conversation were at once suspended. A chapter was read a fervent prayer offered, and the singing of a hymn, in which every voice joined, closed the days devotions.

'Any way' I said to myself, as I lay thinking the matter over after I had retired for the night, 'I shall have Ruth's company for a day or two at least before Fannie arrives, and as she will share my room nights, for we will give Fannie the spare chamber, why, it won't be so bad after all, and I think I can manage to be pleasant to Fannie, even if she is as disagreeable as she used to be.'

Mr. Hale the father of Fannie, was a cousin of my father He resided in the city and had formerly been very fond of bringing his family during the summer months to visit their country cousins.—Fannie especially, when a child, seldom failed of spending a part of the summer at our house She was a selfish quick tempered little miss, with a high sense of her own importance, and her visits were anything but agreeable to me. I had never returned any of them until when I was between thirteen and fourteen years old, at Mr. Hale's earnest request my parents consented that I should spend a few weeks at his city home. I went anticipating a great deal of pleasure from my visit, but was soon doomed to be sadly disappointed. Mr. Hale was kind to me, but his wife was a worldly, fashionable woman, little disposed to trouble herself about 'an awkward country girl,' as I heard her one day style me. Fannie was a year or two older than I and had just commenced going into society, and she found the incumbrance of a country cousin very burdensome. If she made calls or received company, I was sure to commit some mistake for which I received a severe reprimand as soon as we were alone. When we walked I could not keep step for I found it impossible to moderate my quick eager step to her mincing pace. I had a special proclivity for getting on the wrong side of the street, and my sun shade was oftener carried swinging in my hand or used as a walking stick than elevated at the precise angle which Fannie decided to be genteel. Then I had a habit of stopping and looking earnestly at any thing which attracted my attention, and I would stand and gaze with all my snow and my eyes at those glorious pictures with their grand views of lake and mountain scenery, their gorgeous sunsets and rosy sunrises, that graced the windows of some artists studio. Now all these habits were pronounced extremely vulgar by Fannie, and excited her immeasurable disgust, and I was scolded and lectured by her until I took no comfort of my life. The youngest child and the only daughter of parrents I had been petted, indulged, and perhaps a little spoiled by the whole family. Surrounded from infancy with an atmosphere of love and tenderness, I could not breathe freely in any other and I grew wretchedly homesick and unhappy in my new situation. I had become so sensitive from Fannie's continued ridicule that at last I declined going with her at all and either went alone, at the risk of losing myself, or staid in the house all day and moped in my chamber. One morning excited by overhearing some disparaging remark about myself, pass between Fannie and her mother, I started out with the vague intention, I believe of walking the whole way to Beechwood, but fortunately before I had gone the length of the street, I met with one of our old neighbors who was in to market. I hailed him with joy and he agreed to call in the course of an hour or two and carry me out home with him. I went back, packed my trunk without saying a word to any one and waited impatiently until Mr. Mason drove up to the door in his market wagon. Then I stepped into the parlor, announced my intended departure to Mrs. Hale and left without further ceremony. I had visited the city repeatedly in the long years that had elapsed since that time but had never troubled cousin Hale's family with my presence nor had any of them, with the exception of Mr. Hale himself, visited Beechwood in that time. What had set Fannie out to renew the acquaintance at this time I could not imagine.

The haying was finished up, the hired hands diminished, father had left for H——— to attend court, and we waited patiently for our expected guests.

Cousin Ruth arrived in due season and was warmly welcomed by the whole family for she was a great favorite with us all. Ruth was not a beauty, but she had a very attractive face, pretty and piquant, and the light in her large brown eyes shown from a warm, loving heart. We had not met before for more than a year, and of course had any quantity of girlish confidences to communicate to each other.

'How happens it,' inquired Ruth, as we sat together by our chamber window the second night of her arrival, and I had been telling her about Frederic Lawrence, 'how happens it that I have never met with this paragon of yours while visiting you? you say he is a neighbor to you?'

'Yes, he resides when at home in the white house on the hill yonder, scarce half a mile from here; but he has been at college the last four years and only home at vacations. He graduated last fall and is now studying medicine in B———, but he will be at home in a few days and you will have a chance to judge whether I have said too much in his favor.'

'He seems from your account to be a very fine fellow,' said Ruth.

'He is more than that, Ruth, he is a Christian gentleman, and that, I take it is the highest character you can give a man. You should witness his devotion to his widowded mother, thoughtful tenderness toward his invalid sister, and you would esteem him highly as I do.'

'Seems to me' said Ruth smiling, your enthusiastic appreciation of the gentlemans good qualities, speaks warmer sentiments than mere friendship. Confess now is he not an admirer of yours?'

'An admirer indeed! What an idea!—Fred has always been like a brother to me. I should almost as soon think of Phil or Harry as a lover. Why, I've known him all my life.

'I see nothing in that fact to prevent your regarding him with something more than sisterly interest.

'Well, I assure you; neither Frederic nor myself ever thought of anything warmer than a fraternal regard for each other. One dont often fall in love with a person one has known from childhood There would be no romance in that, nothing left for the imagination. Fred is some half dozen years my senior and constituted himself my champion and protector when I was a wee slip of a girl He has drawn me to school on his sled a hundred times in the winter, brought me berries in summer and nuts in autumn, and as we grew older escorted me to apple bees, singing schools and so forth. In short weve always been the best of friends, and nothing more. I did not give Ruth a hint of the wishes and plans I had formed with Fred and herself I knew that the policy was not to let either suspect my designs.

Fannie came next day, she had improved in appearance since I saw her last, but I could not help suspecting the softness and amibility that marked her manners to be only surface deep. She was very pretty, wit a pink and white doll-baby face, and a profusion of light brown hair that fell in curls almost to her waist.

'Would Fred be captivated by her beauty? I asked myself rather uneasily at first, but a glance at Ruths bright, expressive face reassured me. Fannie as I soon discovered, was excessively sentimental. She had literally been brought up on fashion and romance and the diet had not proved a wholesome one. What little good sense she originally possessed had been pretty much spoild by her unfortunate training. She was sadly addicted to novel reading, and I found from her conversation that the last perfectly fascinating novelet, she had perused, had been of a rural character, which accounted for her sudden penchant for the country.

The next morning after her arrival, just as Ruth and I were preparing the visit the poultry yard, Fannie came down from her chamber, dressed to go out. She had certainly achieved a most extraordinary toilet for a morning walk in the country. A white muslin dress; a blue sash around the belly, a lace scarf, a straw hat with blue ribbons, and the most delicate of French gaiters on her little feet. I was taken too much by surprise to make any remark on her appearance, but aunt Rachel broke out with, 'In the name of common sense, child, where are you going in that rig?'

'Out for a walk said Fannie, with a simper. The morning air is so vigorating, I intend making a complete country girl of myself while at Beechwood.'

'You will have to go to work in a different way to do it,' said aunt Rachel. 'Why a child six years old would know better than to go out in such a suit with a heavy dew on the ground. Your feet will be wet as a sop and your dress dragged half way to the knees, before you have gone twenty rods. Go back and put on some thick soled shoes and a calico wrapper, if you own such articles, before you think of venturing out of doors, and then you had better postpone your walk till the sun has dried up the dew; and in the meantime you can go with Ruth and Grace to feed the poultry.'

Fannie hesitated and pouted, at this well-meant advice. I suppose some confused ideas were running in her head about the romance of inhaling 'the balmy breath of incense laden morn' amid the fields and groves, and brushing the dew from the wild flowers with her light foot steps. Now this 'brushing the dew reads very poetically, and it may do well enough for the booted and be-pantalooned part of creation, but for the wearers of crinoline it is decidedly a disagreeable operation; also destructive of clothing, and should never be indulged in anything short of a Bloomer costume I warrant me, those poets who have written most enthusiastically on the subject took care not to take their own morning walk until the whole world was thoroughly aired. As Thomson expatiated on the beauties of early rising while himself lounging in bed till mid-day, the lazy varlet! But this is a digression. Fannie would have persisted in her intention, had not—mother the gentle peace maker of the family—succeeded with a few soothing words in clearing her clouded face and inducing her to defer her walk till the morning was further advanced; accordingly she changed her dress, and then accompanied Ruth and me to the poultry yard. Brother Phil was a decided fowl fancier, and had got together a collection of feathered pipeds, that might have rivalled the 'Happy Family.' As we passed into the yard we were at once surrounded by its hungry occupants Turkeys gobbled, geese hissed, ducks quacked, Shanghais, Dorkings, Black Spanish, and Bantam hens clucked and cackled around our feet, while a whole colony of pigeons coo'd and fluttered about our heads and shoulders. Ruth threw the grain among them by handfuls, laughing and clapping her little hands at their queer anties and caressing the doves and chickens with an intense enjoyment of the whole scene. But Fannie was less pleasantly entertained, a huge gobbler, the autocrat of the premises, took offence at the color of the small crimson shawl she had thrown over her shoulders, and attacking her, succeeded, in spite of my interference, in driving her screaming from the yard, which she could never be induced to enter again.

A Wicked Joke.

Some few years since some roguish boys persuaded 'Joe' to attend a Sunday School. Joe was an overgrown, half witted, profane lad and the boys anticipated considerable fun out of him.

Joe was duly ushered in, and placed on a settee in front of the one on which his friends were seated, and the recitation commenced. The teacher first questioned the class on their regular lesson and then turned to Joe.

'My friend,' said the teacher, 'who made the world we inhabit?'

'Eh?' said Joe, turning up his eyes like an expiring calf.

'Who made the world we inhabit?'

Just as he was probably about to give an answer one of the boys seated behind inserted a pin in to his pants about nine inches below the ornamental button of his coat.

'God Almighty!' answered Joe, in an elevated tone, at the same time rising from his seat.

'That is correct,' replied the teacher; 'but it is not necessary that you should rise in answering. A sitting posture is just as well.'

Joe was again seated and the catechism proceeded.

'Who died to save the w[illegible]

'The pin' was again inserted, and Joe replied, 'Jesus Christ!' in a still louder voice, rising as before, from his seat.

'That is also correct, but do not manifest so much feeling, do be more composed and reserved in you manner,' said the teacher, in an expostulating tone.

'What will be the final doom of all wicked men?' was the subject now up for consideration; and as the pin was again stuck in, Joe thundered out, with an increased elevation of his body, 'Hell and damnation!'

My young friend,' said the instructor, 'you give the true answers to all these questions, but we wish you would be more mild in your words. Do endeavor, if you can, to restrain enthusiasm, and give a less extended scope to your feelings.

Oh! Nobody but a Poor Printer."

Such was the reply we heard made lately by a lady in answer to question who a certain individual was. 'Nobody but a poor printer.' Humph—the U. S. Senate has chosen a printer for Secretary, a printer for sergeant at arms, while a printer occupies the Vice President's chair. In the House a printer has been elected clerk, a printer postmaster, and on the first Monday of December, 1863, the House of Representatives chose a printer as their speaker. Of fourteen gentlemen who have been mayors of Washington, six were printers, namely: Rapine, Gales, Seaton, Weighman, Force and Towers. We could fill column after column of our paper with like facts. 'Nobody but a poor printer.' The person making such a remark is doing a very foolish thing. Benjamin Franklin was also a printer. Is there any name, except one, more revered in the hearts of the Americans than his? He was a printer's devil, a poor boy, but rose to a grandeur that was and is unsurpassable. God puts his own stamp upon men, and it is a complaint against your Creator to revile even the lowest of his creation. The heart of a printer is made of the same material as that of a pampered child of fortune originally, circumstances, education, association and influences may change them both. Where in the world will you find a more liberal, charitable, generous, big hearted set of men than the printers are as a whole? Always ready to do a good deed, scorning an evil one, cheerfully aiding distress or poverty, never wantonly or knowingly injuring any person or the feelings of any one. We have reference to practical printers particularly; not to a set that make a half way attempt to learn 'the trade' and are only half men all their lives. This kind we will concede to be 'poor printers,' poor in every sense of the word. It is not of such we ask a judgment to be formed, but of your genuine, clear headed, persevering practical printers, who know their business and are proud of it. It is such men that fill high stations in the land, that occupy places of great responsibility, who are trusted by the people before all others. Surely such men are not very poor.

Letters to "Old Buck" Unanswered.

Among the rebel Jacob Thompson's letters found in his house when it was burned in Mississippi, was one from Howell Cobb, and to that letter was a postscript, as follows:

'P. S.—I wrote a long letter to Old Buck, but he has never answered it. I suppose he was not willing to correspond with rebels and traitors.'

That 'P. S.' reminds us of another letter to 'Old Buck' that remains unanswered, which is well authenticated, but for private reasons we shall not give the name of the writer, although we have no reason to suppose he cares a straw about its concealment.

Col. L—— was a warm supporter of Buchanan on his nomination and election to the presidency. Old Buck volunteered a letter of thanks to Col. L. before the election, and assured the colonel that whenever opportunity offered, he would deem it a pleasure to gratify any wish the colonel might have, that was within his (Buchanan's) power. The colonel replied that he had no political ambition.

During Buchanan's term the health of Col. L.'s wife failed, and he wrote to 'Old Buck,' asking for his wife's sake to be appointed to a moderate consulship in a warm climate. But old Buck did not answer the letter.

On the approach of the end of Buchanan's term, and when renomination was dazzling—or blinding-Old Pub. Func's eyes, he wrote to Colonel L., soliciting again his aid.

The colonel's answer was short. He referred to Buchanan's first letter, and to his (the colonel's) unanswered letter in which in behalf of a dying wife, he asked the boon of a small office, and he concluded thus:

'Since that time, my wife has gone to heaven, and you may go to h—l.'

A Chapter of Mistakes.

We received a letter several days ago from a gentleman, inclosing an announcement of his marriage, and stating that he also enclosed the sum of seventy-five cents to pay for it. The letter did not inclose the money, but the next day we got another letter from the same gentleman, stating that it occurred to him, after he had mailed the first note, that he had not inclosed the money; 'and therefore,' says the second epistle 'I inclose you the amount;' but instead of seventy-five cents, the letter only contained twenty-five cents. A day or two afterwards we received two more letters, each inclosing fifty cents. The first letter stating that having discovered his mistake, he inclosed fifty cents more to make up the amount. In the second letter the gentleman says, 'having learned that the mail containing my last letter was destroyed by fire, I inclose now another fifty cents. Our friend's confusion is attributable to the fact which in his original note he requested us to announce.—Wheeling (Va) Intelligencer.

Mankato. Friday, March 31, 1865.

History of Blue Earth Co.

About the 1st of may we shall publish, in pamphlet form, a full and complete history of this County, from its first organization up to the present time. It will contain a carefully prepared history of every town in the county, giving interesting incidents connected with its settlement, its school, religious, and agricultural facilities, and will prove a valuable document to induce settlers to come among us. It will also contain an accurate sectional map of the County, 24 inches square, showing the location of towns, rivers, roads, and lakes, and other points of interest. Every man should have one or more copies. Single copies seventy-five cents. Orders are solicited.

FRONTIER DEFENSES.

We learn from the St. Paul Press the following in regard to the programme for our frontier defence the ensuing summer :

'We have learned from District Headquarters, the programme of operations for the defense of the frontier has been completed by General Sibley, who has transmitted the requisite instructions for carrying it into effect at the earliest possible period. The present line of small posts will be abandoned, and a new line farther west will be occupied, extending from Alexandria on the north, to Spirit Lake, near the Iowa boundary, on the south, and which will embrace all the settlements made or contemplated during the coming season. The stations will be twelve or fifteen miles distant from each other, and the intervals will be traversed each day by armed parties, so that a daily report from all the posts will be made at Fort Ridgley. There will also be a strong cavalry detachment on each side of the Minnesota river, which will be kept in motion during the entire season, and add very materially to the security of the border against hostile Indians. The extent of operation may be estimated by the fact that this single defensive line is 170 miles in a direct line, nearly north and south.

Other precautions will also be taken, by the establishment of a number of camps, from Fort Abercrombie by way of Fort Wadsworth, to the James river, to intercept raiders from the hostile bands. These will be occupied by Indian and half-breed scouts, who have given every many proofs of their fidelity, and who will act under the immediate direction of the military authorities. We are much gratified to learn of the completeness of these arrangements for the security of our citizens against hostile visits from the savages ; and we are confidently assured that any of the red-skinned wretches who shall undertake a repetition of former deeds of murder and pillage, will rush upon their own destruction.

The operations in the field, against the hostile camps, will be, we are informed, of an effective character, but cannot properly be divulged for the present.

THE MILITARY LAW OF 1858.

Gov. Miller, commander in-chief of the State forces, has issued an order in which he says that the Military law of 1858 having been revived, the militia of the State will be governed by the provisions of that law. The State has been divided into three divisions, and nine Brigades. The fourth brigade of the first division is composed of the counties of Nicollet, Faribault, Blue Earth, Brown, Cottonwood, Watonwan, Redwood, Martin and Jackson, and is commanded by Maj. Gen. C. T. Back, with headquarters at Winona.

The Milwaukee and St. Paul road must be an enterprising institution. A train arrived at Sparta, thirty miles from LaCrosse, with a mail, last Monday, but up to last night no mail had reach the latter place. It seems to have been a terrible undertaking to transport a mail thirty miles. It is supposed that a mail will leave LaCrosse this morning and reach here to morrow night. We don't propose to vouch for the accuracy of the supposition, but it certainly ought to prove correct.—Press 26th.

The want of eastern exchanges accounts for the lack of editorial in the Press the past week.

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

We clip the following from a late number of a Chicago paper, received in advance of the mail :

In the New Jersey Legislature, on the 5th inst., John P. Stockton, Democrat was elected United States Senator in place of John C. Ten Eyck, Republican.

The London Times is speculating as to the probabilities of a war between the United States and Great Britian when the rebellion shall have been quelled. "Conscience doth make cowards of us all."

The indications are unmistakable that the rebels mean to try one more naval contest on the James river, before giving up Richmond. They have four iron-clads there and are strengthening them in every possible manner, and have maintained a threatening attitude for the last ten days.

A serious rupture has occurred between the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico and the dignitaries of the Catholic Church, owing to the decrees of religious toleration that have been issued by the Emperor, who is represented as disregarding alike the demands of the bishops and the warnings of the Pope.

There was a panic in a financial circles in New York yesterday, and a heavy depression in produce and merchandise. Several times failures occurred. Unless there is a speedy reaction in gold, and the other markets, failures will be numerous where men have more than they can carry. But our merchants are pretty well prepared, generally, for a decline They must take it as gracefully as possible, and adapt themselves to lower prices as graciously as they did to higher prices when gold went up.

If the stories of refugees from Richmond, and the reports of Washington correspondents may be relied upon, the southern rebellion is on the point of a final collapse. Great consternation is said to prevail in Richmond, the evacuation of which place is in progress. The rebel leaders are represented as losing hope, and looking toward Mexico for an asylum. General Grant is reported as expressing the opinion that Richmond will be evacuated within the next ten days, and to President Lincoln is attributed the opinion that there will be no more serious fighting, and that he anticipates the surrender of the rebels.

THE COLORED MAN'S VOTING.

Mr. Editor :—In my last I left the colored man with the little dog chain on his fettered limbs, and the white man in possession of his plundered booty. Our opponents have drawn the comparison between two races in which he shows the superiority of the one above the other Suppose we admit for argument's sake that the white man has a greater mind than the black. Let us see how it has been developed towards the other. He built ships, crossed the sea into Africa and sword in hand entered among a peaceable people, made them prisoners or bought them, as such took them to America, sold them to other white men who used them to all intents and purposes as beasts of burden. No other race on the face of the earth have ever come up to the ability of the Anglo Saxon in acts of cruelty. And slavery has increased the devilish principle in the soul a hundred fold. It is astonishing how tenaciously men hold their ill gotten gains, and the longer it is possessed the more unwilling they are to part with it Here in the free States the African has got back the greater part of his plundered rights, but the grasp, yes, the death grasp, is held in envying him the use of the ballot box. What is there in the loathsome carcass of Slavery which makes men hug it to their bosom. I knew a mother who grasped the coffin in which her little child was inclosed. It required the strength of man's hand to loose her clinched fingers. Mothers can understand this very well, but what is there so lovely in the slimy tail of this barbarism that we bind it so closely to our embrace.

One of you correspondents says to another who signs himself "H." "Come out like a man and sign your name." So I say, come out Bro. Stine, come out like a man, and don't take shelter behind C. A. and that crooked letter called S. No matter how wicked our acts may be, we try to give a reason for them. So Slavery and its train of woes. Bro. S. says he is a Colonization Abolitionist. God says in his word, "The earth is the Lord's." Pray, what authority have you from this Great Proprietor of the earth to seize an innocent man, no matter what his color is, handcuff him, and then send him to some place unfit to be the residence of the white man, or where is your warrant for preventing him from walking the streets of Mankato, as well as you ? Nothing short of the production of this warrant will satisfy us. Colonizationist and Abolitionist are antagonist, and can never reconciled. The colonization society never contemplated anything more than the removal of the black : now the removal of our chains from the slaves' limbs. It is of Southern origin, and was wholly gotten up by the slaveholding interest. The Abolition society was gotten up for the express purpose of loosing every band and breaking every yoke, even the little dog chain. Twenty-five years ago the name Abolitionist was in danger of getting its victim tarred and feathered, hanged up to a lamp post, or his house burned. The minister who dared to defend the principles from the pulpit was in danger of being kicked down stairs, and sent adrift on the world. Now, such is the change that even a colonizationist will take shelter under his roof and call himself by that name. It cannot be admitted. They say go and join yourself to Jeff. Davis & Co., or if you want more pure society, join yourself to those who took up their abode among the tombs. In a future article I will take up Amalgamation, but I think this the proper place to notice the words used in your issue of the 10th of March. "The licentiousness of the negro worshippers in free States." Negro worship is a Southern slang phrase, always applied to Abolitionists. The world has never produced a nobler class of men and women than those engaged in their efforts to have the chains knocked off the bondman, —among whom may be named, John Q Adams, John P. Hale, Joshua R. Giddings, Senators Sumner, Wilson, Lovejoy, and his brother that well known martyr, Torry the Martyr, Lloyd Garrison, Arthur and Lewis Tappan, Gerrit Smith, H. Greeley, Henry Ward Beecher, Dr. Cheever, Maria Childs, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and thousands of others, and the entire body of professing Christians to which I have the honor to belong,—the Wesleyan Methodist connection, now numbering twenty-four thousand,—some of whose ministers have died martyrs in the cause of human liberty in its true sense, all determined never to cease their efforts till every link of the chain is broken. Such language applied to all these is nothing less than unqualified slander.

In my next, I will notice other objections.

An Ingenious Rascal.

We yesterday learned from a gentleman in this city the following outrage perpetrated in Mechanicsburg last week. A well-dressed and honest seeming fellow whose name has not been obtained, called at the residence of Mr. Elkin, a merchant of that city, about eleven o'clock on the night mentioned, and with tear moistened eyes and a damp handkerchief which was frequently used in the direction of his occular organs, pitifully requested Mr. E to go with him to his Mr. E's. store, in another part of the town, and sell him a shroud for the burial of his deceased brother. Mr. E. touched by the fellow's grief, and ever willing to perform any act of humanity, put on his overcoat, felt in his pocket for the key of his store, and discovering it to be there, started off with the stranger to sell him a shroud.

Tears were shed by one, and words of consolation were breathed in a sympathetic voice by the other, as they passed down the street arm in arm. The store at length was reached the key was inserted in the lock, the door yielded, and the two men entered. Mr. Elkin found a match, lit a candle, and proceeded to measure off the pattern of a shroud. His bereaved customer, in the midst of his lamentations; suddenly gave a most starting whistle, the door opened again, as at the utterance of a magic sound, an in bolted two ruffians, who, together with the third, who had already played his part so well, drew pistols on the obliging Mr. E., and kept him silent and secure until they helped themselves to his goods, and safely made their escape with the plunder.

A Thrilling Scene at a Railroad Station.—Conductor Fleming's train on Monday brought from the north a distinguished passenger, the veritable 'fat woman' who is one of the attractions at Barnum's Museum in New York As she weighs over 600 pounds, she rode in the baggage car. After the arrival of the train in this city, a platform, carpeted so that she shouldn't slip, was placed from the side door of the car, and har ladyship invited to descend. But just at the critical moment when she had fairly stepped upon the platform, the fireman upon the engine not knowing the situation, began to back the engine, and—'what a fall was there !' The gallant efforts of Mr. Flemming and his two or three assistants were well meant but futile. If she had been a pretty woman of the ordinary size, of course it would have been proper for the conductor to receive her gracefully in his arms —but the thoughts of it in this case ! The active exertions employed did not save her from falling, but did prevent her from rolling under the train, of which catastrophe she was at one moment in imminent danger. So the fat woman still lives.—Springfield Republican.

U. S. Collectorship.—We learn that Mr. Blakely, the present Secretary of State, is, or rather was, an applicant for collector of revenue for this congressional district ; and that to secure the removal of Mr. Hall, the present incumbent, and have himself appointed was the real object of his recent visit to Washington. It appears that Mr. Blakely was the strongly recommended by State officials and also by the entire Minnesota congressional delegation. Upon presentation of his papers to Secretary McCullough, he was politely but firmly assured that no change was contemplated in his district. Mr. Hall, the present collector, being a prompt and efficient officer, and that the policy of the Department would be to retain all such officials.

There is a ray of hope for the country when a cabinet officer will assume the responsibility of disregarding the recommendation of an entire congressional delegation, and select men of known worth and reliability for official stations. If other heads of department would adopt the same policy, the disgraceful scramble for office at Washington would cease.—Record.

An Unhappy Affair.

From the Detroit Tribune.

An extremely unhappy affair has just been brought to light in this city, in which an elderly but well known hotel keeper, not a hundred miles from this city, figures as one of the prominent characters. As a natural consequence, he feels cheerless and melancholy over the result, and he has the sympathy of the community in his disconsolation The present war, if all the incidents connected with it could be properly written up, would afford the subject for several interesting volumes.

When the first call was made by the President for three years troops, a young man who resided in the interior of the State, was among those who volunteered his services in defense of his country, He was well to do in the world, and had a young wife, in whom he placed the most implicit confidence, and who was, so far as the world knew, an honest, upright and faithful woman, true to her husband, and was highly respected by all who knew her. Her husband joined one of the Michigan regiments, and was soon off for the front. For a year or so he corresponded regularly with his wife, but unfortunately he was taken prisoner. His wife could hear no tidings of him, which tended to increase her fear that he had been killed. Whether she came to the conclusion that such a calamity had befallen him we know not. She waited patiently for a long time, but becoming cheerless at the prolonged absence of her husband, she gave up all hopes of ever seeing him again.

She came to this city and put up at a hotel, the proprietor of which had buried a loving wife about six months previously He was rather elderly, to be sure, but whenever an old man sees a really handsome lady, he is very apt to forget past misfortunes, for the time being, at least. The lady registered her name as Miss———. The proprietor, in his innocence, yearned to make his wife. An intimacy sprang up between them, which ripened into love, and they were married. The happy event was celebrated in good style, and the many friends of the old gentleman, so soon as they learned of his marriage, called to congratulate him. Even "ye locals" were there, who in happy strains chronicled at considerable length full particulars of the event. They, too, were favorably impressed with the personal appearance and beauty of the bride, and no doubt sighed while thinking that one so young and handsome should be so foolish as to throw herself away. She did not agree with them on this point, however, nor did the proprietor of the hotel. In due time the newly made wife was installed as the lady of the house—and she presided over the hotel with the dignity of a queen. She floated like a fairy queen about the house, making everybody happy Her lively, cheerful conversation and merry talkings was the constant talk of the domestics. In a word, while she insisted upon the work incident to the hotel keeping being performed with scrupulous exactness, she kept all in good humor. She won the confidence of all who knew her—and better than all, made her new husband happy. He reciprocated, and although it is said that to outsiders the old gentleman was neither attractive nor pleasant, he loved his young wife with a fondness almost indescribable.

Like all other mortals, however, he was liable to disappointment. A change came over the spirit of his dreams, and in the place of the once doting husband we have now a disconsolate old man. If the reader will be patient we will reveal a secret, that all may learn, profit by the experience and "beware of widders."

Not many days ago, a young man, slightly bronzed by a Southern sun dressed in the garb of soldier, manly in form, and with an eye flashing fire, might have been seen rushing into the hotel. Rush is the word. He went in with a single bound and enquired for the proprietor. The man whom he sought after stood before him. The soldier, it is said, drew a revolver, and in thundering tones demanded to know where his wife was. It is unnecessary to repeat all the conversation that occurred, suffice to say that mutual explanations followed—the soldier was shown the family rooms—the long lost husband was recognized by his (and the landlord's) wife—and there were bitter tears shed all around. Matters being properly cleared up, the soldier and his wife left in the first train for Jackson.

In narrating the above facts, we have carefully excluded all names for obvious reasons. The story is true in every particular.

Counterfeit Greenback.—The latest counterfeit on the Treasury which have been put in circulation is a $5 note. The engraving and execution do not compare favorably with the counterfeits of other denominations, but they are likely to deceive. The following is the best description that can be given of it:

'5s, imitation. (New Series.) ☞ Observe around the figure of Liberty, on left end is a plain black line. On counterfeit this line along the bottom of the figure running towards the right end of the note forms two distinct lines—On genuine only one. The portrait on right end of counterfeit is blurred, as also the letter on the back of the note—on genuine they are plain and distinct, The general appearance of the note is bad. We had prepared several additional points of difference between the good and bad note—but on examination found they would not answer the purpose to detect the bad. For instance the genuine notes letter 'B,' are seven and three-sixteenth inches long, while letter 'C' are fully seven and one quarter inches. Again, on some of the genuine notes the name of the Register, 'L. E Chittenden,' touches the line around the words 'American Bank Note Co., New York,' while on others the name is at least one quarter of an inch above the line.'

Deep gloom prevails at Richmond and every body seems to feel that the day of reckoning has come.

Lewis Branson sold to Willard & Barney 80 acres in South Bend for $500.

Henry B. Beardsley, of Wisconsin, sold to Willard & Barney 160 acres in the town of Mankato for $550.

T. R. Coulson sold to Mary A. Slaughter 40 acres on the Reservation for $200.

FROM CO. F. HEAVY ARTILLERY.—A letter from Co. F. Heavy Artillery, recruited mostly in this county, says that the boys are well, and are now in camp at Chattanooga. They desire very much that their friends should write to them often. Nothing gives a soldier greater pleasure than to receive letters from home. The following is the list of non commissioned officers in the company:

RIVER NEWS.—The river at this place has been rising and falling by turns, during the week, and there is a good boating stage of water to St. Paul. The river is reported clear of ice as far down as Shakopee. The ice there is quite rotten, and a few more days of warm weather will cause it to disappear.

Navigation will be commenced as soon as the river is clear. Four boats, the Albany, Mollie Mohler, Ariel and Stella Whipple—are at St. Paul, fitting up and loading for this and intermediate ports, and we may expect to hear the sound of their whistles by the first of next week.

At New Ulm and Fort Ridgley the ice is still firm, and the river has raised but little.

The Blue Earth has raised nearly seven feet.

PERSONAL.—Capt. R. F. Slaughter, of the 2nd Cavalry, is now at home on furlough His health is much improved.

J. T. Williams, Esq, returned from Washington on Monday last, where he has been during the past winter, bringing with him files of Eastern papers in advance of the mails. We are under obligation to him for them.

A. A. Clifford in the employ of Beaupre & Kelly; J. S. Macauly, of Borup & Champlin, and J. B Sleichter, of Cooley, Carver & Co., of St. Paul, were in town this week soliciting orders for groceries. They represent good business houses, and our merchants do well to patronize them.

SCHOOL MEETING.—At the school meeting in this district on Saturday afternoon last the old Board was re-elected without opposition. The Treasurer being absent from town, the reports could not be read and an adjourned meeting will be called on the 15th proximo, to hear the reports of the Treasurer and Clerk, and of the Committee appointed to aid the Board in negotiating the bonds for building a school house Messrs Hall, Willard, and Thornton are the Committee.

THE MAILS.—The mails are sadly out of order. We have had no Eastern mail at this place since Tuesday, the 31st, in consequence of bad roads and a break of twelve miles in the railroad between La Crosse and Salem. It is reported that two wagon loads of mail matter are on the way, and will arrive in a day or two The St. Paul mail has been behind in consequence of the ice being gorged at the ferry crossings.

BLUE EARTH BRIDGE.—The County Board have procured from F. Macnamara, Esq., civil engineer, a draft of the proposed bridge to be erected over the Blue Earth river. It is 272 feet long from abutment to the second peir, with 136 feet of tressle work, on the west side. It will be twenty-five feet high or five feet above high water mark. The estimates of its cost were not given, but we presume it will not be less than $10,000.

LICENSES.—The following persons took out licenses before the Board this week;

Geo. Andrews, McPherson; Eckstorm & Bro, South Bend; A Lorentz R Androski, M. Ullman, J. Quane, Pinel & DuBoisson, R Brackelsburg, J. Schlingerman, C. Traut, J. Kranz, Jacob Traub, John P. Krost, H. Tyner and J. Frischolz.

GARDEN SEEDS.—It will soon be time to put in garden seeds, and many are already preparing to do so. It is important to know where to get a supply of good fresh seeds, and we would state that A. T Williams, has recently received a box of fresh seeds from Detroit, Michigan, that are warranted good.

COUNTY BOARD.—The Commissioners have been in session this week to act upon the applications for license. Most of their time was consumed in transacting that business They passed an order requiring the proceeding to be published officially in both papers, and we shall therefore publish them next week.

HYMEN, ATTENTION.—Those contemplating marriage should bear in mind that they are required to get a certificate from the Clerk of the Court before the ceremony can be performed. This is one of the provisions of the new marriage law.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The schools in this district will close their winter term to day. They have been well taught during the winter. The average attendance in each school has been about one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM.—We are informed that Mrs Bellou, of Fon du Lac, Wis, will arrive in town the first of next week, and will deliver a series of lectures on the above "ism."

TRAVELER'S INSURANCE CO.—In another column will be found the card of this Company, which is already very popular in this section. It is safe, cheap and excellent company to insure in. John N. Hall, is agent for Mankato.

TOWN ELECTION.—The election for this town will take place on Tuesday next. No action has been taken by either party to nominate a ticket, yet we presume there will be. We think it best to keep up the organization.

WATONWAN MILLS.—Williams has on had a supply of good flour, made at Butterfield's Mill on the Watonwan. It is better than any we have yet used, and he retails it at $3 per hundred.

WALL PAPER.—Lewis & Frisbie have a very large stock of this article on hand, which they will sell cheap. Those who intend to paper their rooms this spring should not fail to patronize them.

WHAT A NAME.—A package from the South passed through the Express office at this place the other day, directed to J. Lauenden schleaugheur, St Peter.

SPRING.—Numerous flocks of wild geese and ducks have been flying northward for several days.

PLOWING.—Farmers have already commenced plowing, and there is every prospect of an early season.

MAYOR OF ST. PAUL.—John S Prince has been nominated for Mayor by the Democrats of St. Paul.

The Methodist Mite Society will hold its next regular meeting at City Hall on Wednesday evening next. A general invitation is extended to all to attend.

FARM FOR SALE.—In another column we advertise a good improved farm for sale. It will be sold at a bargain, two-thirds cash, and the balance in trade.

THE DRAFT.—A draft has been ordered to take place on Monday, April 3rd, to fill the deficiency in all the sub-districts in this State under the call of Dec. 19th, 1864.

MONEY ORDER OFFICE.—The post office at this place has been designated by the Department as a money order office.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. C. E. Butts, of New York, has located at the Clifton House, and is prepared to do work in his line in a superior manner. He is spoken of as a skillful dentist.

REVIVAL.—An interesting revival is in progress at Vernon Center, under the labors of Revs Buchwalter and Clow. Many are starting in the right way and the work still goes on.

CASH FOR WHEAT.—Bierbauer & Rockey at the Mankato Mills are paying 65 cents per bushel for wheat. 1w*

The Mankato Mills are now retailing flour at their Mills at $3,00 per hundred, and wholesaling at $2,75. 4w*

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A School Teachers' Institute will be held in Mankato commencing on the 17th day of April 1865. The services of Prof. W. F Phelps have been secured for the term, and nothing will be spared to make this an interesting and profitable occasion. Teachers are expected to attend, and they will do well to bring their text books. The friends of Education are invited to be present and to use their influence to make this a well attended institute. Arrangements will be made, if possible, for gratuitous accommodations of those teachers who live out of the village.

MARRIED.

In Mankato, March 29th, at the residence of D R Brooks, by Rev. Thomas Marshall, Mr. LEWIS BENNETT, of Tivoli, and Miss SARAH C. DICKERSON, of Judson.

In Warsaw, Rice county, on the 16th inst., by Rev Geo B Whipple, Mr GEO. F DAWES and Miss MARY E. GILHOUSEN.

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

The attention of our readers is urgently called to the Prospectus of a new Monthly Magazine—Gazlay's Pacific Monthly—published in another column. The great advantages—aside from a first-class periodical, well worth the price of subscription—the proprietors present every subscriber with an article of Jewelry, which cannot be obtained at any retail establishment for less than the subscription price of the Magazine. Messrs. Gazlay & Co. contract with the manufacturers in large quantities for the presentation jewelry, and have taken this method to build up a rapid and extensive demand for their Magazine, in connection with a judicious and systematic system of advertising. The firm are well known and reliable and we predict a successful reward for their enterprize. Specimen copies of the Pacific Monthly can be seen at the office of this paper.

Frightful Railway Adventure.

The Greenock Advertiser says; Scarcely a day elapses without the appearance of a sensational paragraph regarding the tremendous adventures of a clergyman or some elderly female in a railway train, with a madman or a sailor laboring under delirium tremens. In common with other journalists we have received an account of one of these rencontres experienced by a townsman in a down train from Glasgow on Sunday evening. When the train was about to leave Paisley, a passenger entered the first class carriage, of which our informant was the sole occupant and, after the start, asked with a German accent, if the train stopped before it reached Port Glasgow. On being answered that it did not, he deliberately let down one of the windows. Our correspondent instantly had in his minds eye the fate of Briggs, and, in order to show that he was not unprepared pulled out a knife and proceeded to cut some tobacco.

After filling and lighting his pipe, he still kept the knife open, under pretence of keeping the tobacco in proper order. His agonies while passing through the tunnel were frightful, and his relief on reaching Port Glasgow was proportionately great. Here the German for the first time opened his lips, and commenced a conversation in which he displayed much intelligence. Shortly before reaching Greenock, he relapsed into silence, and our correspondent's suspicions awoke afresh. Immediately after passing Hillend he started up and looked intently at our correspondent, who thought, as he phrased it, 'it was all up,' and prepared to make what is called a vigorous resistance.' Who can describe his joy when the dreaded foreigner proposed a glass of beer on arrival?'

The Richmond Enquirer says the conscription of negroes goes on with difficulty. Guards are stationed at every camp and yet the negroes escape. There is a great panic among the blacks, and as much reluctance among the whites upon the question of arming the slaves. The Dispatch repeats that Kirby Smith has 25 000 negro troops organized and armed.

The Examiner of the 21st says there are in that city between five and six thousand women and children.

SWORD TOURNAMENT.—A grand sword tournament is in contemplation at the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, for the purpose of deciding who is the best swordsman in the armies of the United States. A prize of one thousand dollars is being raised. The first premium for the champion swordsman will be a sword worth $500. The second will be a purse of $300, and the third a purse of $200. The affair promises to be very interesting.

The grain crops the ensuing summer certainly ought to be very abundant, if any reliance can be placed on the ordinary indications. The snow has fallen on the ground plenteously all winter, covering and protecting the grain from the ice and severe cold weather, and rains have been also quite heavy. Next summer's harvest should be a superabundant one, furnishing us a surplus for export equal to any we have had for a long time past. When this harvest comes to market we shall have a much larger southern area open to us than at any time for the last four years.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

WASHINGTON, March 27.

To Maj. Gen. Dix, New York:

The following dispatches were received at this Department the evening:

No movements have been made on either side before Richmond or Petersburg since Saturday night.

(Signed) E. M. STANTON.
Secretary of War.

CITY POINT, March 27 10:30 P. M.

Hon. E. M. Stanton:

The battle of the 25th resulted in the following losses on our side:

Second Corps—Killed, 51; wounded 462; missing, 302.

Ninth Corps—Killed, 68; wounded 338; missing, 506.

Our captures by the Second Corps were 361.

By the Sixth Corps, 469; and by the Ninth Corps, 1,049.

The second and sixth corps pushed forward and captured the enemy's strong entrenchments and turned its guns against him or still held it. In trying to retake this the battle was continued until 8 o'clock at night—the enemy losing very heavily. Humphreys estimated the loss of the enemy in his front as three times his own, and General Wright in his front as double that of ours. The enemy brought in a flag of truce for permission to collect his dead which were between their picket line and their main line of fortifications. Permission was granted.

[Signed] U. S. GRANT.
Lieut. Gen.

CITY POINT, March 27. 11 P. M.

Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

I am in receipt of Sherman's report of operations from the time he left Fayetteville, up to the 22d inst.. It shows he had fighting, resulting in very heavy loss to the enemy in killed and wounded and over two thousand prisoners in our hands. His own loss, he says, will be covered by 2,500 men, since he left Savannah. Many of them are but slightly wounded.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT.
Lieut. General.

CITY POINT, March 35—3 P. M.

LATER.—The result of the engagement this morning was more important than at first reported. At the point where the enemy charged, the main lines are only fifteen yards apart. The ground between being level and free from obstructions, except the abattis in front of the works on each side at this place.

Firing between the pickets have been almost continuous, and scarcely a day passes without two or three being wounded, on our side at least. This part of the line has been occupied by three brigades of 2nd Division of the 9th Corps, McLaughlin commanding. He has often expressed his ability to break through the enemy's lines here, and only yesterday showed how it could be done to some visitors who were inspecting the work. This morning four divisions of the enemy were massed in the rear of their line under command of Gen Terry who was appointed to lead the charge. The troops consisted of Bushrod Johnson's, Walker's, Evans' and Grey's divisions, of Gen. Gordon's corps. All the morning the charge was made, and the time occupied in crossing the space between the lines cutting down the abattis and getting in the rear of the fort was the work of but a few minutes.

Here they formed in line of battle, brigade front and while one portion advanced on the works, the other swept to the right, in towards Appomatox, expected to flank and capture the whole line to the river. The latter party were met by the 17th Michigan, and driven back after some hard fighting. The force that attacked the fort were repulsed by the garrison several times, but their numbers being so superior to ours, they finally overpowered and took prisoners nearly all who were in it.

The Heralds army of the James correspondent says the rebels have succeeded in getting about 600 negro troops organized and in the Richmond defenses. The white rebel troops do not like their new associations.

NEW YORK, March 24.

The Herald's Washington correspondent says news of the occupation of Goldsboro, published yesterday, has been to day confirmed by statements of trustworthy parties who have arrived here direct from Newbern. Sherman's force was disposed into marching toward Mechanic's Station on the railroad to Raleigh, to destroy an important bridge across the Neuse river. The center has arrived at Goldsboro, and the right, on Tuesday, the 21st, formed a junction with Schofield at a point eleven miles east of Goldsboro.

The victory claimed by the rebels was at Bentonville. According to that, the official statement, if correct, shows that amounts to nothing but a momentary check to Sherman's left. The next news from that quarter will doubtless show an accomplishment of the plan, of Sherman.

The Herald's special says the report of Johnston to Lee that he had met the enemy near Bentonville and routed him is regarded here as referring to the cavalry flankers of the extreme left wing of Gen. Sherman's army. It is surmised that Sherman may have sent a small force in that direction for the purpose of of cutting railroad connection between Goldsboro and Raleigh, and drawing Johnston's army away from Goldsboro while it was being occupied by the main body of Sherman's army.

NEW YORK March 25.

A Washington correspondent makes a series of revelations, for which he vouches, concerning the rebel confederacy of very important nature. He says the total available military force of the rebels is 152,000—the figures being taken from rolls in the rebel department on February 4th.

Among the witnesses before the rebel Senate Committee to enquire into the condition of the Confederacy was Gen. Lee. He said it would be bad policy to evacuate Richmond, and the Virginia troops would not go into North Carolina; that they had not troops to last till midsummer. If the war was to be carried on, the least of the evils would be to arm 200,000 negroes, but they should be emancipated. It would depend upon circumstances if they succeeded in arming the slaves, but they could at least carry on the war another year.

The Washington Republican says, a gentleman from Richmond, reports that the rebels admit the damage done by Sheridan, amounts to fifty million dollars. He estimates the strength of the army in the Richmond entrenchments at sixty thousand home guards and emergency men.

Putnam Clothes Wringer

The ONLY reliable self-Adjusting Wringer.

The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second.

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers.

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indispensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours,
JNO C WHEELER.

Many years experience in the galvanizing business enables me to indorse the above statement in all particulars

WHO CARES?

Who cares for the last year's rose?
Or the flowers of last year's May?
Or the leaf dried sweet in a mouldy book
Of the love who is away?

Who cares for the cloud gone by?
Or last week's rain and wind?
Or the golden crescent of folded curl,
The dead one left behind?

A tress of hair and a faded leaf
Are paltry things to a cynic's eyes,
But to me they are keys that open the gates
Of a paradise of memories.

Seventeen Things.

In which young people render themselves very impolite:

1. Loud laughing.
2. Reading when others are talking.
3. Cutting finger nails in company.
4. Leaving meeting before it is closed.
5. Whispering in meeting.
6. Gazing at strangers.
7. Leaving a stranger without a seat.
8. A want of reverence for superiors.
9. Reading aloud in company without being asked.
10. Receiving a present without some manifestations of gratitude.
11. Making yourself the topic of conversation.
12. Laughing at the mistakes of others.
13. Joking others in company.
14. Correcting older persons than yourself; especially your parents.
15. To commence talking before others are through.
16. Answering questions when put to others.
17. Commencing to eat as soon as you get to the table.

MAKE THE HOMESTEAD ATTRACTIVE.—It need not cost much money to adorn the place one lives in. Begin by digging out the briers and thistles of the door yard. Plant a few trees; then add several flowering shrubs. Perhaps that will answer for one year. Next year make a gravel walk or two, and set a few flowering plants by their sides. Your wife or daughter will sow a few flower seeds, if you will only prepare a neat border for them. Look at these improvements some bright morning next June, and we guarantee you will be glad you made them. And these labors so rewarding, will lead to others. The fences and buildings will be kept in repair. Trees will be set out by the road side. The House will have window blinds, the rooms will be papered and painted; good furniture will be provided and books and papers will not be missing. All these things will be regulated according to one's ability. And, as a general rule, what ever our means, it is better to make improvements by degrees from year to year than to do them all upon once, "by the job." Be as sure this is the way to find the most happiness in home adorning. And, remember, the influence of such improvements does not end with the individual family. They tell silently but with great effect, on society. Every neighbor and every passer by feels them, and many, are led by their example to go themselves and do likewise.

The Garden.

HOT BEDS.—May be made of any required size, but the most common size in use is a sash six feet long and about three in width. The frame should be made of strong boards or planks, one foot high in front and two feet high at the back, and of sufficient length to receive from one to three sashes. The bed of manure should be at least eighteen inches wider and longer than the frame, and from two to three feet in height. The manure must be spread evenly and made compact by beating the layers down with a fork. Set on the frame and put in six inches of rich earth or would mould which should always be prepared in the fall. The temperature of the bed will be too violent at first, and the sash must be raised during the day for several days. When the heat subsides to about 70 ° the seed may be sown.

The question is often asked, 'what time would you start a hot bed?' Six weeks in advance of the time at which the plants can be set out, is the safest rule we know of for family hot beds. Market gardners will of commence earlier, designing to transplant into other beds or cold frame, as the plants may demand. Seeds sown thickly and allowed to remain in crowded beds until planted in the open air, are seldom good for much. Indeed I would prefer tomato plants which had been raised in a warm south border. They will be stronger and bear quite as early.

MANURE.—Have all the manure drawn out before the frost leaves the ground.

TOOLS.—Get your tools in readiness; it saves time when work is pressing.—Minneapolis Atlas.

A Temperance Family.

Joe Harris was a whole souled merry fellow and fond of a glass. After living in New Orleans for many years he came to the conclusion of visiting an old uncle, away in Massachusetts, whom he had not seen for many years. Now there is a difference between New Orleans and Massachusetts in regard to the use of ardent spirits, and when Joe arrived there he found all the people ardent about temperance; he felt bad, thinking with the old song, that 'keeping the spirits up by pouring the spirits down,' was one of the best ways to make time pass and began to fear indeed, that he was in a pickle. But on the morning of his arrival, the old man and his son being out at work, his aunt came to him and said:

'You have been living in the South, and no doubt have been in the habit of taking a little something to drink about 11 o'clock. I keep a little here for medical purposes, but let no one know it, as my husband wants to set the children a good example.'

Joe promised, and thinking he would get no more that day, he took, as he expressed it, a 'buster.' After he had walked out to the stable whom should he meet but his old uncle.

'Well, Joe,' said he, 'I expect you are accustomed to drink something in New Orleans, but you will find us all temperance here, and for the sake of my sons I don't let them know that I have brandy about; but I just keep a little out here for rheumatism. Will you accept a little?'

Joe signified his readiness, and took another big horn. He then continued his walk to where the boys were mauling rails. After conversation for a while one of the cousins said to him:

'Joe, I expect you would like to have a drink; as the old folks are down on liquor, we keep some out here to help us work.'

Out came the bottle, and down they sat, and by the time he went home to dinner he was as tight as he well could be, and all came from visiting a "temperance family."

WHAT FARMERS' BOYS SHOULD KNOW.—The best inheritance that people can leave children is the ability to help themselves. This is better than a hundred thousand dollars apiece. In any trouble or difficulty they will have two excellent servants ready in the shape of their two hands. Those who are active and hardy meet troubles with a cheerful face, and soon surmount them. Let young people, therefore, learn to do as many different things as possible.

Every farmers' boy should know how, sooner or later,

1. To dress himself, black his own shoes, cut his brothers' hair, wind a watch, sew on a button, make a bed, and keep his clothes in perfect order.
2. To harness a horse, grease a wagon and drive a team.
3. To carve and wait on the dinner table.
4. Milk the cows, shear the sheep, and dress a veal or mutton.
5. To reckon money, and keep accounts accurately, and according to good bookkeeping rules.
6. To write a neat appropriate, briefly expressed business letter, in a good hand, and to fold and subscribe it properly.
7. To plow, sow grain and grass seed drive a mowing-machine, swing a scythe build a stack and a load of hay.
8. To put up a package, build a fire, whitewash a wall, mend broken tools, and regulate a clock.

There are many other things which would render boys more useful to themselves and others—these are merely a specimen. But the young man who can do all these things well, and who is ready at all times to assist others, will command far more respect and esteem than if he knew merely how to drive fast horses, smoke cigars, play cards, and talk nonsense to foolish young ladies at parties.

A VALUABLE TABLE.—The following of Capacity, be useful:

A box twenty four inches by sixteen inches square and twenty eight inches deep will contain a barrel (3 bushels.)

A box twenty four inches by sixteen inches square and fourteen inches deep, will contain half a barrel.

A box twenty six inches by fifteen and a half inches square, and eight inches deep, will contain one bushel.

A box eight inches by eight and one-fourth inches square, and eight inches deep will contain one peck.

Eight eight inches by eight inches square, and four and one eighth inches deep, will contain one gallon.

A box seven by eight inches deep will contain half a gallon.

LET YOUR DOMESTIC ANIMALS HAVE SALT.—Animals that are permitted to roam in the salt marshes are generally healthy; they consume a large amount of saline material; the antiseptic property of salt is too well known and appreciated by most husbandmen and the farmer might as well think of dispensing with food as to fail in seasoning food with salt. No animal can long exist without salt in the stomach. It operates favorably and has a healthy action on the liver; it also prevents the food from running into fermentation, and is death on intestinal parasites.

LITTLE DAM BROOK.—A clergyman seeing a little boy playing in a small stream by the road side, inquired for his father.

'He is over to the little dam brook,' exclaimed the lad.

'What!' said the reverend gentleman, shocked at the boy's profanity. 'Can't you speak without swearing?'

'Well, he is over to the little dam brook, any how,' persisted the boy, as he went spattering through the water and mud after a butterfly. 'He has been over to the little dam brook all day, and if you don't believe it, you can go up to that house and ask mother.'

The clergyman sought an interview with the mother immediately, and complained of the profanity of her child. After telling her, however, what the lad had said, she laughing informed him the 'little dam brook' was a title by which the stream was called to distinguish it from a 'big dam brook,' situated a few miles further to the eastward.

He now felt that he had wronged the boy, and therefore owed him a apology. Hurrying back to the spot, he exclaimed:

'Boy, I wronged you in accusing you of swearing; but you should have told me that 'little dam brook' was only the name of a stream, and I then would not have scolded you.'

'Well, 'taint no matter,' said the happy youngster, as he held aloft a struggling frog that he had speared with his mothers clothes stick. 'There's a big dam on a big dam brook, and a little dam on a little dam brook, and we would have had a little dam on this brook, only I 'spects it is too small, it ain't worth a dam.'

The following boy's composition on moonlight is said to have been read in one of the Boston city schools.

'Twas a calm still night, and the moon's pale light shone soft o'er hill and dale. Not a breeze stirred; not a leaf stirred; not a dog stirred; not a cow stirred; not a sheep stirred; not a horse stirred; not a cat stirred, not a mouse stirred; not a hen stirred; not even a goose stirred.

Here the teacher interrupted with the observation that the composition appeared to relate more to agricultural than moonlight.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell. Within the past two years, instruments constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.
GEO. A. PRINCE & CO.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A. PRINCE & CO." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases:—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7 30 loan, at current rates, including interest about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

PLOTS AND COUNTERPLOTS.

'Grace,' said Philip, at the dinner table, 'I saw Charlie Blake at the corner last night, and invited him to come over this evening and bring his sister Lottie with him, and Fred Lawrence is expected in the afternoon train and of course he will be over to night, so be ready for callers.'

'Thank you, 'I said, the more the better. They shall be vastly welcome,' and I fell to speculating on the probability of a mutual attraction between Frederic and Ruth. I always had great faith in first impressions, and I felt anxious that Ruth should make a favorable one that night. 'I will get her to wear that pink barage, in which she looks so pretty,' I thought, 'and then, with flowers in her hair, she must prove irresistible.'

'Girls,' said mother, as she rose from the table, 'I wish you would take your baskets and go over to the clearing, and get me some blueberries for to morrow's baking, or else I shall have nothing but eggs to make pies of'

Oh! that will be nice said Ruth eagerly, 'I remember the clearing and the fine large berries that used to grow there.'

'They are even finer and larger than usual this season,' I said.

'But aren't it too warm to go berrying?' asked Fannie rather dubiously.

'Not at all,' I said. 'We will go by the way of the orchard and pasture' and cross the river on the boom: that will bring us in the shade of the trees most of the way, and the clearing is surrounded by woods, so that we shall be exposed to the sun but very little, besides if you are going to be a country girl you must learn not to be afraid of a little sunshine.'

'But,' said Fannie, 'aren't there snakes and such things in the woods? you know I am afraid of creeping things.'

Harry, always on the alert for mischief, replied gravely' that there had certainly been a number of rattlesnakes killed in that vicinity but he believed they were not so frequently met with now as formerly, but centipedes, tarantulas, and horned frogs were quite common, and a species of venomous lizard abounded there.'

'Don't mind a word he says, Fannie,' I said laughing in spite of myself at the horror stricken expression of her countenance. 'Harry's stories are always of the Munchausen order. I will insure you against the probability of meeting with anything more dangerous than a harmless green snake or a good natured toad.'

'Harry Gordon,' said aunt Rachel, 'you are old enough to be ashamed of such folly. If you don't break yourself of that habit you'll get to be as bad as Major Jones who has drawn the long-bow until he has actually got to believe in his own stories.'

An hour afterwards and with our little splint baskets on our arms we were ready to start for the clearing.

Are you going with us Flirt,' I asked of a little fat, white and tan colored dog, scarcely larger than a cat, but with long silky hair and a most intelligent expression of countenance, who was my special pet and constant attendant in all my rambles. Flirt answered in the affirmative by a succession of short, joyous barks, and then started ahead on a run. We reached the river, which owing to the drought was rather low, and crossing safely on the log that served for a boom, entered the swamp of bushes that led to the woods. But here Fannie's troubles commenced; she had persisted in wearing her hat and a flounced dress of some thin material, consequently the sun burned her face, and those unfortunate flounces catching on every bush and bramble soon exhibited sundry rents and slits that did not improve their appearance, while every harmless cricket and grasshopper that crossed her path made her start with apprehension. Ruth and I in sun bonnets and stout gingham wrappers, made our way with ease and comfort, except for the constant assistance and encouragement we were obliged to afford Fannie. We were glad when the clearing was at last reached. Something more than an acre of ground covered with low bushes so thickly laden with their shining blueberies that the ground could scarcely be discovered through them. Ruth's basket and mine were soon filled and then we helped Fannie, who unused to picking made rather slow progress. After rambling for a while in the woods gathering boquets of wild flowers and waving garlands of oak leaves, we started on our return. Flirt who had tired himself with chasing squirrels and barking at woodpeckers, trotting quietly by my side.

'Hark!' said Ruth, as we neared the river, 'I hear the water rushing over the dam, it was not so when we came, surely.'

'They have hoisted the gate.' I said after listening a moment, 'and I shouldn't wonder if the boom was overflowed?'

'The gate,' said Fannie with a puzzled look, 'I don't see any gate.' I laughed and explained that it was the gate of the mill that I meant. When we reached the river we found, as I had anticipated, that the grist mill, situated at a short distance up the stream, was in full operation, and the rapidly rising water was already flinging its spray drops over the boom which in a few minutes more would be completely submerged. 'What shall we do now?' asked the girls in one breath.

'One of two things,' I replied. 'Go round by the bridge, which is all of a very tiresome path, or cross here, which we can easily do at the expense of wet feet,'

'Cross here, and on that wet log, already covered with water?' said Fannie. 'We can't do it, I should fall off and be drowned in the attempt.'

'Nonsense! the water is not deep enough to drown you even if you did slip off, of which there is not the least necessity; we've only to take off our shoes and stockings and walk over without trouble.' I replied, why, I've waded across many a time.'

'Agreed,' said Ruth, laughing, 'I like the plan very well.' and she proceeded to divest her feet of their covering. Fannie followed suit with many misgivings.

'Give me your basket, Fannie,' I said 'then you will have your hands free to hold up your skirts so they shan't get wet.'

'Look at Flirt,' said Ruth, 'what ails him?'

The little fellow comprehending our design, was running back and forth in great tribulation, for he was as averse to wetting his feet as a cat, when he had succeeded in attracting my attention he put on an expostulating look that said plainly as words could have spoken it:

'Now, mistress mine, you know I am willing to indulge you in most of your whims, but really, this idea of paddling across the river like so many ducks is simply ridiculous, do pray give it up and go around by the road like sensible women.'

'No use, Flirt,' I said in answer to the mute appeal, 'you shouldn't have come if you were not prepared to follow your leader at all hazzards, you know I never turn back for trifles. If you are afraid to wetting your feet you can go round by the bridge, and so keep them dry, but you will have to go alone.' Flirt evidently understood what I said for he kept glancing first at the water and then at the path leading to the bridge, with a lamentable expression of inderision in his countenance.

'Come girls,' I said, 'we are losing time and the water is rising every moment. I will lead the way. Fannie you come next you will feel safer in the middle, and Ruth may bring up the rear.' I crossed safely and sat my basket down on the bank, when Fannie, who had got half way across, stopped, trembling and terrified, declaring that she was dizzy and could go no farther. I hastened to her assistance, and taking her hand led her safely over, but in her fright she had neglected to hold up her dress, which in consequence presented a very draggled appearance. Ruth tripped lightly across, and we had just sat down on the grass to dry and dress our feet when my attention was called by a sharp cry of distress from Flirt. The little fellow had attempted to follow us over but had lost his foothold and was now struggling vainly against the rushing current which was carrying him rapidly down the stream. Seeing his danger, I ran along the bank to a spot where the water was more shallow, and then plunged boldly in to the rescue of my favorite. I succeeded in grasping him—though it required considerable exertion to maintain my footing—and with my prize in my arms waded triumphantly to the shore.

'A gallant exploit Grace, and right worthily achieved, said a manly voice, just as my feet touched the dry land, and to my consternation four gentlemen, with fishing rods in their hands, emerged from behind a great rock that had concealed them from my view. A glance told me that two of them were my brothers, and the others were Charlie Blake, and Frederic Lawrence. They saluted me with a chorus of laughing comments on my adventure. I was dumb for a moment, but my natural audacity did not long desert me.

'Happy to see you gentlemen,' I remarked coolly, depositing my dripping burthen carefully on the grass. 'Excuse me from shaking hands,' I added as Fred advanced and offered his, 'you see mine are in rather a moist condition.'

'Yes, there seems to be a pervading sense of dampness about you, said Fred. You would make a respectable mermaid. I was not aware of your aquatic propensities before.'

'I thought mermaids were peculiarly a salt water institution,' I said, as I wrung the water from my sleeves, 'and there is nothing briny about this liquid. But I don't fancy the role of a water-nymph any way, and if you had come to my assistance instead of standing there grinning like so many Chinese josses your conduct would have been far more chivalrous.'

'We couldn't,' said Charlie Blake, 'we were so frozen with horror at witnessing such a perilous feat that we couldn't move hand or foot until we saw you in safety.'

'An illustration of the power of imagination,' I said. 'But if you were congealed, as you say, you stand a chance of being thawed out in this hot sun; but excuse me, I had forgotten. Allow me to present you to my cousins.' And with elaborate formality I introduced them to the bewildered girls, who looked as if they could have forgiven me if I had forgotten them altogether. We were certainly an interesting looking trio of feminines. Myself in the foreground, with my dripping garments, Fannie with hers torn and draggled, and her long curls very much disordered, while Ruth the most presentable of the three—had her face so deeply buried in her sun-bonnet that only a pair of starry, brown eyes, looking unutterable things, were visible from its depths. All of us were barefoot and our fingers and lips were stained 'deeply, darkly, beautifully blue,' with the berries, of which we had partaken freely. The gentlemen went through with the ceremony of introduction with all due courtesy and decorum, until catching a glance from Fred's dark eyes brimming over with suppressed mischief, I could control myself no longer, but burst into a genuine shout of laughter, in which my companions joined until the woods around fairly re-echoed with our voices.

'And now, gentlemen,' I said, unceremoniously, when the fit had subsided, 'we must dispense with your company, for we want to arrange our toilet.'

'Au revoir, then,' laughed Fred,' we will see you again this evening.'

'Go home at once, Grace, and change your clothing, or you will catch your death of cold,' said Philip, as they turned to leave.

'So much for first impressions, I said as I thought of the different meeting I had planned, and then, as I thought of the ludicrous plight in which we had exhibited ourselves, I broke into another peal of laughter in which Ruth joined heartily; but poor Fannie, half crying with vexation, declared 'she could not see what we were so amused about; for her part she was mortified to death to think she should be seen by the gentlemen when she was looking so like a 'perfect fright;' but it didn't matter much,' she muttered, as we continued to laugh, 'they were nothing but country bumpkins after all.'

'As two of the gentlemen, thus stigmatized are brothers of mine, and the others particular friends, I suppose it devolves on me to reply to that last sentiment of yours, Miss Fannie,' I said, 'but I am really too much fatigued to get up the proper amount of indignation for the occasion, so I will excuse you on the score of your being tired and cross, you will see things in a more favorable light when you are rested. We had best hasten home fast as possible now, and we will be dressed with so much taste and appear so charming when they call this evening, as to make them forget all about this unfortunate meeting.'

After wringing the superfluous moisture from my dress, we hurried home, Flirt, effectually sobered by his accident, following very demurely. Mamma chided gently, and sent us to change our clothes. Aunt Rachel scolded energetically, and made a bowl of herb tea which she insisted on our drinking hot, to ward off ill effects from our exposure. Fannie recovered her good humor, as arrayed in blue muslin she stood before the mirror, admiring her doll like beauty, while I twined a wreath of delicate, blue and white flowers among her sunny curls. Ruth looked lovely in the pink berage, with rosebuds nestling amid the shining, satin-smooth folds of her dark brown hair, while I had placed a single, fragrant, white, water-lilly in my own thick, chestnut braids and looked—well as usual, I suppose. Charlie Blake, and his sister Lottie, were the first arrivals. Frederic Lawrence came next, and in the course of the evening, several more of the young people of the neighborhood dropped in, forming a pleasant little party. Anxious for the success of my plans I watch Fred rather closely, and was pleased to see that, though attracted by Fannie's pretty face, he at first paid her considerable attention, he soon appeared to weary of the soft nothings that fell so gracefully from her lips, and sought Ruth's side, with whose conversation he appeared so well pleased that he remained near her most all the evening. Several allusions to mermaids and naiads, unintelligible, of course to the uninitiated, were made in the course of the evening.

'True to your character of water nymph, I see,' said Frederic, touching the flower in my hair, as he lingered by my side a moment while the rest were taking their departure.

'How did it happen that you came upon us so suddenly, when I thought you miles away?' I said.

'I came in the morning instead of waiting for the afternoon train,' he replied, 'and on my way over here, after dinner, met your brothers and Charlie Blake just starting on a piscatory excursion so I joined them.'

'And made your appearance when we were not prepared to receive company,' I said, 'but how do you like my cousins? if the question be a fair one, on so short an acquaintance.'

'One tolerably, the other extremely well. Are they engaged young ladies?'

'Neither of them, to my knowledge, have yet perpetrated so lamentable a mistake,' I replied.

'Come Fred? are you going to stay all night?' called Charlie Blake.

'Coming, coming,' said Fred, 'Please give me this flower, Grace,' drawing the lilly from my braids, 'It will serve to remind me of your first appearance in the character of Undine.'

An event which I am not anxious to have commemorated, but you have taken the lilly without permission.'

'And will hold it against all opposition. Good night, my Lady of the Lake.'

'Very much indeed,' was Ruth's frankly spoken answer to my apparently careless reply. I liked Frederic Lawrence. His fine intellectual countenance prepossessed every one in his manners that was much to be admired.

'That is satisfactory,' thought I, 'I couldn't have asked for a better beginning. I shall now have Ruth for a neighbor, in the white house on the hill.'

Frederic continued to be a constant visitor. Fannie, who was evidently much pleased with him, exhibited all her airs and graces in the endeavor to captivate him and by perseverance succeeded in engrossing a considerable share of his attentions, somewhat against his own inclination it seemed. I set myself quietly at work to counteract her designs and further my own. I dared not trust Harry with my plans, his irresistible propensity for mischief would have led him to betray or at least to thwart them; but I made a confidant of Philip, and after some hesitation and objections he consented to assist me. Accordingly he was always ready to offer his services as an escort to Fannie in all of our excursions, and she could not well decline them. Lottie Blake, the very genius of mirth and mischief, a kindred spirit to Harry, was generally his partner on such occasions, while Charlie Blake and I seemed to have conceived a sudden fancy for each other's company. As Charlie was known to be engaged to a young lady in a neighboring town, and as he evidently comprehended my plans, I had no fear of being misunderstood. This pairing-off, left Frederic free to become Ruth's constant attendant, an arrangement satisfactory, as I believed, to both parties. There were rides, walks, sailing and berrying excursions and pleasant, little evening parties without number, and all worked as I believed, to the furtherance of my project. I did not venture to praise Ruth directly to Frederic, knowing that men are apt to be a little contrary when they think they are expected to admire, but I managed, in a quiet way to exhibit her accomplishments, and the fine qualities of her heart and mind, without either of them suspecting my purpose, though in order to do it I very disinterestedly put myself in the background. I had been used to a great deal with Frederic and our voices accorded finely, but now, when he called upon me, I was sure to have some excuse ready and propose Ruth as a substitute, and so with other things. Fannie finding all her efforts to attract him ineffectual, finally gave them up and appeared contented with her apparent conquest of Philip. And so the long, bright summer days passed swiftly away, and ere we knew it September was upon us. Ruth frequently spoke of returning home, but at my earnest solicitation consented to prolong her visit. Fannie showed no desire to leave, I was uncertain as to how far matters had progressed between my favorites. Ruth made no secret of her admiration of Frederic and her enjoyment in his society and I believed that in her heart there was an unacknowledged but still stronger sentiment. Of Frederic's feelings I felt less sure; polite and attentive he always was but I was unable to satisfy myself that there was anything in his manner toward her approaching to a lover-like tenderness. But an incident occurred that reassured me. It was just at twilight that I came in from the flower garden, and as I was crossing the hall, perceived through the open door that Philip and Frederic were alone in the sitting room. Frederic was standing by the open window whistling in a low one, and apparently absorbed in thought. I was about to join them when Philip's voice arrested my steps.

'Do you know Fred,' he said, 'that you have been standing for fifteen minutes by the clock, gazing steadily at her Nocturnal Majesty, the 'silvery regent of the skies,' and whistling 'Roll on silver moon,' in a most plaintive key? Now, there are but three classes of individuals who are in the habit of apostrophizing the moon,—poets, lunatics, and lovers. You are no poet, however you may love the 'art divine,' I never heard a doubt suggested as to your sanity, so there remains only the third proposition, are you in love?'

'Thou hast said it, oh most logical of reasoners,' replied Fred.

'Then you acknowledge the soft impeachment, do you? would it be indiscreet to inquire the name of the fair and favored object of your choice?'

'Philip,' said Frederic in a changed voice, 'this is with me too serious a subject to be trifled with.'

'Are you in earnest, Fred?'

'Never more so in my life.'

'I beg your pardon then. I had no thought that my jesting would come so near the truth: but may I ask, as the privilege of friendship, to know the name of the fortunate lady, for in all seriousness, Fred, I think there are but few worthy of you.'

'I thank you for your good opinion, Philip, I am only afraid of being unworthy of her. I will tell you willingly, for I want your consent and approval, it is—the name was spoken so low that I could not catch it, but I could not doubt whose it was.

'I approve most heartily, and wish you the success you so well deserve,' said Philip.

I had listened thus far, almost unconsciously, certainly without any definite thoughts as to what I was doing, till recollecting that I was hearing what was not intended for my ears, I slipped back to the hall door, and making some slight noise to attract attention, walked across the hall and entered the sitting-room. I was much gratified and a little triumphant that everything seemed coming out in accordance with my wishes.

Next day's post brought Ruth two letters. One from her mother requesting her to be ready to start for home on the third day from that, as they should send for her at that time. The other letter, which I noticed bore the same post-mark she read with a heightened color, and put is into her pocket without making any remark.

'I have a secret to tell you, Grace,' she said, as we sat together that evening, looking out on a landscape bathed in the soft radiance of a September moonlight. 'Forgive me for having kept it from you so long. Do you know,' nestling closer to my side as she spoke, 'I—I am engaged.'

'Engaged, and to Frederic Lawrence, is it not? Oh Ruth, I am so glad!'

'To Frederic Lawrence? No indeed! What put that idea into your head little puss? It is another personage altogether: his name is Chester Thurlow.'

'O Ruth! Why didn't you tell me this before?' I said, overwhelmed with the thought of Frederic's disappointment.

'Why you see I did not like to mention it, for mamma never approved the engagement. Chester, though well enough off, is only a farmer, and mamma had set her heart on my marrying a professional man, but I had set mine on Chester. We have loved each other for years, but as mamma was so opposed—and I could not think of marrying without her consent—why there was nothing to do but wait. So matters stood when I came up here, but Chester—who is extremely well informed, if he is not professional—has written an essay for the Agricultural Society of H——— county which has taken the prize, and mamma is so pleased with the talent he has displayed, that she has given her consent at last, and her letter was to tell me so. The other letter was from him; he is coming for me himself. You will see him Grace, and can judge what sort of a choice I have made. He is not as handsome as your favorite Frederic, but he is a fine manly fellow, and I am proud of him.'

'I am very glad for you, Ruth—or should be were it not for Frederic, but I thought—I felt sure that you liked him, and what will be his feelings when he knows of your attachment to another.'

'Make your mind easy on that score, Grace: you may depend upon it that Frederic regards me just as I do him, merely as an agreeable companion. If his affections are engaged—as I suspect they are, I am not the object.'

'I am confident that you are mistaken Ruth,' I said, but I could not tell on what I based my convictions—the conversation I had accidentally overheard, and she retained her opinion. For hours after Ruth, who had talked long after we retired, telling me all hopes and fears—had fallen into a quiet slumber, I lay awake, tossing restlessly from side to side, brooding over the great disappointment in store for Frederic, and blaming myself for the part I had taken in the affair. That he loved Ruth I felt perfectly sure, and could not bear to think what his feelings must be when he discovered the hopelessness of that love. When at length I fell into an uneasy slumber, my waking thoughts shaped and colored my troubled dreams.

Toward nightfall the next day, a carriage drove up to the door, and a tall, athletic, fine looking young man sprang lightly from it. I knew it must be Ruth's affianced, and ran up to her chamber to call her.

'Your Boaz has come, cousin Ruth,' said, and blushing rosy red, she went down to the parlor to receive him. As I saw and conversed with him, I was not surprised at Ruth's choice. There was a pleasant blending of frankness and spirit in his manner, and the expression of his deep blue eyes was at once searching and winning. As I watched Ruth's varying color, the changeful light in her dark eyes and her timid confiding manner toward him, I wondered how I could ever have been deceived in her outspoken admiration of Frederic Lawrence. But of him, I thought with a sudden pang; he would be there that night I knew, and must soon discover the facts in the case 'How would he bear it? should I allow him to come in unprepared or—painful as the task might be—contrive to give him a hint how matters stood?' I decided on the latter. Gliding unnoticed from the room, I threw a light shawl shawl over my shoulders, and stealing out into the moonlight, took my way down the elm bordered lane by which I knew he would come. I reached the gate at the end of the foot path, and leaning upon it with folded arms gazing upon a night beautiful and balmy as ever blessed some far-away Tropic isle. The broad, golden harvest moon rode high in the heavens, flinging long, silvery flakes of light athwart the open grounds. Great masses of shadow lay huddled together under the great elms, their wavering uncertain outline changing in shape every moment, as the night wind swayed and tossed the leafly wilderness of boughs above them. A faint, subtle perfume came from the fruit laden orchard near at hand, while deeper fragrance stole up from thickets of fern and brake hard by. There was not a cloud in the whole blue expanse above, and as I gazed on those far-off wondrous orbs, rolling on in their ceaseless courses, keeping time to celestial harmonies, the words of the Royal Psalmist rushed into my mind with a new power and beauty. 'When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained: what is man that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man that thou visitest him?'

So absorbed was I in contemplation that I had not heard a footstep on the grass until a hand lightly touched my shoulder, and a well-known voice said,

'Star gazing, Grace, or are you paying your devotions to 'that orbed-maiden, white fire laden, whom mortals call the moon?' and as Frederic Lawrence drew my arm within his, I remembered for what purpose I had come out to meet him and my heart sank within me.

'What is it Grace?' he said, bending down to look in my face. Your hair is wet with dew, you look pale and anxious, what troubles you?' He held my hand clasped in his, as we moved very slowly toward the house, but then he always had such a brotherly way with him, that I thought but little more of it than if it had been Philip's hand in which my own rested. How could I tell him what I had come out to say? I hesitated and stammered 'Ruth is going home to-morrow,' I managed to say at last.

'Ah, is she?' he said calmly, and is it that which grieves you?'

No—not exactly, but— but—Frederic—she is engaged, and it is her lover who has come for her,' and I caught my breath with expression as I looked in his face.

'Engaged is she? well, you are not sorry for that are you?

'The tone was perfectly even, the face showed no trace of emotion. I was puzzled, Was this calmness forced or had I been mistaken after all? He waited for an answer.

I—I was grieved for you,' I stammered out at last, 'I believed that you loved her, that it would well nigh break your heart to know of her engagement to another and it troubled me oh, so much.'

'Believed that I loved Ruth Bowen, he said in a tone of undisguised amazement, Why I never thought of such a thing, what put that idea into your head child?

'My wishes I suppose, at first, then the pleasure you seemed to take in her society, and at length something I overheard you say assured me on the point, but I am so glad that I was mistaken, since I know that she loves another, so happy that my plans did not succeed, for you must know now, that I manœuvred to bring it about. You did not suspect me of being addicted to match-making, did you?' and I laughed gaily, for I felt so relieved, such a burden of self-reproach had been removed, that I was very thankful.

'And you planned to throw us into each others society,' said Frederic in a low, deep tone, 'you wished me to love and marry your cousin?'

'Yes,' I said innocently, 'I should have rejoiced at it, I thought you so well suited to each other.'

He uttered a half smothered exclamation that made me look up in surprise. There was emotion enough in his face now, and it puzzled and frightened me. The face was white, the lips set, and the dark eyes seemed to emit flashes of light He dropped my hand—or rather threw it from him, and turning away commenced pacing back and forth beneath the elms. I leaned against a tree, grieved and bewildered. What ailed the man? What had I said to offend him? If he did not really love Ruth, why should he seem so moved? Was he shocked at the confession I had made of my plans and wishes?—or, and a dim vague suspicion of the truth began to dawn upon my mind, as Frederic paused in his walk and approaching the place where I stood, took both of my hands in his, and drew me out from the shade of the elms to where the moonlight fell full up on my face, so that he could read every expression of it.

'Grace,' he said, bending those dark eyes so searchingly on mine that they drooped beneath his gaze. Is it possible that you have so mistaken me? That I have deceived myself when I believed that you read my heart and knew how dear you were to me? I have loved you Grace, so long that I cannot remember when the feeling did not exist. You were the dream of my boyhood as you have been the guiding star of my manhood, I have made you, it may be too much my idol. Your bright, young face has been the fairest thing in the whole universe to me, your blue eyes the only stars on which I cared to gaze. Every hope of happiness, every dream of ambition, every higher and holier purpose of my soul, has been associated with you and the hope of one day calling you my wife. Oh Grace, tell me that this love is not in vain, for so firmly has the fibre of my heart become entwined about you, that to wrench them away, were as hopeless a task as to attempt, single handed to pluck up one of these giant elms by its roots.'

Stunned, overwhelmed, by this unexpected revelation, I was speechless at first, while his nervous grasp, unconsciously tightened upon my wrists, till I could have screamed with pain. 'O Frederic: I said at last, 'I never thought of this, I never dreamed that you loved me other than as a brother might love a sister, and it is only a sister's tenderness that I have given—that I can give to you.'

'You do not love another?' he questioned almost fiercely.

'No, oh no.'

'Then you will, you must learn to love me.'

'It is impossible, Frederic, I cannot be to you what you wish me to be.'

'Farewell then, he said in a tone of such anguish that I burst into tears, 'I will not plead for that which is worth nothing unless freely given. May God keep you my darling Grace, and give you a blessed lot in life though I may not share it.'

He gathered me in his arms for a moment, kissed my forehead, cheek and lips, released me and walked rapidly away. I stood there listening to the sound of his retiring footsteps till the last echoes died in the distance, then, with a vague, sorrowful feeling that half the brightness had passed out of my life, I sought the house. I did not go into the parlor; I knew I could not control my feelings sufficiently to join in conversation—but I went at once to my chamber and threw myself on the bed. There aunt Rachel who had come in search of me, found me a little later, I pleaded a bad headache—and with truth too, as my throbbing temples testified—as an excuse for my absence, but I said nothing of the worse heart-ache that accompanied it. Declining all her proffered remedies, and assurring her that all I needed was rest, and persuaded her to leave me. When alone I wept and sobbed unrestrainedly. There was nothing of the coquette in my nature, and I believe no true hearted woman ever rejects the proffered love of a man who she knows truly loves and is really worthy of her without experiencing nearly as much pain as she inflicts. I never for a moment thought of the possibility of turning Frederick's love, but the idea of causing his noble heart so much unhappiness was inexpressible painful to me. The tempest spent itself at last, and I lay quiet, except for an occasional long-drawn, sobbing breath, like a grieved child, until Ruth came up to bed.

The Rebel Capital Fallen!

FLING THE FLAG TO THE BREEZE!

We send out to our readers this week the most important news we have ever given them. Richmond has fallen! Her streets have resounded to the tread of Grant's legions. Our "boys in blue" have planted the old flag on its towers and battlements, and the demoralized army of Lee driven from its defences, and decimated by frightful losses, is seeking temporary safety in inglorious flight. "The last ditch" and Richmond were interchangeable terms. It needs no prophet's kin to augur the speedy collapse of the rebellion.

Grant and Sherman, each with an army larger than the combined forces of Lee and Johnson, are closing in upon them from the East and South, while the brave Hancock is sweeping up the Shenandoah valley with his splendid corps of veterans, and the gallant Stanley with a well-appointed army is moving up from the West, and as if this was not enough, the wild rider, glorious Phil. Sheridan with 10.000 cavalry is swooping up whole divisions of rebels in a single charge.

The fate of the rebellion is sealed, and we believe we shall be able to announce the virtual close of the war in our next issue.

ST. PAUL CHARTER ELECTION--PROSCRIPTION.

The municipal election in the saintly city has resulted in a complete Democratic victory, and the Press in reviewing it affects great surprise thereat. For one of the probable causes which has affected this result, we refer the Press to an article which appeared in the Pioneer of the 19th ult., headed "Rotation in office."

No party can succeed for any length of time where proscription of "good men and true," for personal ends, by those in power for the time being, is resorted to as indicated in that article. There being no change of administration and many of the incumbents having only held their positions during a portion of Mr. Lincoln's first term, it was not expected by the party that such a sweep would be made. As a matter of course where vacancies occur from any cause, or new positions are to be filled, the delegation are entitled to make the recomdations, according to usage, but there will be opportunities enough to reward the men who have run the machine for our present delegation, without disorganizing the party to do it, and the less we have of it the better will it be for the party in the State.

Insurance against Accidents.

This kind of insurance is attracting much attention at present, as it affords relief to a class of persons not reached by the ordinary Life Insurance Companies.

The Travelers Insurance Company advertised in our columns, insures against bodily accidents and injuries, which is one of the most frequent and prolife causes of distress. We are the more impressed with the great value of this species of Insurance when we reflect that for a few dollars outlay the brave Casey just wounded by the premature discharge of a gun might now be receiving a weekly compensation of twenty five dollars, which at the least would tend to mitigate the evils of his unfortunate situation. Every body is liable to accidents, and we advise our readers to investigate the claims of the institution to public support.

Liberal Donations

We have received from the Rev. C. C. Bicknell, agent of the Northwestern Freedmen's Aid Commission, a private letter from which we extract the following: "Allow me through your columns to acknowledge some collections I received while in your section of country.

From Winnebago City, $16,65; Blue Earth City, 6,40; Shelbyville. 40,80; Mankato, 56,30; Ottawa, 52, 10; Sterling, 16,75; St Peter, 15,25; Traverse, 16,50; Cleveland, 5,05; Le Sueur, 7,05; Lexington, 11,75; Dooleyville, 17,25; Vernon, 16,85; Garden City, 30,01; Shakopee, 13,00; Belle Plaine, 20. 00.

GOLD—The recent victory has caused a tumble in the price of gold. It is down to 140, on the 5th, and will probable go still lower as the news of the defeat of Lee's army is more complete.

The Spring Election.

"It never rains but it pours." On the heels of the capture of Richmond, comes the cheerful intelligence that the Union cause is acheiving victories at the ballot-box. Connecticut has gone Union by a large majority, and elects Buckinghan for Governor, and Deming for congress.

In St. Louis, the entire radical ticket was elected by 3,000 majority.

In Ohio the municipal elections have all gone Union.

Minnesota Appointments.

W. L. Wilson has been appointed Assessor of Internal Revenal in the Second District in place of H. G. O. Morrison, removed.

L. K. Stannard, has been reappointed Register of the Land office at Taylors Falls.

Mr. Jones the Collector in the Second district has not been removed, as was supposed, and he has received information from the Commissioners at Washington, that changes in these offices, except for cause, were highly improbable.

We are informed that for the same reason, no change will be made in this district, the present Collecter being one of the best in the service of the government.

ON THE "MORAL BASIS."—Rev. Chas. Griswold, who opposed Mr. Wilkinson in the late Legislature, has been appointed chaplain of the First Regiment of Artilery. As he was appointed solely on account of his morality, we trust he will not set his morals so high but what the men under him can see his base.

How Many Lives the War has Cost.

Whether through negotiations or by war, peace is in some way not far distant. It is a good time therefore to note what has been the waste of life by the war.

Official statements, carefully made up in the War Department, will show, it is said, that the number of soldiers in our service who have died since the war began, will reach the startling number of 240,000, or very nearly a quarter of a million. Of these, 221,000 have actually died in the service from wounds or sickness, in the field and in hospitals.—The authorities estimate the number of deaths from wounds or disease contracted in the service, which did not prove fatal till after discharge, and do not therefore appear in the foregoing statement, at 20,000 more.

These figures will prove, to many, a pleasing disappointment. So much has been said of our "hecatombs of slain" that nearly everybody had supposed only millions could enumerate them.

That our whole loss in four years has not been nearly so great as our increase of emigration, to say nothing of the natural increase of population, is itself the strongest proof that we are in no sense reduced by exhaustion to make peace on any terms save the absolute submission of the insurgents.

Death of Bishop Hamline.

Bishop L. L. Hamline, of the M. E. Church, died at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, on the 27ult. He had been sick during the entire winter. He was one of the most eminent divines and promient leaders in the Methodist denomination, and the founder, we believe, of the University at Red Wing, in this State.

A FREE PRESS.—We are sorry, says the Dalton Empire, we did not knew what a free paper was until it no longer has an existence. It is, or rather was (as will be seen by the following luminous paragraph from the Cincinnati Times,) a shield, a sunshine, a buttress, a flagstaff, a key stone and bell tower! We confess that it was "fearfolly and wonderfully made:'

A free press is the foundation of all freedom. It is the source and resource of popular thought. It is the shield and sunshine of true liberty, flinging off the poisoned arrows of despotism, and making warm and elastic with life, health and vigor the political currents of the community. It is the buttress and flag staff—the very key stone and bell tower of a free fabric.

STATE NEWS

BIG JAM.—Persons competent to judge, assert that if we have a reasonable quantity of water this coming spring there will be logs enough come down Rum River to fill it up for the distance of at least fifteen miles. A good time coming.—Anoka Star.

FORTUNATE SEASONS.—There can be no doubt that the recent snows and rains will add millions of dollars to the wealth of the Northwest. The logs will come out of the lumbering districts like health-seeking fashionables for Saratoga—jammed but jolly.—The big boats will bring out two years crops of wheat from Minnesota, after a drouth that almost suspended navigation.

Governor Brough, of Ohio, says in his late message: 'It is estimated that the number of men who fled from this State as the recent draft approched and during its execution exceeded twenty thousand. To such an extent has this emigration gone that in some cases there were not men enough left in the townships to fill the quotas.'

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24, 1865.

Congress having adjourned, Inauguration day over, Members and Senators and the long retinue of hangers-on and visitors to see the Inauguration ceremonies from all parts of the country having left, the city is comparatively quiet. Notwithstanding many thousands have gone, yet to a transient visitor there would seem to be a constant throng. This is caused by the immense amount of business necessary to carry on the war. Troops—cavalry and infantry—wagon and ambulance trains, droves of mules, horses, and cattle, passing to and fro; disabled and discharged soldiers almost constantly leaving for their homes which they left at their country's call, now return cheered with the consciousness of having contributed to its glory and perpetuation on many a hard-fought battle field.

The admirable arrangements of the Northern Central Railroad from Baltimore to Harrisburg, the Pennsylvania Central from Harrisburg to Pittsburg and the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago, greatly facilitate the return of our Western friends to their cherished homes.

There are now some eighty or ninety of the boys of the 8th Minnesota in the hospitals in and around the City. All are doing well.

Dr. Sturgess, late of Mankato, has charge of one of the wards at Armory Square Hospital, and it affords me pleasure to say to his friends that he is making a very favorable impression in his new sphere of professional practice.

Good news still continues to come in from Sherman, Schofield, Terry, Sheridan, Thomas and Grant. Indeed it seems almost incredible that the infatuated South still madly persists in working out its own utter destruction. But surely the end is nigh.

The great decline in the price of gold in the last month has caused quite a fluttering in Wall Street and kindred quarters, where speculations and gambling at the expense of the hard earnings of the laborers and manufacturers of the country, have been carried on to an unparalelled extent. But it is hoped, and confidently expected that the day which shall witness an end of their unholy traffic is near at hand. The day when the promise of the country shall be at par with the precious metals.

The news of recent brilliant victories seem to have worked quite a change in the spirit and tone of those European journals which have always been unfriendly to the North. The London Times, for instance, in its issue of the 6th inst., complains that the last steamer from New York only brought about $25,000 in gold, and predicts that it is "not impossible that the next steamer to New York may take out some amounts of gold,' and at the same time alludes to the craving for these U. S. securities in Germany." These facts certainly indicate a favorable change in our financial condition.

It was my good fortune to be one of a large congregation to hear the celebrated Rev. Col. G. Moody, D. D., of the Cincinnati Conference of the M. E. Church, preach two powerful sermons on Sunday last, in McKendree Chapel, of this city. In the morning his subject was Proverbs 4:7. The subject was ably and elegantly handled. It had the ring of strong zeal and acccording to knowledge. In the evening the text was the latter clause of the 28th verse of the 17th chapter of Mark. The preacher, in elaborating the question of Christian progress and the universality of the brotherhood of mankind, without regard to nationality or complexion, alluded to the occasion when "Paul, standing in the midst of Mar's hill," proclaimed "to the men of Athens' that God "hath made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth." In his application of this part of the subject he dilated quite severely on that system which practically denies the declaration of the Apostle, and teaches that a portion of the brotherhood were intended to be slaves to the other portion. This view of the case, although it met with a hearty response in the hearts of most of the audience, produced quite a fluttering among those who would not see it in that light. Quite a number left the house, and, it is feared, in a state of mind not very compatible with the teachings of the Bible. We hear it rumored that the cause for leaving was that they did not think it right for them to listen to the Ohio Abolitionist thus desecrate the holy temple of God. Perhaps it would be charitable to ascribe their conduct to that notion. I am very sure that, had such a discourse been delivered in this City five years ago, bludgeons, bowie-knives and revolvers would have been brought into requisition to meet Col. Moody's theology. But the day for using that kind of logic is gone by, and I pray it may never again be inaugurated in this land of the 'free.'

Judging from the discussion going on in the UNION, on the negro franchise question, the sentiments of the Colonel would meet with opposition even in Minnesota.

Proclamation has just been made by the President, of the ratification of an important treaty with the Chief of the several tribes of Chippewa Indians in Minnesota. H.

ST. LOUIS CORRESPONDENCE.

OFFICE PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL
ST. LOUIS, MO., March 24, 1865.

FRIEND SLOCUM:—Again permit me to trouble you with a short communication. We are here in the midst of spring and vegetation is already far advanced.

The military authorities of St. Louis are at the present time somewhat idle. Rebel talk and rebel sympathy being nearly played out. Much is yet done, however, in the Provost Marshal General's Department, as the Guerrillas and bushwhackers are quite active now in the western portion of this State.

All military offenders within this department when arrested, are transferred to these headquarters. Consequently we have on hand, in prison, on an average about four hundred prisoners; occupying the time an attention of about sixty Assistant Provost Marshals and Clerks in this office.

The Missouri State Constitutional Convention is yet in session—this being the sixty-first day of their deliberations. They have consumed much time, and made but few changes in their constitution. Two however are worthy of note, viz: The abolition of Slavery in the State, and the vacating of all the Judicial and part of the Executive offices, to take effect the first of May next. This last act has the effect to oust all disloyal officers, and gives the Governor the privilege of filling their places with good and true men. This is as it should be. "Let him who has taken the sword perish by the sword." The Convention is at present discussing the propriety of disfranchising the disloyal, and allowing the negroes the right of suffrage.

The fall in the price of gold has already created quite a panic here. Country merchants are in town, waiting their time with patience, holding fast to the 'greenbacks' and refusing to purchase, and consequently many steamers are now tied at the levee for want of freight.

Our Minnesota Delegation at present are enjoying good health and are in fine spirits, with the exception of Colonel Baker. His health is not very good, and unless it should improve soon, I think it would be prudent for him to leave and return to the shady banks of the Watonwan. Our friend Thayer is now with us having lately beeen attached to the Provost Department. Captain McKusick and Capt. Newson are here from Minnesota. They were ordered here for an examination touching their qualifications as Quartermasters.

I close by saying that I hope ere this reaches you, we shall all hear the welcome news that Lee has surrendered his whole army, and that the Rebellion is no more forever. Then will we all join with the poet and sing these lines,

> "The men will cheer, the boys will shout,
> The ladies they will all turn out,
> And we'll all feel gay when Johnny comes > marching home."

S. C. CLARK.

For the Mankato Union.

THE COLORED MAN'S VOTING.

MR. EDITOR:—I intended to have written two or more articles on the above subject, but in reading a sermon published by Henry Ward Beecher of New York, on the subject, I deem it more answerable to give some extracts from it than to give my views in my own words. You will see that the New York Independent comes in contact with the Mankato UNION. I know you will bear it patiently.

"If I were to put into a single sentence a prescription for that people (the African), it would be this: Make them full American citizens; take away whatever hinders it and add whatever is needed to it. Make them citizens and they are safe and you are safe. Give to the blacks that right which belongs to every born creature—the right to take part in determining the laws the majestracies, and the public policy under which they and their children shall live. In short, I demand that the broad and radical democratic doctrine of the natural rights of men shall be applied to all men without regard to race or color or condition."

I shall be met at once with the honest but mistaken declaration that it is not safe to put the vote into the hands of the black man,—that the elective franchise is too important to be committed to rude hands.

My reply is that it has been committed to hands of black men. They are voters in New York, they are voters in Massachusetts, they are voters in other States. They were voters in Virginia and Tennessee, until comparatively recent periods. And when has there ever been an allegation that they were unfaithful to their trust that they were less than competent to hold it. There is abundant evidence to prove that they have shown themselves to be both faithful to it and competent to hold it. It has never been dreamed that they were not.

The citizen's suffrage is not a privilege or a prerogative, but a right. Every man has a right to have a voice in the laws, the magistracies, and the policies that take care of him. That is an inherent right, it is not a privilege conferred. It is a part of liberty. It is a very precious part of citizenship to which all men are entitled except they forfeit it by crime. And when you say it is not safe to put the vote in these men's hands, I reply that it is not for you to determine; it is a part of that which is their right, and they come to you and say. "Why do you withhold from us that which God gave us?"

"On no other ground than that of crime can you deny to any class the elective franchise, without admitting the monarchical doctrine that civil rights and authority ascend from the superior classes or rulers, and that they have a right to confer as a privilege that which the democratic doctrine teaches belongs to all men in common. I advocate then, the giving to all men, black and white, the right of suffrage. First, because it belongs to them. Second, because it is safe and beneficial, and, Third, because only in this way can we have peace. We cannot have peace in any other way because no question is even settled that is not settled right. It is easily disturbed. If justice is refused you may be sure that you will have agitation. You cannot hush up a principle. And as to compromising, it is often wise and expedient to compromise where things are concerned, but never is it wise or expedient to do so where principles are concerned. If you do it you only rake up the fire that it may break out again. And the only way to settle a question of this character is to ask what are the principles on which we should build. When you have settled a question thus, you have settled it right, and you are done with it. Of the questions which came up for settlement by our fathers—those in which they touched principles—were settled forever, and they never gibber nor flit. But those questions where, instead of touching principle, they only touched the quicksand of expediency, have been all our lives agitating and tormenting us, and if there was ever a people that ought to have learned that to touch the ground of principle is safe, and that to come short that is unsafe, we are that people. So let us not commit another mistake."

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

Gen. Buckner, it is reported, was in Chicago, a few days ago, and is now in Canada, on a secret rebel mission.

Gen. Grant has written a letter to Gen. Pope, approving the policy of the latter, and promising his support.

Count Wydenbruck, the new Austrian Minister has just presented his credentials in Washington. He is of prepossessing appearance, about forty-five years of age, and has served his country in a diplomatic capacity in Rio Janeiro, Paris and London. He was married while on duty in the last named capital.

The monitor Montauk, which was struck by over two hundred shot at Fort Fisher, has arrived at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Her guns are to be exchanged for fifteen-inch ones, and some slight repairs made to her turret machinery.

The St. Louis heiress, Miss Citterer, who a short time since was spirited away from St. Louis, has been found in Chicago. Her guardian wishes her to take the veil in the Ursuline Convent, but she refuses, as she inherits $50, 000.

A Sudden Death

A young man barely twenty-one years of age, who came to Titusville, Pa, from Canada, a few weeks since, to operate in oil territory, died on Sunday, the 26th ult, under the following singular circumstances:

He was passing the evening with his customary associates in a private room, and in course of conversation he remarked that by the time he was forty years of age he should be worth a princely fortune, and should then retire. One of his companions suggested that he might not live to be forty years of age. The Canadian replied that "they were not yet ready for him down there,' pointing downwards. Some one asked him for one of his favorite songs, and he complied, beginning with the words: 'I've come home to die, mother; "I've come to die.' Scarcely had he completed the sentence, when his head fell upon his breast, and he became motionless and rigid. His companions rushed to his side and found he was pulseless—dead.

The Supreme Court of the United States, at Washington, has decreed that the Eastern Division of the old La Crosse Railroad, claimed by the St. Paul and Milwaukee Railroad Company, belongs to the Milwaukee and Minnesota Railroad Company, together with all the rolling stock and appurtenances, subject to mortgage to the extent that surpass the market value of the profits, and the receiver is to be ordered discharged.

THE last story concerning Mobile is brought by a person who says he left that city on the 18th ult. He states that Mobile is well fortified on all sides, and defended by a force of 12,000 men under Gen. Maury. Several days before he left, four federal gunboats and twelve transports came to within a short distance of the lower fort and dispersed a rebel battery in the woods, after which a large force was debarked at the mouth of Dog river. It was thought Ma[illegible] would leave Mobile to its fate, and occupy Selma. There is constant alarm in the city. Desertions are numerous.

Food is scarce and prices high. Confederate notes of the new issue are only worth two and a half cents on the dollar.

GEN. SPINNER reports that the whole number of National Banks authorized and having procured the necessary papers are nine hundred and nine. The conversion of State banks has just commenced, but they are coming in very rapidly.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Dispatches from Washington show great excitement and rejoicing over the fall of Petersburg and Richmond.

Gen. Weitzel telegraphs as follows:

We took Richmond at 8:15 this morning.

I captured many guns. The enemy left in great haste. The city is on fire in one place. I am making every effort to put it out.

The people receive us with enthusiastic demonstrations. Gen. Grant started early this morning, with the army toward the Danville road to cut off Lee's retreating army if possible, President Lincoln has gone to the front.

CITY POINT April 2, 8:30 P. M.

Hon. E. M. Stanton:

At 4.30 P. M., to-day Gen. Grant telegraphs as follows;

"We are now up and have a continuous line of troops, and in a few hours will be entrenched from the Appomatax, below Petersburgh to the river above. The whole captures since the army started out will not amount to less than 12,000 men, and fifty pieces of artillery. I do not know the number of men and guns accurately. However a portion of Foster's division, 24th corps, made a most gallant charge this afternoon, and captured a very important fort from the enemy, with its entire garrison. All seems well with us, and everything is quiet just now.

A dispatch is just received showing that Sheridan, aided by Warren, had at 2 P. M. pushed the enemy back so as to reach the five forks, and bring his headquarters up to Fort Bonzus. The five forks were barricaded by the enemy, which was carried by Evin's division of cavalry.

NEW YORK, April 3.

The Herald's special says it is believed in Washington, that the war is over, and that an understanding to that effect exists. The programme of Gen Grant anticipates all possible movements of the enemy. He did not merely provide for the evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg. He anticipated this contingency, and Lee will find his retreat cut off at all points.

Thomas, Sheridan and Hancock are closing around the nucleus of the rebel army. The military organization of the Confederacy will cease to exist during the present week.

Sherman has yet to be heard from. He is not inactive during the great operations now pending. Peace through war is the object of the administration, and it seems to be now within reach.

The Commercial says the news of Grant's success has most suspended business in all the markets, and as yet it is difficult to estimate the effect upon prices until more is known of the fate of Lee's army, and the prospect of his effecting a junction with Johnston to offer battle at some other point, or possibly to fall conjointly upon Sherman.

NEW YORK, April 3—7 P. M.

As the day advances, the excitement over Grant's victory increases. Salutes are fired from a dozen or more different points.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.

Independence Hall bell was rung by order the Mayor. The firemen turned out under the impression of an alarm of fire, and then formed a procession and passed through the streets, firing a salute and blowing steam whistles. Their procession was an hour passing a point. The Board of Brokers adjourned with cheers. Business is at a stand still.

BALTIMORE, April 3.

The Union people here are intoxicated with joy and intensely jubilant. They embrace one another in the streets. There is a great display of flags. The Mayor ordered all the bells in the city to be rung.

Local Affairs.

TOWN MEETING.—The election for town officers on Tuesday last was very quiet. The liquor law was generally observed. Only one ticket was in the field—the Democratic—which was successful, of course. The Union men did not turn out, and only 105 votes were polled. The following are the town officers for the ensuing year:

Supervisors—George Maxfield, Ch'n, Peter Frenzel, and M. Ullman.

Town Clerk—John Q. A. Marsh.

Treasurer—Isaac Marks.

Assessor—L. T. Kellogg.

Road Overseers—1st dist. Abel Keene; 2nd. Lewis Branson, 3rd, Eli Wirshing; 4th, Wm. J. Duley; 5th, Peter Frenzel; 6th, P. Hodap,

It was voted that the Assessor shall receive one dollar per day extra for services.

It was voted that all fences shall be four and a half feet high.

It was voted that cattle, horses and hogs be allowed to run at large until November 1st.

The Clerk read the report of the proceedings of the Board for the past year. from which we learn that the expenses are as follows:

John C. Wise, printing,	$7 50
D. Wilcox, clerk of election and fees,	1 40
P. K. Johnson, rent, and judge election,	5 00
George Maxfield, supervisor,	20 00
Peter Frenzel, "	20 00
John Brules, "	20 00
John Q. A. Marsh, services as clerk,	43 75
Andrew Hanna, Judge of election,	1 00
T. T. Peirce, lumber for pound,	6 40
G. A. Sturges, medical services,	30 00
A D Seward, clerk of three elections,	4 80
Z. Paddock copying enrolment list,	4 00
J W Horr, 5 dinners & removing nuisance	2 25
Geo Maxfield, judge special election,	5 00
Peter Frenzel, " " "	3 00
John Brules, " " "	3 00
John Q. A Marsh, clerk,	3 00
S. M. Walker, Assessor 47 days $2 pr day	94 00
	$275 30

Three hundred and fifty dollars was voted at the last town meeting for the support of soldiers' families, $50 of which had already been expended; $100 has been expended, and there still remains on hand $200.

The following amounts have been expended for repairing roads and bridges:

Abel Keene, bride near Giltner's shop	$400 00
M. Ullman, bridging a marsh,	50 00
J. J. Shaubut, scraper for roads,	10 00
Aaron Hilton & Co, lumber for roads,	11 30
M. Reinhold, overseer,	8 75
Peter Wenner, "	9 00
M. Ullman, "	9 55
J Q A Marsh, timber for roads,	13 00
N. Heinzeman, " "	7 00
	518 60

A tax of two and a half mills was assessed on the real estate of the town, and two days poll tax, which has been expended in labor on the roads, or returned to the Auditor for collection.

A bounty of $75 was voted to volunteers at a special meeting Feb. 23, 1864, and 63 orders have been issued under that vote.

At a special meeting Aug. 6th, it was voted to pay a bounty of $200 to volunteers, and to pay the sum of $500 or so much as may be necessary for correcting the enrolment list. Two orders have been issued, and $157,95 expended to correct the list.

A tax of 15 mills on the dollar has been assessed in Mankato and McClellan to pay the above, which will be more than sufficient.

At a special meeting held Jan 21, it was voted to pay a bounty of $300 drawing interest at 10 per cent, payable in one year. The quota is 51, and 52 have been credited, and 27 orders have been issued. It is arranged that Mankato, McClellan and Desoto will each pay their proportion of this debt.

The following is the treasurer's report:

BOUNTY FUNDS.

THE CAPTURE OF RICHMOND—The news that the old flag floated proudly over the rebel capital, was received by our citizens with exhibitions of great joy. The desire to celebrate the day was general, and from early morn until late at night the excitement was kept up. Flags were flung to the breeze, and people gathered in small crowds on the streets to shake hands, and congratulate each other over the good news. Towards noon, to quite a number of people the streets began to grow very crooked, but the majority demeaned themselves with becoming dignity.

In the afternoon a salute of 34 guns was fired from the six-pound brass piece, and the Mankato Brass Band enlivened the occasion by playing patriotic pieces on the streets.

In the evening a large bonfire was kindled and a large number of buildings illuminated. The private residences of John D. Jones, Judge Waite, and Wesley Maxfield, were all lighted up. Prael & DuBuison's brick building was lighted with over 200 lights. The Clifton House was brilliantly illuminated with over 150 lights. The Union and Record offices, the American Express office, and the stores of A. T. Williams, Lewis & Frisbie, Ward, Christensen & Bros., and Chas Heilborn, and Finch & Fitcher and E P. Freeman's law offices were well lighted up. Jason Wickersham's windows presented a very fine appearance, and he deserves credit for the tasteful manner in which he arranged his lights. The Mite Society also illuminated City Hall. As pretty a sight as we saw was the illumination of Mr. Thompson's Seminary, on the hill. Seen through the trees as they swayed to and fro, it had the appearance of being on fire. The patriotic ladies of that institution sang several national songs, the words of which were plainly heard on Front street.

It was intended to fire another salute of 35 guns in the evening, but the premature discharge of the gun on the sixth round, put a stop to that fun. Aside from the serious accident resulting from this, which we record elsewhere, the day passed very pleasantly.

RIVER NEWS.—The river from this place to St. Paul is clear of ice, and boats have no trouble in coming up. The ice is not out yet up to the Fort, but the recent rains will soon put it out of the way.

The steamer Ariel arrived at this port on Tuesday morning, and returned in a few hours taking no freight. She is commanded by Jas. Houghton, and has that genial, good fellow Holmes, for clerk. We copy from her manifest the following:

W D. Storey, Winn. City, 2 pkgs; Prael & DuBuison, Mankato, 1; A. B. Balcombe, 3; I. S. Mead, 23; J. Blocker, 4, all of Blue Earth City; Bersie & Nelson, 6 pkgs; S. Richardson, 13, of Winn City; J. M Thompson, Garden City, 3 pkgs; A. Lorentz, 2; A. T. Williams, 7; Lytle and McKenny, 18.

The new staunch steamer Mollie Mohler made her first appearance in these waters Wednesday evening. She is a neat trim boat 150 feet long, affording accommodation for fifty-six cabin passengers, and is commanded by George Houghton, with G. T. Borup in the Clerk's office. She did not bring up but little freight, as the Captain did not expect to come through this trip. She took back 300 sacks of wheat for Beaupre & Kelly. Her manifest showed freight for the following parties:

D. C. Evans, South Bend, 1 pkg; S. Randall, 6 bundles sash; Bergholz, 1 roll leather; S. Lamm, 6 bbls tobacco.

ACCIDENT.—Two of our citizens were injured by the premature discharge of a cannon, while firing a salute Wednesday evening. Maj. E. H. Smith, who was priming the gun, and had his thumb on the vent hole, had his thumb blown off to the first joint. Mr. Casey, a returned soldier of the first Minn., who was loading the gun, had both bones in his right arm broken, below the elbow, and the flesh mangled so that the bones protruded. The entire thumb was shot off, and the hand badly cut up. Drs. McMahan and Frisbie were called, who dressed the wounds, and endeavored to save the arm without amputation. The accident is supposed to have resulted from not having the gun properly swabbed out.

NEW GROCERY STORE.—Theo. Scattergood, late of Pennsylvania, has opened a grocery store in the room adjoining Meagher's Hardware Store. He has a supply of fresh groceries, to which he is constantly making additions, and our citizens will find it to their advantage to give him a share of their patronage. His prices for sugars are very reasonable.

FRUIT STORE.—Mr. Cross is preparing the frame work for a building 16x20, to be erected on the ground north of Heinze Bakery. It will be up in a week or so, and is to be occupied by him as a fruit store, where he will keep on hand all kinds of green and dried fruit. Such a store would pay well, we have no doubt.

REMOVED.—The boot and shoe shop of Leo Lamm has been removed to the building next above S. Lamm's grocery store. Mr L. has a larger room now, and is better prepared to do work and wait upon customers. He has just received a stock of new goods—boots and shoes—which he is selling cheap. Give him a call.

FLAX SEED.—There has been considerable inquiry among farmers as to where a good article of flax seed can be had. A letter from R. H. Pendergast, of Le Sueur, informs us that he has it for sale in large or small quantities, and those wishing to purchase can address him at that place, and he will deliver the seed at Mankato.

POCKET BOOK LOST.—An old leather pocket book, containing about $15.00 in greenbacks, and some other papers, was lost on Wednesday afternoon last, on Front street below Main. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at this office. 1w*

SEEDS.—We have received from the Agricultural Department a few varieties of Garden Seeds, which we will distribute to those who wish them, upon application.

PENSION BLANKS.—We have just printed a supply of Pension Blanks of a new style and form suitable for claim agents. Price five cents each.

WOODLAND SEMINARY.—The second term of this Seminary commences next Wednesday, as will be seen by notice elsewhere. A few more pupils can be accommodated.

PERSONAL.—Maj. E. H. Smith returned home from the East on Monday, after a prolonged absence, looking hale and hearty, and none the worse for wear.

HEAVY TAX.—John Arnold, distiller at this place, paid a tax to the collector, for the month of February, amounting to $900.00.

SPIRITUALISM.—A series of spiritual lectures will be commenced at City Hall this evening.

The Presbyterian Mite Society will meet at the Church next Thursday evening. The public are cordially invited to attend.

A severe storm of wind and snow prevailed in this place all day Thursday.

CASH FOR WHEAT.—Bierbauer & Rockey at the Mankato Mills are paying 65 cents per bushel for wheat. 1w*

The Mankato Mills are now retailing flour at their Mills at $3,00 per hundred, and wholesaling at $2,75. 4w*

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

A School Teachers' Institute will be held in Mankato commencing on the 17th day of April 1865. The services of Prof. W. F. Phelps have been secured for the term, and nothing will be spared to make this an interesting and profitable occasion. Teachers are expected to attend, and they will do well to bring their text books. The friends of Education are invited to be present and to use their influence to make this a well attended institute. Arrangements will be made, if possible, for gratuitous accommodations of those teachers who live out of the village.

DAVID WILCOX, Supt.

Dated, March, 22, 1865.

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31 26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therefore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to wit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, minn March 31, 1865.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHFARE is again open for

Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

Putnam Clothes Wringer.

The ONLY reliable self-Adjusting Wringer.

The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second.

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers.

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized withzinc will no oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers. It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

BREAKING.

MR. EDITOR:—As you have devoted a column of your paper to the subject of Agriculture, and as there are many new settlers coming into our County this spring, I thought that it might not be out of place to give a few hints in regard to breaking. It is supposed by many coming from the East that deep breaking is the best. But after an experience of eight years in the Blue Earth valley I find that shallow breaking is decidedly the best, and it should be done between the twentieth of May and the first of July.

Breaking for corn should not be later than the 15th of June, but for wheat it will do very well until the 15th of July. I find that the sod will rot best if the breaking is done in June.

Corn planted between the twentieth of May and the 15th of June, in good years will yield from twenty to twenty-five bushels per acre, which makes very good feed for winter, and the ground is in as good condition for receiving wheat in the spring as if there had been nothing raised on it the year before.

JAMES MILLER.

How Much Seed to the Acre.

Few readers of the UNION but what can answer the above question to their own satisfaction; still it may be well to give the opinion of our best farmers regarding this matter, as it may be handy sometimes, for reference:

Wheat, 1¼ to 2 bushels per acre.
Rye, 1½	do
Oats, 2½ to 3	do
Buckwheat, ½	do
Timothy 6 quarts	do
Clover, 8 quarts	do
Millet, ½ bushel	do

Of corn, one bushel will plant eight acres allowing three or four kernels to the hill and the rows four feet apart.

Of tobacco seed, a lady's thimble full well distributed, will furnish plants sufficient for an acre of ground.

Maple Sugar.

That definition of 'dirt' which is anything in a wrong place,' applies very strictly to all the details of sugar making. Sticks, dust, ashes, leaves, sour sap, rain-water cannot touch the clear juice of the maple without impairing its value. You may skim or strain out what is perceptible to the eye, but coloring matter and flavor have already become incorporated with the syrup, not to be removed by any process of yours, and the price is at least, so much less than it should have been, as the sugar partakes of foreign matter. To prevent this the bucket should be suspended by an ear to a nail driven into the tree close to the under side of the spout, and the sap should be gathered, strained and converted into syrup as promptly as possible. When the weather is warm the sap will sour in twenty-four hours. After the boiling is commenced it should not cease until converted into syrup. This should be as thick as will pass through a strainer or flannel. The best syrup is reduced to one-thirtieth the quantity of sap. After it had been allowed to settle and cool for a day the usual custom was to return it to the boiling pan, and to every gallon add a gill of milk and one beaten egg to clarify it, care being taken that it did not boil till the scum had risen and been taken off. If, however, the syrup has been carefully made, what little sediment remains will settle to the bottom of the tub, not to returned to the pan again. The boiling must be carefully conducted over a steady fire until it will granulate readily, if intended to be put in tubs and drained; if cakes are desired it must be continued until it will drain but little. We can easily tell when the syrup has boiled enough by turning a little upon snow. If it does not run into the snow, but cools in the form of wax on the surface, it is done enough for the tubs. If it is designed for cakes or to be stirred, the boiling must be continued until it breaks like glass when cooled upon the snow.

'Stirred sugar' is very convenient for use and is said to retain its flavor better than in any other way. This is done by taking the pan from the fire when the syrup has boiled enough for cakes, and set in a cool place, it should stirred briskly with a wooden paddle until the sugar has grained and become dry. If then it is kept in a tight box it will preserve its flavor for a considerable time. The loss of this peculiar and incomparable flavor is soon apparent, and consumers of an article which has been exposed to the air for three months, have little idea of the original taste. This is particularly true of molasses, which must be hermetically sealed in bottles or cans, if desired in its best state.

In draining the sugar, much of the coloring matter can be removed by covering the top with wet flannel cloths which are to be removed and washed daily. But this removes also much of the maple flavor and if the process has been carefully conducted the coloring matter will be such only as properly belongs to the sugar.—Atlas.

A SCENE IN A PRINTING OFFICE.—A patron of a village newspaper once said to a publisher:

'Mr. Printer, how is it you have not called on me for the pay for your paper?'

'Oh,' said the man of types, 'we never ask a gentleman for money.'

'Indeed,' replied his patron, 'then how do you manage to get along when they don't pay?'

'Why,' said the editor, 'after a certain time we conclude that a man who fails to pay for his paper is not a gentleman, and then we ask him.'

'Oh, ah, ah, yes! I see, Mr. Printer, please give me a receipt (hands him two dollars) and please make my name all right on your books.

This line fills the column.

Harrowing.

The very liberal use of the harrow is one of the principal requisites of successful farming. No other single tool does so much to pulverize the ground as the harrow. A full crop can only be raised on a fine, mellow soil. Seeds planted in soil left coarse and uneven, will vegetate unevenly, grow unequally, ripen at different times, and produce unequal quantities. Many farmers insist that it is a mere notion, without reason, to harrow land four or five times, and roll it once or twice. Not one in five hundred believes in the full utility of the soil. Coarse, lumpy soil expose the seeds and roots of young plants to drouth and to too strong action of the atmosphere.

Harrow sandy and sod land whenever you please. If you work any other soil when very wet, it will not recover from the effects of it during the whole season. Harrow the land the first time the same way it was plowed.

The form of a harrow is of no importance, except avoiding the butterfly drag, that seldom works well. The square harrow with thirty teeth is usually preferred. Every farmer should have a V drag also.

Corn, potatoes, peas and other crops that are planted in straight rows, should be harrowed just after coming up, with a V drag, drawn by two horses. The front teeth should be taken out, that the row may pass between the teeth as well as between the horses.

Such a cultivation will do more good than any other single and subsequent one. It stirs the whole surface, pulverizing the soil, keeps it mellow and moist, and destroys the weeds, and all at the best possible time for the crop. No other form of cultivation is so good for a young crop. Try two acres, one in the usual way, and the other by harrowing, as we recommend, when it first comes up, and you will never after neglect harrowing all your hoed crops.—Walden.

A SOUP FOR INFANTS.—Baron Liebig recommends a soup for infants which he believes to be superior to cow's milk in cases where children must be reared "by hand." It is prepared as follows, and can be easily tried. The great chemist says his own children thrive upon it:

'Half an ounce of wheaten flour and an equal quantity of malt flour, seven grains and a quarter of bicarbonate of potash, and one ounce water are to be well mixed; five ounces of cow's milk are then to be added, and the whole put over a gentle fire; when the mixture begins to thicken it is removed from the fire, stirred during five minutes, heated and stirred again till it becomes fluid, and finally made to boil. After the separation of the bran by a seive it is ready for use. By boiling it for few minutes it loses all taste of the flour.

Says the Editor of the Genesee farmer from which we quote many good things:

'I was thinking to day as I was feeding the sheep corn stalks and corn meal, whether instead of letting the corn ripen it would not be better to cut it green.

In the case of timothy hay, it is conceded to be poor economy to let it ripen its seed. Why is it not equally so in regard to food for stock? If you wish to sell the corn or feed it to the hogs, that is another question; but when you feed grain as well as the straw or stalks to cattle and sheep, what is the advantage of letting the crop get ripe? There can be little doubt (though the point is not settled) that there is a positive loss of nutriment by allowing grain crops to ripen—in other words, that the grain and straw together do not contain as much nutriment as the crop would if cut after it had attained its growth, but before the ripening process had commenced.

Feeding Poultry

It has been ascertained that, if you mix with your food a sufficient quantity of egg shells or chalk, which they eat greedily, they will lay twice as many eggs as before. A well fed fowl is disposed to lay a large number of eggs, but cannot do so without materials for shells however nourishing in other respects her food may be; indeed a fowl fed on food and water, free from carbonate of lime, and not finding any in soil, or in the shape of mortar, which they often eat on the walls, would lay no eggs at all, with the best possible will.

HAVE all the manure drawn out before the frost leaves the ground.

Remember that a day in April or May is worth more than two now.

Get your tools and implements in readiness; to save time when work is pressing.

Before the leaves start go to the woods and secure plenty of brush for peas, and poles for beans. Also a good supply to place around your tomatoes; it keeps them from the ground, allows the sunshine and air to pass through, and ripens the fruit more evenly.

Adam was a farmer while yet in Paradise, and after his fall, was commanded to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. Job, the honest, upright and obedient, was a farmer, and his stern endurance, has passed into proverbs. Cincinnatus was a farmer, and the noblest Roman of them all. Burns was a farmer, and the muse found him at the plow, and filled him with poetry. Washington was a farmer, and retired from the highest earthly station to enjoy the quiet of rural life at Mount Vernon, and present to the world a spectacle of human greatness.

A LARGE HOG.—A subscriber who has visited H. G. Graff in Ohio, describes a large hog he saw there. It measures eight feet seven inches from the end of his nose to the root of his tail; girths eight feet and will now weigh over 1400 lbs. Mr. G. proposes to keep him growing until the middle of March.

If you look at a picture you try to give it a good light. Be as courteous to your fellow creatures as you are to a picture.

GROVESTEEN & CO.,

MARRIAGE GUIDE.—Young's Great Physiological Work, or, Every one his own Doctor, being a private instructor for married persons or those about to marry, both male and female. In everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production or prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by Wm. Young M. D. This is a really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with upwards of one hundred engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with. Still it is a book that must be locked up, and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any one on the receipt of 25 cts. THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of 'double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A. PRINCE & Co." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases:—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession, are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great
POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

PLOTS AND COUNTERPLOTS.

'There is something more than headache here, Grace,' she said anxiously, as she noticed my flushed and tear-stained cheeks, but I evaded her inquiries and she did not press them, only showing her sympathy by her caressing manner. The leave-taking the next day, the many things to be thought of and last words to be said, kept me from dwelling on the events of the past night until after Ruth's departure. I was seated at my sewing table after dinner in company with aunt Rachel, mamma and Fannie having gone to the village on a shopping excursion which I had declined joining. Aunt Rachel had on one of her most knowing expressions, spoke in short, compact sentences, and watch me keenly from the corners of her sharp black eyes. I saw that she was secretly desirous either to give or get information and suspecting on what subject, I kept my eyes fixed pertinaciously on my sewing and talked carelessly on indifferent subjects.

'Well Grace,' said Aunt Rachel, at last, 'what do you think of the match-making business now? seems to me you reckoned without your host in Ruth's case didn't you?'

'Yes, auntie, and consequently made a mistake in the figuring up, but I've given up the business now, so we'll say no more about it, if you please.'

'Remember that I told you so,' she answered triumphantly.

'That's what the old lady said when told that the cow had eaten up the grindstone, auntie.'

'Is it? she was a knowing old woman then if she really made the prophecy, but how does Frederic feel about Ruth's engagement? or was there a prior attachment in his case also?'

'Perhaps so,' I answered briefly, feeling the blood surging into my face most uncomfortably.

'Ah! and do you know the name of the lady of his choice?'

'If I do I may not feel at liberty to mention it,' I said trying to keep my voice steady, though my hand trembled and I jerked my thread so violently as to break it.

Oh, indeed; excuse my inquisitiveness, but pray give me your opinion on another point, when a couple are seen taking a walk by moonlight and the gentleman leave abruptly, while the lady takes refuge in her own room and a crying fit, is it a proof presumptive, of a lovers' quarrel, or otherwise?'

'Aunt Rachel,' I said indignantly, while the hot blood mounted to my forehead, 'I will not bear this, I would not have believed that you could stoop to play the spy on my actions.'

'Mercy, child! how your eyes flash. There don't get angry Grace; I did not mean to tease you so, and I never thought of playing the spy; what I saw was entirely by accident, but I have known all along that you were playing your game blindfolded, and it takes a Morphy to win in that way; but you have succeeded in making one match, at least, though not the one you set your heart on.'

'What do you mean by that?'

'Have you your wits about you and cannot see the courtship going on under your very eyes?'

'You must speak plainer, I am not good at reading riddles, and I don't understand you.

Is it possible you have not observed Philip's devotion to his cousin Fannie?'

'Oh! if that is what you mean, make yourself easy on that score, Philip's attentions to Fannie have been paid solely at my request.'

'I understand that; you wanted a clear field for your favorite Ruth, but did it never strike you, that what was begun for your pleasure may be continued for his own?'

'Nonsense; Aunt Rachel, your eyes have been too sharp this time, they see what does not exist.'

'You think so, but use your own eyes, if you distrust mine, and see what discoveries they'll make. If Philip is not over head and ears in love with his pretty cousin then I'm no judge of such matters. You will have to call Fannie sister yet.'

'Never, Aunt Rachel, and you only say so to tease me. The idea of Philip Gordon with his good sense and fine taste marrying such a piece of wax work as Fannie, who has neither heart nor brains to appreciate him in the least, why it's simply preposterous.'

'Don't you know, child, that men seldom take counsel of their judgment or common sense in affairs of the heart? I tell you the wisest of them are led captive by a pretty face and a soft voice, and Philip is no exception to the general rule, he will marry his pretty doll and then repent at leisure.'

'If it should prove so I shall never have any more peace, for I never can forgive myself for the share I have had in bringing it about; but I won't believe it; I will not even think of it, so don't mention it, aunt Rachel.'

'Oh dear,' I sighed, as in the solitude of my own room I gave vent to my pent up feelings in a shower of tears, 'what a tangled web I have been weaving to be sure. This comes of my innocent manœuvreing does it? that my favorite brother, my cool-headed, warm-hearted Philip should make himself unhappy for life by an ill-assorted marriage. Wasn't Frederic's unhappiness sufficient punishment for me, that this trouble must come also?' and more thoroughly miserable than I had ever been before in the whole course of my life, which hitherto had been so shielded by love and tenderness as to know only the bright side of existence, I sat long reflecting bitterly on the folly which had led to such unforeseen results. 'I will not make myself so unhappy for a mere supposition,' I said at last, 'Aunt Rachel may be deceived; I will learn the truth from Philip's own lips; he always deals frankly with me,' and I kept my resolution, though I could not put it into practice for some days, for Philip had gone to the city on business, and I must remain in suspense till his return. I did not borrow any trouble from the idea that Fannie's affections might be enlisted, even though Philip's was not; for though I felt no doubt that she would marry him, should he capable of a sincere attachment, and knew that she would have preferred Frederic or even Harry, to Philip, whose manners were too reserved to suit her. Frederic Lawrence did not come near the house and I had to listen to remarks occasioned by his unaccountable absence, and bear the burden on my heart, and the scrutiny of aunt Rachel's eyes, the best way I could.

Philip returned on the fourth day and as he came from the harvest field toward night and threw himself on a rustic seat outside the porch door, I seized the opportunity to see him alone. A woodbine draperied the east end of the porch, where he sat, and its long streamers, crimsoned by the early Autumn frosts, swayed like a blood-red banner from the eaves.

He had leaned his head back against the branches, and the flame-colored leaves dropped picturesqely over his white forehead, and lay like a victor's chaplet among his thick, dark curls. I approached him softly and laid both hands on his shoulders.

'I want to ask you a question, brother Philip,' I said gravely.

'There is liberty, sister,' was the half laughing response.

'And will you answer me truly and frankly?'

'You shall have the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth—if you get anything.'

'Always an if in the way, but don't jest, for I'm in no mood for that. Philip do you love Fannie Hale? do you mean to marry her?'

'Whew! what a question that is, to come down upon a fellow with. What put such a thing into your head, little catechist?'

'No matter as to that, but answer me truly and sincerely, as you said you would.'

'In all truth and soberness then, I do not love cousin Fannie. I would not wed her for an Earldom, and you must have a poor opinion of my understanding to have imagined otherwise.'

'And you have never given her reason to suppose that you love her, Philip?'

'Never to my knowledge, nor do I believe her ladyship entertains such an idea.'

'Oh! I am so thankful,' and the tears of relief fairly choked my voice.

'Why sis,' said Philip, drawing me down onto his knee, 'is it possible that you took it to heart as this? What put the idea into your head, child? I am sure it never came there of its own accord.

'Aunt Rachel did. She was positive that it was so, and it made me completely wretched, for I feared that it was my plotting and planning that had brought about such a result.'

Philip laughed merrily, 'then the bait too,' he said. 'I saw that aunt Rachel watched me with suspicion in her eyes, and in a spirit of mischief I exaggerated my attentions to Fannie, when she was present, in order to mistify her, in which it seems I was only too successful.'

'Thank Providence it is no worse'—I said—'I feel unspeakably relieved.'

'But Grace,' said Philip, 'what is the matter with Fred Lawrence? I met him to-day and there is a change in his manner, an undefinable something, which I cannot understand. I asked him to call over this evening, but he turned away with some unintelligible excuse. What is it Grace? have you rejected him? If so, I don't care if you remain a spinster all your days, as just punishment for your folly.'

'Let me go, please,' I said, struggling to free myself from his detaining arm. 'Mamma will want me to set the table.'

'Not a step, till you tell me about Fred.—Harry says he hasn't been here for a week. What does it all mean?'

'I can't tell, don't ask me,' and sliding from his hands I ran into the house.

'Do you know,' said Harry to the circle assembled around the work table that evening, 'that Frederic Lawrence is a going to California?'

'California!' 'Frederic Lawrence!' 'Impossible!' were the various answering exclamations to this piece of news.

'It is even so,' said Harry. 'He starts the first of next month with the crew that are going from Centerville. I had my information from Ned Allen who is one of the party. Ned has a brother in California who writes that there is a rare chance in his vicinity for an enterprising young physician, and so Ned has persuaded Frederic to accompany them.'

'I presume it has taken something more than Ned Allen's eloquence to induce him to come to such a decision,' said aunt Rachel, drily.

'How do his mother and sister feel about this arrangement?' inquired mamma in a sorrowful tone.

'I don't know,' said Harry, 'but as George, the eldest son, is coming home to live, they won't miss Frederic so much I suppose.'

'They will miss him and mourn him while they live,' said my mother. 'Poor Lucy, what will she do without Frederic's care and kindness, to which she has been so long accustomed?'

I listened in silence to the remarks around me—and mine, you may be sure, was the only tongue mute on the occasion—never lifting my eyes from the piece of crochet work on which I was engaged, though there was a singing in my ears and a sense of suffocation in my throat; but I bore my mental torture unflinchingly as a Spartan, for I knew that more than one pair of eyes were trying to read my downcast face. When in my own room at last, the restraint was removed, and I knelt there by the window with my arms crossed on the sill and my head resting on them and wept long and bitterly. Somehow tears had become my most constant companion of late. I did not feel myself to blame for rejecting Frederic's love, but the thought that I had exiled him from home and the friends that loved and prized him so dearly, seemed more than I could bear. I supposed my sobs prevented my hearing a light step upon the floor, until a hand, whose gentle touch I knew so well, was laid lightly on my head which the next moment was drawn to that surest resting place on earth—a mother's bosom.

She did not speak until my passion of tears had exhausted itself and I lay quiet, then she said soothingly, 'Will it not be a relief my child to confide in your mother?' and with my face hid on her shoulder and her hand softly stroking my hair I told her all.

'And what hinders you, my darling,' she said, when I had concluded, 'from loving Frederic Lawrence? What quality does he lack which you would wish the husband of your choice to possess?

'None, mamma. He's all that a woman's heart could desire, but you know, mother, Frederic has been my companion from childhood and it don't seem possible to love a man I've known all my life.'

'If that is your only objection,' said mamma, smiling, 'I don't consider it a very weighty one. Wouldn't it be far better to marry a man whose taste, temper and principles were familiar to you and such as you thoroughly approve! than to risk wedding a stranger of whose antecedents you know nothing, and who might prove the very reverse of what you fondly fancied him to be?'

'I suppose so, indeed,' I said, 'but I thought—I fancied'—

'You thought,' said mamma, seeing that I hesitated, 'as most young girls do, that you should one day meet in bodily form the 'beau ideal' that you have so long cherished in your imagination; the one of all others, destined by fate to be your future companion, and endowed with every quality to make you happy. You fancied that your heart would go out to him at once, and that the recognition would be mutual. Is it not so?'

'Something like it, I confess.'

'Well, my child I know not that it will be of any use for me to attempt to persuade you that this day dream of yours is only a dream. You will waken from it in time. I only pray that the waking may not be a sorrowful one. I do not wish to influence you with regard to this affair, Grace; I would have you use your own unbiased judgment as to what is best for your happiness. I will only say that there is no man living, I believe, to whom I could so willingly resign you, my darling, as to Frederic Lawrence, for so excellent a son and brother must, I am sure; make a good husband.'

Mamma left me somewhat soothed and quieted, and that night I asked myself for the first time, if it might not be possible for me to love Frederic Lawrence as a woman should love the man she marries, but I could not answer the question then.

There was to be a Military Review held at the village, the next week, and target shooting was named among the exercises of the day. A silver goblet was to be awarded to the best marksman, and the Beechwood Rifle Guards were practising daily, with the intention of contending for the prize. My brothers were members of that corps, and of course anxious to distinguish themselves on the occasion. The day previous to the review, Edgar, my oldest brother, who was married and resided at Centerville, a few miles distant, came home on a visit, bringing Ellen his young pretty wife with him. The boys had set up a target at a little distance from the house, and shortly after Edgar's arrival they all went out to practice. Ellen, Fannie, and myself soon followed to witness the sport. As we approached the spot I saw that there was another added to the group, and it did not take a second glance at the tall, manly form, to tell me who the new comer was. I wished that I had remained in the house, but it was too late then, so I went forward with the rest. Frederic Lawrence approached, rifle in hand, he shook hands with us all and passed the compliments of the day in his usual, quiet manner, only I noticed in the quick glance which I gave him, that he was more than ordinarily pale.

'Come here girls and see the shots we've made,' called out Edgar, 'I've done the best so far. Come Lawrence, it is your turn now; try your luck first and make your pretty speeches to the ladies afterward.' Edgar and Frederic Lawrence were esteemed the two best shots for many miles around, but Frederic's usual fortune seemed to have deserted him now, for his bullet sped wide of the mark.

'Oh thou disciple of Hippocrates,' shouted the mirth-loving Edgar, 'hast thou become so wedded to pills and potions as to have forgotten the manly art of archerie or that which stands for its substitute in these degenerate days? Try again man, and retrieve your reputation as a first-rate marksman.'

He did try again but only to expose himself anew to the raillery of my brothers by his want of success. 'I'll wager the silver goblet, which I stand a fair chance of winning to-morrow,' said Edgar, 'that Grace could better that shot,

CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK

Didn't Work.

The Honorable Grantley Beckeley, who several years ago visited our western territories for the purpose of buffalo hunting, has just published in England two volumes of his Life and Recollections, in which he gives a picture of the very peculiar times in which the author was born and flourished. Among his sketches of royal life is a story of Lady Hagerstone's scheme to charm the regent;—"Her ladyship had at her residence a miniature farm-yard and three pretty little Alderney cattle. When the prince and his friends had arrived she came forward from a side wicket as a milkmaid, for the purpose of making a sylabub for the prince. She had a silver pail in one hand and an ornamental stool in the other. Lady Haggerstone tripped along with ribbons flying from her dainty little milking hat that hung on one side of her graceful head, and the smallest little apron tied below her laced stomacher, till she came opposite his royal highness, to whom she dropped a really graceful curtesy. Then passing lightly over the beautiful plaited straw, her tucked-up gown showing her neat ankle as well as her colored stockings, she placed her pail and stool conveniently for use. Leaning against the flank of one of the crossest looking Alderneys, she was attempting to commence her rustic labors, but, not having selected the right sex, the offended animal did not seem to fancy the performance, for he first kicked out and then trotted away, nearly upsetting stool, pail, and Lady Haggerstone, covered with confusion, made a hasty retreat back to her little dairy, whence she did not appear again.'

Who Should not be a Wife.

Has that woman a call to be a wife who thinks more of her silk dress than her children, and visits her nursery no oftener than once a day? Has a woman a call to be a wife who calls for a cassimere shawl when her husband's notes are being protested? Has that woman a call to be a wife who sits reading the last new novel while her husband stands before the glass vainly trying to pin together a buttonless shirt-bosom? Has that woman a call to be a wife who expects her husband to swallow diluted coffee, soggy bread and smoky tea, and watery potatoes six days out of seven? Has she a call to be a wife who flirts with every man she meets, and reserves her frowns for the home fireside? Has she a call to be a wife who comes down to breakfast in abominable curl papers, a soiled dressing gown, and shoes down at the heel? Has she a call to be a wife whose husband's love weighs naught in the balance with her next door neighbor's damask curtains or velvet carpet? Has she a call to be a wife who would advantage of a moment of conjugal weakness to extort money or extract a promise? Has she a call to be a wife who takes a journey for pleasure, leaving her husband to toil in a close shop, and have an eye, when at home, to the servants and children! Has she a call to be a wife to whom a good husband's society is not the greatest of earthly blessings, and a house full of rosy children its best furnishing and prettiest ornaments?

Trust.

'Men tend to be what you take them to be.' Tell a man that he is a scamp, and very likely he will prove to be one.

Trust whenever and wherever you can, in morals and in trade, and good is likely to come of it.

Trade is a very curious business, on Broadway and everywhere else. One of its curiosities is that no one is expected to be honest, from highest to lowest.

At the corner of Houston street and Broadway, an old man extemporized a pineapple stand for a few hours. He was what is termed 'a hard case,' and one would certainly expect very little of him:

As we passed, a very decent looking woman asked him to select two pineapples for her, saying that she did not know the good ones. The old fellow picked over his whole heap, and gave her the very best, muttering: 'When a man or woman depends on me, I alus does what's right!'

A certain Judge was obliged to sleep with an Irishman in a crowded hotel, when the following conversation ensued:

'Pat, you have remained a long time in the old country before you could have slept with a judge, would you not?'

'Yes, her honor,' said Pat; 'and I think yer honor would have been a long time in the ould country before ye'd been a Judge too,'

A RAT UP THE LEG OF HIS TROWSERS.—The Pittsburg Chronicle, in giving an account of a concert in that city says:

'While Mrs. Spanlding was playing one of her beautiful harp solos, a boy in the gallery broke forth in a series of frantic yells, rolling over benches and conducting himself in a most distracted manner. As soon as he could be caught and calmed, it appeared that his terror was occasioned by a huge rat, which got out of its hole into the crowded gallery, and took shelter up a leg of the boy's trowsers.'

The Doctor and the Bear;

OR,

Why he Changed his Politics.

Among the mixed multitude inhabiting the little mining town of Ereka, California, there was no one who occupied a higher position, in his own estimation, than the subject of this little sketch, Doctor B——.

The doctor was a tall, pompous specimen of the genus 'blower,' of Falstaffian proportion, and hailing from Pike county Missouri. To use his own choice language, he was 'not much at doctoring, but was some punkins on grizzly b'ars.' He might not understand the use of the scalpel, but was an adept at mixing a cobler, or playing poker. He was also a famous hunter, and many and bloody were the encounters he had passed through with the bears and other monarchs of the Sierras. Nothing delighted him so much as to gather a crowd of miners around him, when he would expatiate at great length upon his exploits as a hunter, compared with which Grizzly Adams, Nimrod, or Doctor Livingstone were but tyros in experience.

On the breaking out of the present rebellion, the doctor immediately took sides with the rebels, and hesitated not to express his opinions at all times and places.

The miners bore with him awhile, until forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and then decided to punish him in a manner he would not soon forget, at the first opportunity.

The occasion was soon presented, for one cloudy afternoon, soon after, the the doctor shouldered his rifle, remarking as he did so, that he was "going in search of a grizzly." He had scarcely passed out of sight before a party of boys proceeded to a neighboring butcher's shop, and borrowing an old ox hide, of huge dimensions, commenced the manufacture of a mammoth grizzly bear.

Placing it over the backs of two of the most mischievous of the party, who stooped for that purpose, and sewing and stuffing with hay the open space, they soon had the satisfaction of beholding a most ferocious-looking 'b'ar,' as the result of their labors. It was truly a life-like deception, the two men making the motive power complete.

Just at sunset 'ye grizzly' was driven about half a mile from town, and stationed in a deep ravine by a clump of of bushes near the trail by which the doctor would return. Then hiding themselves near by, the boys waited with breathless interest for the result. They had not long to wait, for their victim soon made his appearance, hurrying along with lenghtened strides, and casting furtive glances to the right and left. As he arrived opposite the clump of bushes, the 'bear' gave a horrible growl, and then, with an angry 'whoof,' plunged into the trail, directly in front of the affrighted doctor. For an instant he stood transfixed with horror, every hair bristling with fear, and then, dropping his rifle, he turned and fled as though pursued by the fiends of Tartarus yelling, as he went, 'God of my fathers protect me. Seeing a live oak tree near at hand, he made for it, and, giving one frightened leap, landed safe among the branches, and a moment later bruin was at the feet, snarling and growling in the most approved manner.

The doctor was safe but what a situation! Night was fast settling around in silence and gloom, while a black cloud, hurrying up from the south-east, gave warning of an approaching storm. Evidently something must be done immediately, or a night's lodging in the tree would be inevitable.

The 'bear' sat contentedly at the foot of the tree, occasionally giving a fearful growl, and trying his teeth upon the bark, to keep his victim in a comforable state of trepidation. A few moments later a hoarse peal of thunder boomed over the mountains, followed by a fierce glare of lurid light, while wind and rain swept through those old forest trees as though each was striving for the mastery.

It soon died away, however, when the besieged doctor gave vent to a mournful long-drawn 'halloo' that fairly convulsed his concealed listeners with laughter. No reply. Again and again that despairing cry rang through the forest, answered only by the blood-thirsty growl of bruin. At last, hoarse by his exertions, the doctor was inexpressibly relived by hearing a faint 'halloo' in return. Nearer and nearer it came, and finally he could distinguish the forms of his neighbors, as the moon had just risen over the eastern summit. His courage returned at once, and he shouted—

'Hurry up, and kill this 'b'ar,' for I've had an awful fight with four of 'em, and they've chawed me all up.'

'Hallo, Doctor,' said the foremost, 'is that you?'

'Yes, what's left of me. Hurry up; I'm most gin out; back all scratched and chawed up.'

'Now, look here, Doctor,' said the spokesman of the party, 'you are known to be one of the worst secessionists in these parts, and unless you'll promise to reform, vote the Union ticket at the next election, and support the Constitution, we'll leave you to roost in that tree tonight.'

'I'll see you hanged first, and then I won't yelled the enraged doctor.

'Very well, boys, come on;' and turning, they left the spot, followed by a fearful growl from the b'ar,' who commenced slowly to climb the tree. This was decisive.

'Stop, stop! come back boys, and I'll promise,' he fairly groaned after them.

In a moment they returned, and poured in a volley from their revolvers that stretched his bearship upon the ground. Cautiously the doctor descended, exclaiming:

'Ain't he a monster! Tell you what we had an awful fight—rolled and scratched up more'n an acre of bushes. But let's take his hide to remember him by.'

One of the party now advanced, and with a few vigorous strokes with his bowie, completely disemboweted the defunct grizzly, when out sprang the motive power, the 'inner man,' in the shape of two well-known acquaintances.

Such another shout as then went up was never heard before among those mountains. The doctor looked astounded, then confounded; but soon rallying, he whined:

'For the love of Heaven, boys, don't tell of this, and I'll keep my promise, as I'm a sinner.'

He has done so, most religiously.

FREE TRADE ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI.—By order of the President, free trade is to be extended all along the Mississippi river. This is an important change in policy but it will not be without good result, if it puts an end to the shameful speculations in cotton and sugar in which government officials have been engaged. Cotton is now and has for some time been coming forward in large quantities, proving that the destruction of this staple by burning was much less than as generally credited at the North. At St. Louis, the levee is piled with cotton bales for acres in extent, presenting the appearance of New Orleans in its prosperous days. The price of cotton in New York has already fallen to forty-five cents and under the free trade arrangement is destined to further decline. Cotton fabrics are also falling, let us hope to rise no more.

A milk peddler finding that his business was not just what it should be resolved to tack about, and sell milk instead of milk and water, as he had formerly done, and thus test the old maxim about honesty. A day or two after he had effected the aforesaid change, he was informed by one of his customers, a matronly lady, that he need bring no more milk to her. In great surprise he asked her the reason why.

'Because,' said she, 'the article you gave me yesterday was the queerest stuff you ever saw: It had not stood there two hours when it had a nasty yellow scum on it. I must have the genuine sky blue article that I have always been accustomed to have.'

JUVENILE SUICIDE.—Josiah Watson, a lad about twelve years old, whose family reside in Bordentown, N. J., was recently put out to service on a farm not far from that city, with a gentleman by the name of Woodward. On two occasions the boy had gone home to his mother without permission and Mr. Woodward had taken him back. On last Friday he asked to go home again, and consent being refused, he told his employer that 'if he did'nt let him go home he would hang himself.'—No attention was paid to his threat, but soon after, on going to the barn, Mr. Woodward found the boy hanging to one of the beams by the neck, and dead.

IMPROVEMENT FOR RAILROADS.—A new fashioned rail for railroads is announced, which makes claim to a saving of two-thirds the expense of ironing a railway. It consists of a half tube with flanges projecting from each side, with the top of the half tube as it lies on the ties, flattened to nearly the shape the top of the present shaped rail. The principle upon which it is constructed is philosophical, and the world will wonder why it was not applied before. It is now claimed it can be used for light roads, and horse-railroads; but we see no difficulty in making the principle universal in its application. It is the same principle that makes tubular bridges successful, and that makes a gas pipe nearly as stiff as solid rod of iron of the same diameter. We doubt not it will aid in the constrction of railroads where the price of the regular rail would for years deter the starting of the enterprise.

A COPPERHEAD SPECULATOR.—Last fall one of the most ultra copperhead farmers of the country sold a tract of land and took his pay in greenbacks. Entertaining a wholesome detestation of the abolition government, and endorsing the creed that the rebels could not be whipped, he would not keep the greenbacks a single day if he could get rid of them. He invested his money in wheat at $1. 25 a bushel. The point of the joke is he has the wheat yet, and can't exchange it for anything near the same amount of greenbacks.

To prevent a horse from pulling at the halter, tie a rope round the neck, put it through a hole in the edge of the manger and tie it around the fore leg below the knee, and when the horse pulls, the rope will slip through the hole and pull up the fore leg, and he will soon give it up.—Country Gentleman.

They have got up a dressmaker's company corporation in London. The object is not so much to make money as to reduce the evils which assail the sewing women of that metropolis. Over 800 ladies have subscribed to it already. They propose to pay good prices to the seamstresses, and not overtask them with late hours of severe labor. The idea is an excellent one.

THE UNION.

Mankato, Friday, April 14, 1865.

LEE'S ARMY SURRENDERED!

We predicted in our last issue that this week we should be able to announce the virtual close of the war, and we take pleasure therefore in referring our readers to the very interesting dispatches elsewhere, of the surrender of Gen. Lee and his entire army to the Federal forces under Gen Grant.

This is glory enough for a life-time, and we can afford to rejoice with great rejoicings.

The strong net work which General Grant has been weaving around the doomed rebel army for the last six months, has proven the destruction of Lee. He has fallen into the trap. Indeed he could not avoid it, and as the fruit of this magnificent victory, we have secured the whole of Lee's army, and all his artillery and small arms.

Peace will soon follow, as further resistance to the Government is useless.

OUR VILLAGE ELECTION.

On the first Tuesday of next month will be elected the first officers of our village. We think it is highly important that our citizens generally should begin to bear this in mind, and canvass among themselves who are the best men to elect. There are a great many things necessary to be done in a newly incorporated town before matters can be made to move on systematically. There are grades to be established, walks to be laid out sewers to be made, by-laws to be enacted by the Board of Trustees, regulating the building, or moving into town of bass wood structures, and regulating the police arrangements of the village, etc., So that every one who feels an interest for our town should see that none but good men are elected. We want men who take a liberal view of things, and who are willing to attend faithfully to the duties of the office to which they may be elected, and who are also public spirited enough to see that a little expenditure of money here and there, about the village, will bring back an hundred fold pecuniary benefit to our community. There are a few in our midst, who, though they are injuring the village by asking fabulous prices for lots, and exorbitant rents for their shoddy shanties, are yet opposed to any public improvements being made. In making their selection for officers, our citizens should bear this in mind. It is best for us to commence moderately at first in the way of improvements, but we must commence the work, and in order to do it, let us have a reasonably public-spirited Board of Trustees.

DEATH OF GEO. W MONKS.

We learn from the Randolph County Journal, published at Winchester, Indiana, of the sudden death of Geo. W. Monks, whom our citizens will remember as having invested largely in property in this place last fall. His death will be much regretted by those who were acquainted with him in this section: The Journal says:

"George W. Monks died, of congestive fever, on the morning of the 4th inst. Mr. Monks had been a leading citizen of Randolph county for twenty years. He leaves a family of children and a large circle of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. But a few short months ago his wife was buried, and in his despondency he sold his property in this county and purchased a farm near Mankato, Minnesota, to which place he was expecting to remove in a few months. How uncertain is life, and how certain is death. Two weeks ago, and all thought long life, happiness and prosperity were his for years; but the reapers were in the harvest field, and gathering the sheaves into the barn.

MR. EDITOR:—I have noticed one or two items in your paper in relation to the Blue Earth bridge, from the tenor of which one would infer that the building of that bridge at an early date was a sure thing. Now we want a little light on this subject, and respectfully ask a reply to the following interrogatories:

1st. Have the County Commissioners so far disregarded the wishes of the peo- people as to vote to issue the bonds of the County to build this one bridge, while no provision is made for the four others which are quite as much needed?

2nd. If so, is the county to pay the entire cost of said bridge or does Mankato raise a share, and if so what share?

3rd. Why are we denied the privilege of voting on this question as heretofore?

A SUBSCRIBER.

1st. The Commissioners have not, in our opinion, disregarded the wishes of the people. The law passed a year ago gave them power to issue bonds to build bridges, but wishing to ascertain the views of the people whether the four bridges, should be built, they submitted it to a vote, and it was defeated by a small majority. Had the vote been taken on the Blue Earth bridge it would have passed. It is better to get one of the bridges built now, than not to have any, and next year we may be able to build one or two at Garden City and other points. The Board take this view of it, and a majority of the people agree with them.

2nd. The county is to pay the entire cost, as provided in the law of last winter. The bridge will be a public benefit to all in the county, and of course the county should pay for it.

3rd. The law authorizes the Board to issue bonds, and says nothing about submitting it to a vote of the people. That's the reason. Your first vote was merely a privilege granted, not a right accorded by law.

NEGROES VOTING.

MR. EDITOR:—According to promise, I now take up the question of what can be done to elevate and bless the colored race of our land. It has frequently been admitted by my opponents that the negro race is inferior to the white. This assertion made by myself and acknowledged by some of my opponents, I shall notice first. It being true that the negroes are inferior to the whites, if they are freed among us here to remain, then they will always be held beneath the whites (unless they are thoroughly amalgamated.) And the consequence will be that as they have been slaves in slavery, so they will be drudges of society in freedom, and cannot reasonably expect to rise to any important status among us. I shall not dwell on this as any thinking mind can see at a glance what the result would be. Now while my opponents profess to seek only justice for the negro, I shall show you, my readers, that I would do more for them than these loud professors. My opponents frequently refer to the golden rule, and to what the scriptures that I preach, teach me. I will answer in a spirit becoming christianity. I love not in word only, but "in deed and in truth." I consider it no great blessing to the Africans of the United States, to be given their freedom and the right to vote and hold office, and then bring them into competition with the whites who have possessed superior advantages for centuries, and who now possess all the wealth of the land. But do as I recommend, and then we shall show our "faith by our works." And we shall pour out blessings on the negro's head and at the same time preserve our life as a nation. I gave my views in my first article very briefly. I shall now enlarge on them somewhat. I am for colonization, and always have been. Now then, let us compare my sympathy with that of my opponents. My creed is give the negroes what they want—land. Give them the right to govern themselves by themselves. Give them every necessary aid to rise as a nation by themselves. As God has given us freely, let us give to them freely—not words, but money and sympathy, our help in every form, that we may show to the world that we are willing to do right; that we are willing to assist the weak in such a manner that they may feel and realize that assistance. You say where can we put them? I answer that there is room enough on the earth for them in many places that can be obtained. And if no where else could be got to suit better, give them a part or all of the Southern Confederacy, and make Charleston, their capital. Do anything—give them anything in reason, but for the sake of generations yet unborn, keep them a distinct people. Then they will have all the advantages of their governments. Every office from the highest to the lowest will be theirs. Then they will have something to stimulate to action—to encourage them in education—to move them forward in the arts and sciences. Then they can show to the world their ability, having no competition to contend with and having no excuse for not ascending the pinnacle of fame. And if they should even outvie us, I would say to them God speed you on, I care not to what high and glorious stand.

I contend for but one thing, and that is, distinction of the races. I could show you by figures that we can colonize all the negroes in the United States so far as our means are concerned. But we need not do that if we found a colony in a desirable place, it would not be long till the negroes would emigrate themselves, and a stream would thus be flowing from our country that would soon relieve us of all the negroes in the Union. Now, reader, who is the true friend of the negro? I that would spend freely of our money to establish them as a nation, or our opponents that would turn them loose here among us penniless and see them used as tools for selfish purposes. I am willing to risk my views and cause with the public and abide its decision, either in regard to the humanity or christianity in this matter. And I am willing to be placed on the record as advocating the doctrine or the views of many wise men (who now sleep with the dead) and look forward to millions yet unborn, who shall rise up and call us blessed.

I regard this as the last opportunity that we will ever have to colonize the negroes. And also that we never will again see a time when the consent of the negroes can be obtained so easily as now. May the Lord open our eyes and teach us the good and right way to peace and prosperity for all time to come. Let us thank God that the great sin of slavery is removed, and watch and pray lest we enter into temptation.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

The following dispatch was received by Gov. Miller:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, April 9,—10 P. M.

To Gov. Miller and Gen. Sibley:

This Department has just received the official report of the surrender this day of Gen. Lee and his army to Gen. Grant on the terms proposed by Gen. Grant.

The details will be given as speedily as possible

E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

GEN. GRANT TO STANTON.

HEADQ'S ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES,
4 P. M. April 9, 1865.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton:

Gen. Lee surrendered the Army of Northern Virginia this afternoon upon terms proposed by myself. The accompanying additional correspondence will show the conditions fully.

(Signed) U. S GRANT,
Lieutenant General.

LEE TO GRANT.

April 9, 1865.

GENERAL: I received your note of this morning on the picket line, whither I had come to meet and ascertain definitely what terms were embraced in your proposition of yesterday with reference to the surrender of this army. I now request an interview in accordance with the offer contained in your letter of yesterday for that purpose,

Respectfully your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE, General.

GRANT TO LEE.

April 8, 1865.

Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. Forces;

Your note of this day is but this moment—10:50 A. M—received, in consequence of my having passed from Richmond and Lynchburg Road to the Farmville and Lynchburg Road. I am at this writing about four miles west of Walter's Church, and will push forward to the front for the purpose of meeting you.

Notice to be sent to me on this road when you wish the interview to take place.

U. S. GRANT, Lieut. Gen.

GRANT TO LEE.

APPOMATOX C. H., April 9.

To Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C S A:

In accordance with the substance of my letter to you of the 8th inst., I propose to receive the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on the following to-wit:

Rolls of all the officers and men to be made in duplicate, one copy to be given to an officer designated by me, the other to be retained by such officer or officers as you may designate. The officers to give their individual parole not to take arms against the government of the United States until properly exchanged, and each company or regimental commander sign a like parole for the men of their commands. The arms, artillery, and public property to be marked and stacked and turned over to officers appointed by me to receive.

This will not embrace the side arms of the officers, nor their private horses or baggage. This done, each officer and man will be allowed to return to their homes, not to be disturbed by the United States authority so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside.

Very respectfully, U. S. GRANT,
Lieutenant General.

LEE TO GRANT.

HEADQ'RS ARMY NORTHERN VA.,
April 9. 1865.

To Lieut. Gen Commanding U. S. A:

GENERAL:—I have read your letter of this date containing the terms of surrender of the army of Northern Virginia as proposed by you. As they are substantially the same as those expressed in your letter of the 8th, they are accepted.

I will stipulate the proper officers to carry the stipulations into effect.

Very respectfully your ob't serv't,
R. E. LEE, General.

The following is the previous correspondence between Grant and Lee referred to in the foregoing:

GRANT TO STANTON.

CLIFTON HOUSE, VA., April 9.

Hon. E M. Stanton, Sec'y of War:

The following correspondence has taken place between Gen. Lee and myself. There has been no relaxation in the pursuit during its pendancy.

U. S GRANT, Lieut. Gen.

GRANT TO LEE.

April 7, 1865.

To R. E. Lee:

GENERAL: The results of last week must convince you of the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the army of Northern Virginia in this struggle. I feel that it is so, and regard it as my duty to shift from myself the responsibility of any further effusion of blood by asking of you the surrender of that portion of the Confederate States army known as the Army of Northern Virginia.

Very respectfully, your ob't serv't.
U S GRANT,
Lieutenant General

LEE TO GRANT.

April 7, 1865.

To Lieut. Gen. Grant:

GENERAL:—I have received your note of this date. Though not entirely of the opinion you express of the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the Army of Northern Virginia, I reciprocate your desire to avoid useless effusion of blood, and, therefore, considering your proposition, ask the terms you will offer on condition of its surrender.

R. E. LEE, General.

GRANT TO LEE.

April 8, 1865.

To Gen. R. E. Lee, commanding Confederate States Army:

GENERAL: Your note of last evening, in reply to mine of same date, asking the conditions of which I will accept the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, is just received.

In reply I would say that, peace being my first desire, there is but one condition I insist on, viz.: that the men surrendered shall be disqualified from taking up arms against the government of the United States until properly exchanged.

I will meet you, or designate officers to meet any officers you may name for the same purpose, at any point agreeable to you, for the purpose, of arranging definitely the terms upon which the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia will be received.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT.
Lieutenant General.

LEE TO GRANT.

April 8, 1865,

GENERAL: I received at a late hour your note of to-day in answer to mine of yesterday.

I did not intend to propose the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, but to ask the terms of your proposition. To be frank with you, I do not think the emergency has arisen to call for the surrender of this army; but, as the restoration of peace should be the sole object of all, I desire to know whether your proposals would tend to that end. I cannot therefore meet you with a view to surrender the Army of Northern Virginia, but as far as your proposition may effect the C. S. A. forces under my command, and tend to the restoration of peace, I should be glad to meet you at 10 A. M. to morrow, on the old stage road to Richmond, between the the picket lines of the two armies.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE, General.

GRANT TO LEE,

April, 8 1865

To General R. E. Lee, commanding C S. A.

Your note of yesterday is received.

I have no authority to treat on the subject of peace. The meeting proposed at 10 A. M. to-day would lead to no good.

I will state, however, General, that I am equally anxious for peace with yourself, and the whole North entertain the same feeling.

The terms upon which peace can be had are well understood by the South.

By laying down their arms they will hasten that most desirable event, save thousand of human lives, and hundreds of millions of property, not yet destroyed. Sincerely hoping that all our difficulties may be settled without the loss of another man, I subscribe myself,

Very respectfully your obedient servant.
U. S. GRANT, Lieut. Gen.

THANKS TO GRANT AND HIS ARMY.

WAR DEPARTMENT, April 9.

To Lieut. Gen. Grant;

Thanks be to Almighty God for the great victory with which he has this day crowned you and the gallant army under your command. The thanks of this Department, and of the Government and of the people of the United States, their reverence and honor have been deserved and will be rendered to you and your gallant officers and soldiers of your command for all time.

E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War

ORDER FOR A NATIONAL SALUTE.

WAR DEPARTMENT;
WASHINGTON; April 9—10 P. M.

Ordered, That a salute of 200 guns be fired at the headquarters of every army and department, and at every post and arsenal in the United States, and at the Military Academy at West Point, on the day of the reception of this order, in commemoration of the surrender of General R. E. Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia to Lieutenant General Grant and the army under his command. Report of the receipt and execution of this order to be made to the Adjutant General at Washington,

E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, April 7.

General Sheridan attacked and routed Lee's army yesterday.

He captured Generals Ewell, Kershaw, Butler, and many other officers.

Also captured several thousand prisoners and a large number of cannon.

He expects to force Lee to surrender all that is left of his army.

Details will be given speedily.

[Signed] E. M STANTON,
Secretary of War.

CITY POINT, April 6—8:35 A. M.

To E. M. Stanton, Sec'y of War:

At 11:15 P. M. yesterday at Burkesville station, Gen. Grant hands me the following from Gen. Sheridan.

A. LINCOLN.

April 6—11:15 P. M.

To Lieut. Gen. Grant:

I have the honor to report that the enemy made a stand at the intersection of the Burke's Station Road with the road upon which they were retreating.

I attacked them with two divisions of the 6th corps and routed them handsomely, making a connection with the cavalry.

I am still pursuing them with cavalry and infantry.

Up to the present time we have captured Gens. Ewell, Kershaw, Button, Corse, DeBarry and Curtis Lee.

We captured several prisoners and fourteen pieces of artillery, besides a large number of wagons.

If the thing is pressed, I think Lee will surrender.

P. H. SHERIDAN,
Maj. Gen. Commanding.

To A. Lincoln;

The following telegraph is respectfully forwarded for your information.

U. S. GRANT.

2D ARMY CORPS, April 6—7:30 P. M.

To Maj. Gen. A S. Webb:

Our last fight just before dark at Sailor's Creek, gave us 2 guns, 3 flags and considerable number of prisoners, with 20 wagons, 70 ambulances with mules and horses. There are are also between 30 and 50 wagons, in addition, abandoned and destroyed along the road, together with some battery wagons and forges.

I have already reported to you the capture of some prisoners, and the fact that the road for nearly two miles is strewn with tents and baggage, cooking utensils, some ammunition and material of all kinds.

The wagons are across the Apomatox to the bridges, and it will take some time to clear it.

The enemy is in position on the Heights beyond with artillery.

The bridges are partially destroyed, and the approaches on the other side are of soft bottom land. We cannot advance to-night in the same manner we have to day. As soon as I get my troops up a little (we are considerably mixed), I might push a column down the road but it is evident I cannot follow during the night.

A. A. HUMPHREY,
Major General.

WASHINGTON, April 8, 1865.

Major General Dix:

A telegram from Gen. Grant dated this day at 12 o'clock—noon—at Farm Hill 16 miles west of Burke's Station, states that the enemy have been pushed from the road twards Danville, and were now pursued toward Lynchburg, and that he is very confident of receiving the surrender of Lee and what remains of his army.

E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

Richmond News.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Herald's correspondence says the works in front, of Richmond consist of three strong lines, wholly enveloping the city. The outer ones are continous. The inner one consists of a series of strong redoubts and bastion forts. All these mount upwards of 200 guns, and would, if properly garrisoned, form an almost impregnable series of defences.

Torpedoes were thickly strewn all over the ground, and marked with flags for the safety of the rebels, but they neglected to remove them in their hasty flight, and this doubtless saved the lives of many of our men.

When marching into Richmond the second line was found equally strong with the first, excepting as to torpedoes.

The third line is just outside the edge of town. these are situated on high ground, and, like the others, mount heavy guns.

Jeff Davis received Lee's dispatch to evacuate the city while in church. On the train be escaped with, he took a horse and carriage; so as to take to the country in case the road was interrupted. He expressed himself as being yet determined not to give up, though it was certain he had but little hope left.

Extra Billy Smith did not leave till after midnight, He left his wife behind, as also did Gen. Lee.

NEW YORK, April 8—The Times's Richmond correspondence says the destruction of property by fire there will amount to tens of millions of dollars. It is positively asserted that Breckenridge gave orders to start the fire.

Mail communication with City Point was to be established at once.

The city is perfectly quiet, and the conduct of our troops admirable.

Mrs Lee remains in the city. The news of the death of her son, W. H. Lee, who was killed in battle, has been received.

The Legislature was in session as late as nine o'clock on Sunday night, when they left for Columbia by the canal and James River.

Breckenridge left the city as late as half past six o'clock on Monday morning.

A large number of officers were captured and paroled.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Tribune's Richmond correspondence says that when Jeff. Davis received Lee's dispatch, he was in church. He arose much agitated, and immediately left the church.

All eyes were centred upon him.

When the services were concluded, the minister was handed a note containing the news, which he read as speedily as possible.

All civil laws have been suspended for the present, and the military law governs the city. In time we may look for the restoration of our municipal government upon a Union foundation, and the resumption of legislation in all its departments.

The Whig gives additional particulars of the evacuation, which had been going on for a month; but the people were blinded and made to believe that the movement was merely precautionary.

On Sunday morning the silver coin belonging to the Louisiana banks, and recently appropriated by the Confederate Congress, was run down to the Danville train, as well as the specie of the Richmond banks.

Then the programme for the departure of the officials was arranged, as a number of trains were to leave during the evening. Still there was not room for all who thought it desirable to get away. Davis was to depart at 7 P. M.

Breckinridge had to go off on horseback with the rest of the army on Monday morning. Gov. Smith ran off during the night.

The same paper says that Gov. Smith made a speech on Sunday, saying that the rebel troops were victorious and that Richmond should not be evacuated, after which he left on horseback.

A large number of rebel prisoners arrived in Washington this morning, all desirous of taking the oath of allegiance.

BADLY FROZEN.—Edward Pay, a brother of B. D. Pay, of this place, in company with another young man were caught out in the late cold snap, and had his feet badly frozen They were taking through to Lake Shetek, a train of cattle belonging to Jas. B. Hubbell, and on Wednesday, the 5th inst., about noon, arrived at "Dutch Charlie's," twenty miles from the Lake. They thought by driving in the evening they would be able to get through that day, and so started out. Towards the middle of the afternoon, it commenced to rain and grow cold. Darkness set in early, and seeing the prospect dubious of getting through that night, they stopped, chained their cattle to the wagon, spread their blankets under it, and lay down for the night. Their feet being wet, they took off their boots. In the morning the weather was severely cold, and when they awoke they found their feet frozen so that they could not get their boots on. Becoming alarmed, they tore up the blankets, and wrapped them around their feet, and leaving their cattle chained to the wagon, started back to Dutch Charlie's. They found it difficult getting along with their feet frozen, and bundled up, and young Pay's hands were so benumbed with cold that he could not properly wrap up his feet, and so suffered intensely. He fainted away when about five miles out, and his companion was obliged to leave him and hobble on after assistance. A few hours after, a party of trappers went out and brought him to Dutch Charlie's, from which place he was conveyed home on Tuesday last. He has been under the care of Dr. Wickersham, and is now doing very well.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.—The Association of teachers in this county will hold an institute in this place, commencing on Monday next, under the direction of Superintendent Wilcox. The services of Prof Phelps of Winona, have been secured for the term, and no pains spared to make it an interesting occasion. We trust the teachers in the county will view this meeting as having an important bearing on our educational interests, and not neglect it It would be rather humiliating to have Prof Phelps come here and find less than a dozen teachers present, and no interest manifested. This first session of our teachers can be made a very profitable one to all who will take part in it.

NOTICE—To the local Agents of the Blue Earth County Bible Society :

The County Anniversary will be held at Mankato, Sunday April 30th, and it is very desirable that we have reports from all the local agent as soon as the 25th inst., in order to afford time for the preparation of the annual report.

JOHN N. HALL,
Secretary.

BRACKET'S BATTALLION.—This fine battallion, which has been stationed at Fort Ridgley, has been ordered to Sioux City to join Gen Sully's Indian Expedition, on the plains. We understand that a portion of the battallion will arrive in town to-morrow and remain in camp for a week or so, while the preparations for the march are being completed.

ACCIDENT.—A Mr. Payne, of Mapleton, dislocated his shoulder on Wednesday last while trying to hold an unruly horse. Dr Francis was called, but the case being a severe one, the man was obliged to come to Mankato. After much suffering to the patient, Dr Clark, succeeded in reducing the dislocation.

MILLINERY.—Mrs. Potts has just returned from the East with a beautiful stock of Millinery Goods. If the ladies would view the rich and elegant style of every article in her line, let them cast a glance at her show-windows, and their natural decision will be to have an early choice from that racy assortment. Take our advice and be in the fashion.

FRUIT TREES.—R. Goodyear advertises in another column, that he is prepared to supply parties with all kinds of fruit trees, ornamental trees and flowering plants at very low rates. He has a well-selected stock.

SCHOOL MEETING.—A school meeting for District No 1, will be held at the log school house to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, to hear the reports of the officers, and take action in regard to building a school house.

LECTURE.—U. S. Bryant, A. M., of St. Peter, will lecture before the Blue Earth County Teachers' Institute at the Presbyterian Church, in Mankato, on Wednesday evening next, the 29th inst. His subject will be "The American System of Free Graded Schools."

E. P. Freeman advertises some choice lands for sale, in another column. He pays special attention to this business, and those desiring to purchase good timber and prairie farms cannot do better than to consult him.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

A School Teachers' Institute will be held in Mankato commencing on the 17th day of April 1865. The services of Prof. W. F. Phelps have been secured for the term, and nothing will be spared to make this an interesting and profitable occasion. Teachers are expected to attend, and they will do well to bring their text books. The friends of Education are invited to be present and to use their influence to make this a well attended institute. Arrangements will be made, if possible, for gratuitous accommodations of those teachers who live out of the village

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD AGAIN RE-OPENED !

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for

Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements ; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads ; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum ; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31 26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, towit :

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and also interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,
	Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

In one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE, From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

Putnam Manufacturing Co :

GENTLEMEN ; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will no oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours.

Putnam Clothes Wringer.

The ONLY reliable self-Adjusting Wringer.

The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb-screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second.

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers.

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

AN Illustrated Catalogue, containing full description of style, and testimonials of the most eminent Musicians, as to the superior excellence of our instruments—will be sent free to any address.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an apperdage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.
GEO. A. PRINCE & CO.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A. PRINCE & Co." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FINKLE & LYON'S
SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they wil sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever! ! !

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

PLEASE CALL AND EXAMINE, OR SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!
THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for Freights and Travel.
The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the reorganization of its business.
In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.
CONNECTIONS
At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, junction with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.
TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $5.00 lower than the cost by any other line.
This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

PLOTS AND COUNTERPLOTS.

Never having a sister for a companion I had joined to an unusual extent in the hardy sports of my brothers, until I had become such a proficient that I could handle an oar or a rifle with the best of them. I was usually ready enough to exhibit my skill in such accomplishments, but now I shrank from the trial, and begged to be excused; but Edgar insisted, and unwillingly I received the piece which Frederic loaded and handed to me in silence. I paused a moment to steady my trembling hand, then took deliberate aim and fired. By some chance my shot hit the target directly in the centre.

'In the white! in the white!' shouted Harry, who had run to learn the result. 'That was well done, Grace.'

'I told you so,' said Edgar, exultingly, 'Grace, if the Beechwood Rifle Guards don't elect you an honorary member of their company they don't know how to appreciate skill, that's all. You should take a lesson of her Lawrence.' Frederic muttered something in reply, which I did not understand, as he received the rifle from my hand, but I knew it was not of his failure or my success at target shooting, that he was thinking at that moment. He reloaded the piece and leaned it against a tree.

Just then Charlie Blake came along on horseback.

'Practicing are you?' he said as he rode up and dismounted. 'I was going up to the village but must stop for one shot if you will allow me. Lend me your rifle Fred, if you are not using it.'

How it all happened after that I can hardly tell, though I was looking on at the time; but it seems that as Frederic caught up the rifle to hand it to Blake, the lock became entangled in the long grass that grew at the foot of the tree; he jerked it so hastily and carelessly in order to disentangle it, that the piece was discharged. I heard the report, saw Frederic stagger back a few paces, catch wildly at the tree for support, then fall heavily to the ground which the next moment was reddened with his blood.

I have a confused recollection of hearing screams and exclamations around me, of seeing the men gather around Frederic, raise him in their arms and bear him toward the house; of hearing his groans and seeing Harry spring from the group, throw himself on Charlie Blake's horse and dash off at full speed for the doctor. But I saw and heard all as in a dream, moveless and speechless with terror, until Ellen caught my arm and drew me toward the house, then I followed mechanically. I met my mother on the threshold, she was pale and trembling. Ellen was sobbing and Fannie screaming hysterically. Aunt Rachel alone was composed; 'The wreck of matter and the crash of worlds' would scarcely have startled her from her self posession. Indignantly ordering Fannie to hold her tongue and get out of the way, she directed them to convey Frederic to her own room, whither we all followed.

'The wound is in the side, through the heart probably,' I heard some one say, as they placed him on the bed.

'No,' said aunt Rachel who had opened his vest and placed her hand over the heart. 'It is not here; the blood comes from the shoulder. Hand me my scissors, Grace.' I obeyed the peremptory command, and inserting the sharp steel under the wristband she cut through the coat sleeve and the bloody linen beneath; laying bare the arm and exposing a frightful wound on the shoulder from which the blood was spouting in crimson jets.

'This must be checked,' she said, 'or he will bleed to death before the Doctor arrives. An artery has been severed. Lend me your handkerchief brother,' and catching the stout bandanna from my father's hand she tied it loosely above the wound, placed a smooth stick in the knot and with Phillip's aid, gradually tightened the temporary tourniquet until the rapid flow of the life-stream was checked; then she applied some simple astringent application to the wound. 'Take that extra pillow from under his head, Grace,' she said, for he had fainted from loss of blood. I obeyed and leaning over him gently laved the pale forehead with water.

'That's right,' said aunt, with an approving nod, as the dark eyes opened once more and fixed themselves earnestly on my face. 'I am glad to see you have such good control over your nerves Grace, you take it from the Wentworth side of the house, though your mother isn't particularly gifted in that respect.'

I did not deserve aunt Rachel's encomium. It was no effort of my will that steadied hand and voice that kept me from weeping and sobbing with the rest; the shock had stunned me into calmness, and I moved and acted like an automaton.

In an incredible short space of time Harry arrived, accompanied by our kind hearted and well beloved physician Dr. Willson. He commended the measures which had already been taken, and looked very grave as he examined the wound and made preparations to dress it. Mother and Fannie left the room and I would have followed them but aunt Rachel bade me remain and help prepare the bandages, in a tone that admitted of no reply. I obeyed, and stood calmly by while the Doctor probed the wound, extracted the bullet, and took up the severed artery; though every groan that forced itself from the sufferer's firm-set lips went to my very heart. When the operation was ended and my services no longer needed, I stole gently from the room and joined mother and Ellen in the hall. The doctor came out soon afterwards. I was thankful that mother asked the question which I dared not utter.

'Bad,' said the Doctor, with an ominous shake of the head, in answer to her inquiries. 'Severe wound, brachial artery severed, great effusion of blood. If fever supervenes I cannot answer for the consequences.'

I grasped the stair-railing, against which I leaned for support.

'Look at your sleeve, Grace,' said Ellen.

I glanced at it and shuddered. It was the arm which had supported Frederic's head. The loose flowing sleeve was wet and dabbled with blood and the hand was stained with the sanguine hue. The Doctor looked at me earnestly.

'There is no blood in your cheeks and lips, child, whatever there may be on your hand,' he said.

'Go and lie down my daughter.'

Declining mamma's assistance, I went up to my room. Hastily changing my dress and washing the blood stains from my hands I sat down by the open window, faint and sick with the re-action consequent on my unnatural calmness. The prospect on which I looked forth was a glorious one. It was one of those rare, golden days of Autumn when the earth seems like some over ripening fruit, rich and lucious to the very core. The sunshine permeated every object with its own mellow luster. The air was surcharged with balm, as if the very Elixir of Life had been poured out upon it. The trees flaunted in their gorgeous liveries of crimson and gold, and the soft purple mist, like folds of a bridal veil hung round the tops of the distant hills. I saw and noted every point of Nature's loveliness; but over all, turn my eyes which way I would, there swayed and surged a funeral pall, its black folds splashed and sprinkled with human blood.

I did not need to ask myself then, whether I could love Frederic Lawrence or not. That question was settled for all time.—Whether the germ of love had lain long, unsuspected in my heart and suddenly shot into maturity, or whether its creation and growth had been simultaneous, I knew not, and did not care to ask. I only felt that I loved him then, with all the strength and fervor of my nature; that life, without him, stretched before me a dreary, waste from which I shrank and dreaded to encounter. It was well for me that I knew where to turn for help in my need; the way to the mercy-seat was not an untrodden path to me, and kneeling there with tears and strong supplications I thought that his life might be spared. I rose at last, calmed and strengthened and left my chamber. As I passed the door of the sick room, aunt Rachel opened it softly and whispered,

'Come in Grace, he is asleep now and I want you to sit by him while I go into the kitchen and make some gruel. If he wakes don't let him talk; the doctor says he must be kept very quiet.'

I went in and took my place beside his bed. How deathly pale he looked; it seemed as though the fountain of life had been well nigh drained. He stirred uneasily on his pillow and murmured, 'water.' I filled a glass and held it to his lips; he drank it eagerly, and as I sat down the empty glass, opened his eyes and saw who it was bending over him.

A faint smile came into his face and he would have spoken, but I placed my finger gently on his lips and told him the doctor had forbidden conversation.

He took my hand in his; I did not withdraw it and he sank to sleep still holding it in his clasp.

His mother had been sent for without delay. She came, and could scarcely control her feelings at the state in which she found her almost idolized son. The doctor had forbidden his being moved in his present critical situation. She would have remained to nurse him, but could not on account of her invalid daughter.

'There is no need,' said aunt Rachel, in answer to her, 'there are enough of us to pay him every attention, and I promise he shall have the best of care, and beside your coming over often as possible to see him, we shall send word every night and morning how he is getting along.'

Mrs. Lawrence departed somewhat comforted by these assurances, but I think her greatest consolation was, that as she pressed my hand at parting, I whispered timidly in her ear, 'Frederic shall be my charge.'

The wound appeared to progress favorably at first, but on the third day fever set in and before night he was raving in delirium. It required strong hands and steady nerves to attend him then, for in the restlessness of fever and delirium he struggled fiercely to tear the bandages from his wounded arm. Days and nights of ceaseless anxiety followed.

Every care, every attention, was lavished upon him by the whole household, but all appeared in vain. Yet it was a secret joy to me, that in all his delirious wanderings he seemed to recognize my voice and presence, and when it required the united strength of Philip and Harry to keep him from injuring himself, the sound of my voice speaking his name, or the touch of my hand on his head, would quiet him more effectually than all their efforts. Day by day I watched the good Doctor's face to catch some ray of hope, but at every visit its expression of gravity seemed to deepen.

With pale face and closed lips I went about my daily tasks, seeking sympathy and encouragement from none, not even from my mother; only in the silence of my chamber giving way to my feelings and wrestling in prayer for that life dearer to me than my own.

Fannie had left at the first; the house of sickness was no place for her. I was glad when she was gone. I could not have borne her senseless rattle at such a time. Kind neighbors came in with offers of assistance. There were ominous looks and forboding whispers around the sick bed.

'He cannot recover,' said they all.

'He will not die,' I said to my trembling heart, 'God is merciful, and my prayers shall hold him back from the grave.'

At length there came a change. After a more than usually restless night he sank into a profound slumber which lasted some hours. He awoke rational, and apparently free from fever, and pronounced my name with a faint smile on his lips as I bent over him to give him drink. He will live, I thought, and my heart gave a great throb of joy, but aunt Rachel's looks checked my exultation.

'Don't you know Grace,' she whispered,' that sick folks often regain their senses and are free from pain just before their death? I fear he is sinking fast.'

The burden, partially lifted from my heart, sank down again with crushing weight. 'Send for the Doctor at once,' I said, and it was done. Before he arrived Frederic had sank to sleep again.

I was alone with him in the room when the physician entered. With an anxiety so intense that it suspended my very breathing, I watched him as he took the sleeper's wrist to count the pulse, timing the heart strokes by his gold watch, I saw the glad light break into his countenance and knew the verdict, even before he spoke.

'Saved,' he said joyfully. 'God be praised, there is no sign of sinking here; the pulse is even though feeble; a strong constitution has triumphed at last, and now, with careful nursing, he is sure to recover.'

'Saved!' echoed my heart. 'God be praised, indeed, for he has given him back in answer to my prayers!'

But the bow had been bent too long and was relaxed too suddenly. With the lifting of that heart weight came a sense of dizziness and pain; the room swam before my eyes and I knew nothing more till I found myself on the lounge with the Doctor bending over me and sprinkling water in my face.

'You are better now,' he said, as I opened my eyes and my pale face reddened with blushes for I saw in his eyes that he read my secret. 'You are worn out my little girl,' he said kindly, 'with so much watching and worrying. If you don't take better care of yourself I shall have you on my hands soon, and I don't want another patient here, not even such an interesting one as yourself.'

How fervently and with what a grateful heart did I join in the thanksgiving prayer which my father offered that evening.—Frederic's convalescence was sure, but very slow. One afternoon I entered his room with a bouquet and a small basket of mosses in my hand.

Placing the basket on the window seat I proceeded to arrange my treasures of bright-hued flowers, delicate maiden ferns, and richly tinted autumn leaves, in a vase that sat on the table.—Frederic watched me for awhile.

'I am sorry Grace,' he said at last, in an irritable tone, 'that you should take so much trouble for me. You are so chary of your company that I am loth to have you expend either time or taste for my gratification.' I smiled, just a little quiet smile to myself, without answering him, for I knew the cause of his petulance. It was the first time I had entered his room, except when some of the family were present, since he had been pronounced out of danger, and I knew that he secretly resented my conduct.

'Isn't it beautiful?' I said, holding up the vase so that the artistic arrangement of colors should strike his eye.

'Very beautiful,' he replied, 'but it gives me no pleasure,' and he turned wearily on his pillow. 'Poor child!' thought I, 'is it cross and won't be pleased with its playthings?' but I said quietly, 'I am sorry you do not like it. —Have the California company started on their journey yet?' he asked, after a pause. 'Yes, they left week before last. It is the middle of October now, you know.' 'Gone, have they? and left me behind lying here, almost as helpless as an unconscious babe. Well, if ever health and strength return, I will soon be on their track.' 'What are you going to California for, Frederic?' I said, turning upon him suddenly. 'What for? to get away from here, forever.'

Why do wish to get away from here? Have you no ties to bind you to home? Do you not love your mother and Lucy?'—'Dearly as ever mother and sister were loved, but they can better do without me than I can remain with them,' 'But why should you leave them?, Why,' and he started up almost fiercely, 'You know the reason Grace; why do you torture me with questions?' His eyes flashed, and the color crimsoned his pale face. My lips quivered a little, but I kept back the tears; even his anger gave me more pleasure than pain for was it not evidence of my power over him? I sat with down cast eyes idly twining a flower stem around my fingers; then I looked up and earnestly regarded Frederic for a moment. He lay on the lounge, to which he had been removed, bolstered up with pillars, his face pale and emaciated from sickness, yet still strikingly handsome; the dark rose curls clustering around his forehead, made it still paler by contrast. His lips were firmly set, as though to keep back the words that struggled for utterance, and through the folds of his dressing gown, I could see the quick beating of his heart. I rose gathered up the refuse leaves and twigs in my apron, threw them into the fire-place, and turned to leave the room.

His eyes followed my motions, but he did not speak. My hand was already on the latch when a sudden revolution of feeling made me turn and approach his couch. 'Can nothing induce you to give up this California scheme, Frederic?' I said. 'But one thing, Grace, and that I may not even hope for.' 'Is it this, Frederic?' and I laid my hand quietly in his.—He clasped my hand and gazed earnestly in my face. What he read there I know not, but the next moment, with a strength which I had not giving him credit for, he drew my head down to his bosom. 'Let me go now, or I will not visit you again for a fortnight' I said, struggling to escape from his embrace. 'Go then, if you will,' he said, releasing me, but remember, you are mine now.' When the Dr, made his next visit he found his patient wonderfully improved, and marvelled at the sudden amendment. The improvement continued, but the snow flakes had begun to fall ere Frederic was able to go out once more.—The next spring he took his degree as M. D., and shortly after I wrote to Ruth Brown to come up and act as my bride's maid.—She complied, and her own wedding took place the week after mine. I have been a wife three years—years of such unalloyed happiness as seldom falls to the lot of mortals.

It was but the other day that I stood playing with my baby boy, by the desk where his father was engaged in writing. —As I took one article after another from the desk, and held it up for baby's inspection, I discovered a small box of curious workmanship, which I had never before observed. On pressing the spring it opened and disclosed the contents, only a withered flower. By the faint fragrance still lingering around, I recognized it as a water-lily. 'Where did you get this, Fred?' and why is it so carefully preserved?' I asked.—'Don't you recognize it, Grace?' 'Have you forgotten the evening when I took it from your hair?' 'I remember it now, and you have kept it ever since, husband, mine?' 'Yes, I kept it as a memento of the foolish girl who didn't know her own mind, and who, if Providence had not interposed in the shape of a bullet in my shoulder, would have let me go to California, in a fit of desperation, to meet my fate there, while she remained at home, and discovering too late, that she really loved me, after all, would probably have pined away and died of a broken heart.' 'Dr. Lawrence you are simply ridiculous.'

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—"Grandmother's story is the significant title of the handsome and expressive steel engraving of the April number of the Lady's Friend. The story attached to it, by Bella Z. Spencer, explains the significance of the engraving. Then we have the usual richly colored double steel Fashion Plate. Then a variety of other engravings of the fashions, work table, &c. Then for music, a song, I built a Bridge of Fancies. Then the usual amount of literary matter, including Lavinia's Education, by Julia Gill: A Story of a household, by Mrs. Hosmer; Larry O Leary's Ghost, by Emma M. Johnston; Two Kisses, by Ida Mason; An Every-day Story, by Leslie Walter; Four Birthdays, by Frances Lee; The Statue in the Block, by Beatrice Colonna; Novelties for April, Editor's Department, New Books, Receipts, Fashions, &c. &c. Price $2 50; 2 copies $4.00; 9 copies $16 00. 21 copies $35. 00. Specimen numbers will be sent to those desirous of making up clubs for 15cts. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as premiums. Address Deacon & Peterson 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia. Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

THE PACIFIC MONTHLY.—We are much pleased with the appearance and literary contents of this new monthly magazine. We see Messrs. GAZLAY & Co. are gentlemen of the right metal, and know how to conduct a periodical of this character. One great feature of this monthly magazine is, every subscriber obtains a present of an article of Jewelry, which could not be obtained at any retail store for less than from five to ten dollars. This is a novel and paying way of building up a quick and successful subscription list. The Pacific Monthly alone is well worth the price of subscription, and when the proprietors offer such additional inducements to subscribers, it is bound to succeed. Their enterprise should be sustained.

Lincoln in Richmond.

Raymond rebukes the President for going "to the front" and entering Richmond:

Mr. Lincoln's life may be of no special value to himself, and of no more value to others, considered merely in his personal relations, than that of any other man. But his official position makes it of special value to the country, and he has no right to put it at the mercy of any lingering desperado in Richmond, or of any stray bullet in the field, unless some special services can be rendered by his personal presence.

The Times argues that his "taking off might throw our whole political organization into hopeless and needless confusion"—or in other words, into a state of "incoherency."

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn., Friday April 21, 1865.

APOLOGY.—In consequence of the lengthy tax list which we are obliged to publish in this issue, we are unable to give any of the recent important news of the murder of the President. No one regrets this more than ourselves. Our outside was made up before the news was received, and we could make no change in that. As our town readers have probably read the facts in regard to the murder of the President, we send to our country subscribers, in supplement form, the full details. For tax list of Watonwan county, see supplement No. 2

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN AND ATTEMPTED MURDER OF WM. H. SEWARD.

We little thought when we clothed our paper last week in the habiliments of joy and gladness, over the downfall of the rebellion, that we should so soon put on mourning garments. But a great calamity has befallen our nation, and the American people have been suddenly called to mourn the loss of their Chief Magistrate—a great and good man, Abraham Lincoln—by the hand of a cowardly assassin, and it well befits us to weep tears of sorrow. The President was shot by J. W. Booth, while sitting in his private box with his wife in Ford's Theatre, on Friday night last. Secretary Seward was attacked, in his bed room, about the same time, and received serious injuries. His son was also severely wounded. The President died Saturday morning.

Mr. Seward and his son will probably recover. A man named Surrat, supposed to be the assassin of the Secretary has been arrested.

V[illegible]uable Lands for Sale.

[illegible] direction of the Honorable Secretary of [illegible] Interior, the undersigned will receive [illegible] bids for the purchase of any or all of [illegible] lands hereinafter described, they being [illegible] the choicest and best farming lands in [illegible]innesota.

These lands compri[illegible] what are known as [illegible] Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved Feburary 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent. on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J W Powell and Rhoda E. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858 at 2 o'clock P M in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 198 which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1869, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761 80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty six Cents (31 26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862 duly and assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D 1862 in book "E" of Mortgages, on page 177 and the said Peter R Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now therefore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23) and the South-east quarter of the South east quarter and the south half of the South west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22), in Township numbered one hundred and five (105), North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register of Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth in Mankato in said county on the 24th day of May A. D. 1865, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate upon the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell. Within the past two years, instruments constructed on this European plan of "double bellows," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell), a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operate by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficiency.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for them. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr Swain's Bitters having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

PLEASE CALL AND EXAMINE, OR SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday April 28, 1865.

GEN. LEE TO BE THE PRESIDENT'S COUNSELLOR.

In a late number of the Pioneer, the organ of the Copperhead democracy of the State, published just before the death of the President, the editor gives utterance to one of the most attrocious propositions that it has ever been our misfortune to meet with. It throws into the shade every disloyal utterance heretofore published by any copperhead sheet that has come under our observation. It is nothing less than the proposal to the President to take General Lee into his councils and confidence, and settle the rebellion as he may advise,—a proposition at which every loyal heart instinctively revolts, and one that could never be made by any man who was not at heart, a traitor. What! After all our expenditure of blood—of thousands of lives, any one of which was worth ten thousand lives of such traitors as Lee, and he, the leader of the rebellion, the murderer of our patriot heroes, is to dictate the terms of settlement, and to be backed by the Pioneer man and his crew. Lee, Hardee, Bragg, Johnson & Co., would of course be restored to the place in the army of that country which they had deserted and betrayed. Davis, Mason, Slidell, Benjamin & Co., would go back to the United States Senate, and with the aid of these friends of Copperhead democracy, would again go into power and those men, who, in the hour of their country's need, threw themselves into the breach, with strong arms and stout hearts, beat back and overwhelmed the red-handed traitors who were seeking to destroy it, would have to take a back seat.

It may be possible even, for a traitor like Lee, to be possessed of some virtues, although at present we are not prepared to admit the fact, but can it ever be forgotten that he was educated at the expense of the Government, in the trust that when the hour of danger came, and the country should be assailed by foreign or domestic foes, that he would use the knowledge that he had thus acquired, in its defense. This he had sworn before his God to do. How did he perform his trust, and how did he keep that oath? When the hour of danger and trial came he betrayed both his country and his God, and became the leader of the dastard traitors who sought their country's life. He was the leader of the most fiendish band of desperadoes that have disgraced modern civilization. Even the barbarity of the Sioux Indians pales before the savage cruelty of Lee and his brutal followers. The cruelty of the Sioux to his hapless victim is enough to curdle the blood at the recital of the tale, yet the starving of their victims to death is a refinement of cruelty to which the Sioux has never yet attained. It is needless to deny that Lee is as much responsible for starving our prisoners as Davis himself, for had he gone to Davis and said, "Sir, you must not make barbarians of me and my army. You must permit us to carry on a civilized warfare, and not starve to death the prisoners we take. You must feed and shelter them." We know that Davis would have been forced to yield, and that thousands of our patriot heroes whose emaciated bodies now lie in the half dug grave made by their murderers, would have lived for their country and their families. It is useless to deny it, he stands to day a convicted traitor, and a murderer in the sight of God and man, and we regret the necessity that has, perhaps, secured to him the possession of his forfeited life, or rather that he is to be permitted to live in, and enjoy the protection of, that country which he has betrayed and sought to destroy.

GEN. JOHNSTON'S SURRENDER.

Gen. Johnston has surrendered his army to Sherman, and the terms granted him are so different from those accorded to Gen. Lee, by Grant, that we are surprised. The conditions in brief, are that the confederate army is to be disbanded, and to deposit their arms in the State arsenal, and to cease all acts of war. The recognition by the President, of their several State governments, and that he is not to disturb any of the people, by reason of the late war so long as they remain at home in peace and quiet, and to be guaranteed in their political rights and franchises.

The terms were promptly disapproved of by President Johnson, for several reasons. First, Because it was an exercise of authority not vested in Sherman; it was an acknowledgement of the rebel government; it would re-establish rebel State governments that had been overthrown; it gave terms that had been rejected by Mr. Lincoln; and it formed no basis of true and lasting peace.

Sherman has certainly made a great mistake. He has assumed powers that did not belong to him. From the manner in which he has conducted his splended campaign up to the present time we were led to believe that he was almost infallible, and looked upon him as one of our greatest generals. But he has suddenly fallen from a great height, and unless he can satisfactorily explain his course of action, he will be forever disgraced.

THE NEWS.

The details of the death and funeral obsequies of our late President has been the principal feature of the telegraph dispatches this week. The funeral ceremonies were conducted on a magnificent scale, and the assemblage was the largest ever known in this country. In every town, city, village, and hamlet in the loyal States, respect has been paid to the memory of Mr. Lincoln.

Secretary Seward and son are improving in health, and are able to sit up.

The man who attempted to kill Mr. Seward has been arrested disguised as a common laborer. Booth, the murderer of the President, has not been arrested. A reward of $100,000 has been offered for his apprehension. That will probably lead to his discovery before many days.

President Johnson has appointed the 25th of May, as a day of mourning and fasting.

SUCCESS OF THE 7-30 LOAN.

Our readers will notice that subscriptions to the popular 7-30 Loan are still continued in the most liberal manner.

To the Old World the success of these Peoples' Loans is one of the wonders of a Republic. The Government does not seek to borrow in foreign markets; it offers no premiums to bankers, but appeals directly to the people, and with what success is sufficiently shown by the fact that during Forty-three days they subscribed and paid the cash down for one hundred and sixty-one million dollars of the 7-30 Loan. There can be no stronger evidence of public confidence in Government securities. While nearly all other stocks have gone down from twenty to fifty, and even a greater per cent. within a few weeks, all forms of U. S. bonds and stocks have remained firm except the slight fluctuations that are incident to all rapid changes in the money market. Our readers will remember that the subscribers to the 7-30 Loan receive semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three tenths per cent, per annum in currency, and at the end of three years from June 15th 1865, they will have the option of receiving payment in full, or converting their notes into a 5-20 six per cent. gold interest bond. The late great decline in the premium on gold makes these notes more desirable than ever as an investment, and it should not be forgotten that their exemptions from state or municipal taxation adds largely to their value. There is no interruption in the receipt of subsciptions or the delivery of the notes. All banks, bankers, and all others acting as Loan Agents, will pay subscribers the interest in advance from the day of subscription until June 15th.

Spiritualism Run Mad in Chicago.

A spiritualistic "medium" delivered a harangue in Chicago on Sunday evening last, to a crowd of credulous fools, in which she pretended to describe the entrance of ABRAHAM LINCOLN into the world of spirits. The Post says:

> On Saturday morning a "circle" was held at the residence of one of the spiritualist in this city, where a "medium" edified the company by describing how the late President was received by the dwellers in the other world, and the joy they expressed upon his arrival. An hour or two after Mr. Lincoln's arrival there, the medium stated Mr. Seward also arrived and was greeted by Mr. Lincoln, who shook him by the hand, and then introduced him to his new companions.

The story of the "medium" was predicated on a report of Mr. Seward's death, which was subsequently contradicted. It is wonderful that such a miserable imposture can have any followers in a civilized country.—Pioneer

THE VALLEY RAILROAD.—We learn from the Shakopee Argus, that the work upon this road from Mendota to Shakopee is progressing finely; several parties have already commenced work at Credit river and below there, and all are confident that the cars will run from St. Paul to Shakopee by next September.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

DOG LICENSES.—We have just printed a supply of blank dog licenses in a neat and convenient form, for the use of town clerks. Price, per dozen twenty five cents.

NOTICE.—We will supply Harpers magazine and weekly in connection with our own paper, at reduced rates.

MEETING OF PRESBYTERY.—We are requested to announce that the Dakota Presbytery will meet in the Presbyterian Church, Mankato, on Tuesday evening, May 2d.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.—The Republicans and Union men of the village of Mankato will meet in caucus at City Hall, Saturday the 29th inst., at 4 o'clock P. M.; to place in nomination three trustees, one clerk, one treasurer and one marshal, to be voted for at the village election on Tuesday, the 2d of May, 1865, By order of committee.

C. H. SLOCUM, Chairman.

PERSONAL.—Our excellent friend C. B. Thurston, returned home Wednesday from St Louis, where he has been spending the winter, and was warmly welcomed by his many friends. He is enjoying good health and has not 'spoiled' in the least by living South.

GODEY FOR MAY.—We acknowledge the receipt of the May number of the Lady's Book. It is a very excellent number, containing a beautiful steel plate engraving, a double fashion plate, and several pages of other fashion plates and new styles of embroidery. Godey gets up the best magazine in the nation and it is the favorite with the ladies.

We continue to receive subscriptions at $2,50 per year in connection with the Union.

A private letter received by Robt Wardlaw, from U. S. Karmony, states that he is now at Camp Fisk near Vicksburg, and enjoying good health.

He was a prisoner at Belle Isle and Andersonville for eighteen months, and suffered all the horrors of a southern prison, His many friends here will be glad to learn of his whereabouts.

OUR tax list so takes up our space and material that we are unable to give but little reading matter, We intended to publish a news supplement but find we have not type enough left to set up half a column. This, we trust, will be satisfactory to our numerous readers, and to the many correspondents who have favored us with articles the past week.

DISCHARGED.—In accordance with instructions from the war Department, T. M. Pugh, Provost Marshal for this county, was discharged from the service this week, there being no further buisness for officers of that class. Capt Allen in his letter says, that Mr. Pugh has discharged his duties faithfully, and proved a worthy and efficient officer.' To this we add, that he has given general satisfaction to all our citizens. Good bye, Thomas, we wish you well, in all your future undertakings.

CITY HALL BUILDING —Mr. Meagher is now fitting up this building preparaing to removing his large stock of goods into it, which he will do next week.

He has made arrangements for an extensive trade this season, by purchasing an immense stock of goods, and has everything that one needs in his line.

He has received two of Case's celebrated threshing machines, which he has for sale, and his large stock of stoves, tin ware, and notions of all kinds will be sure to bring many new customers.

He has a good supply of baby carriages, to which he invites his lady friends.

INSURANCE.—The General Agent of the Aetna Life Insurance company Mr. F. Day has been in town for the past few days, on buisness connected with his company and has already received quite a number of applications for insurence from our citizens. Mr. Day represents, one of the best of companies and we can confidently recommend our citizens to insure with him. Considering the great uncertainties of human life, a small investment in a Life Insurance company, may be productive of the greatest benefit to the family or families of any one who may be suddenly taken away, Mr. Day has appointed Mr. E. P. Freeman as local agent for this vicinity who will make a good agent for the Aetna company.

GARDEN CITY TOWN MEETING.—Mr. Editor, I suppose your readers are generally interested in the welfare of different towns throughout the county and as to how our town meeting pased off on Tuesday last. So I would say through the columns of the Union that we had an unusual quiet day, Only 42 votes were polled and yet we have some over one hundred votes in town. Only one ticket was in the field, the Union which was succesful of course and all the officers elected are Republicans except the constable. The following are the town officers for the ensuing year.

Supervisors, G. S. Heaton Chm. H. B. Johnson L, Porter. Town clerk S. C. Wellcome, Treasurer J. M. Thompson, Assessor G. W. Lamberton, Constable, Wm. J. Smith.

DENTISTRY.—We call attention to the card of Dr. Butts, elsewhere. He is permanently located here, and has opened rooms in the Clifton House. We are glad to state that he is meeting with good success, and his business is increasing. Those for whom he has done work speak of him as a superior dentist, and say that he gives satisfaction. Give him a call.

RIVER NEWS.—Business on our levee has been quite brisk the past week. The Steamers, Albany, Ariel, Mankato, Otter, Stella Whipple, and Lansing have made trips to this place heavily loaded with freight and taking away large cargoes of wheat, The river is falling slowly.

REMOVAL.—Jason F. Wickersham has removed his stock of drugs and medicines from City Hall Building to the room, recently occupied by E H. Smith's bank. He has fitted it up in good shape and will be pleased to see his old customers and all new ones who may favor him with their patronage. He has recently received a fresh stock of drugs and medicines, which he is selling at less than usual prices.

LIEUT. T. J. QUAYLE.—We were pleased to meet with this gentleman this week, on his way to Garden City. Lieut Quayle enlisted as a private in Company H, 2d Regiment, in 1861, and was promoted to 2nd Lieutenant in June, 1863, we believe and was a brave and faithful officer. At the battle of Missionary Ridge he was wounded in the left knee, and since that time has been unable to do active duty. About two months since he was honorably discharged for disability, and has now returned home, bringing with him a wife—an accomplished lady from Western New York.

ACCIDENT.—A son of A. T. Noble had his left arm broken by a fall on Tuesday last. Dr. Clarke attended and set the broken limb.

THE SHERIFFALTY.—A communication elsewhere recommends our old townsman W. J. Martin, now Sargeant in Co. E, 9th Regiment, for Sheriff of this county next fall. The suggestions made are good, and we publish the communication that our readers may know the wishes of our "boys in blue."

THE ELECTION.—Next Tuesday our village election takes place, and will be held at E. P. Freeman's office. We trust that Republicans and Union men will not neglect their duty, but go to the polls and vote for men who are interested in the improvement of our town. It is important that true men be elected.

NEW GOODS —Nearly all our merchants have received their new goods, and those who have not, expect them every day. Whoever goes out "shopping," cannot fail to be pleased with the endless variety of beautiful and choice summer goods that on every counter greet the eye. The last greenback is sure to be spent, and the long-drawn sighs plainly indicate that either the "purse strings" are held too tight by the "lord of the manor," or else the purse is not deep enough. A call on Mrs Potts, and wife must have a new bonnet of the Sheridan style of course, or else it would not be in the fashion, and Mrs. Juniper and Mrs. Jollop would declare that she was "lowborn," and belonged to the "common class." One never gets tired admiring the different varieties of flowers, trimmings, ribbons, and latest styles of Misses' hats. Dear me what an effect the sight of these things does have upon the ladies. How they do chatter, chatter.

Regardful of the wants of the inner man, A. T. Williams has received a supply of fresh groceries such as teas, coffee, and sugars, canned and dried fruit and is never so happy as when waiting upon customers. His goods are of the best, and prices very low.

Finch & Thurston are still in the field, with a new stock just received by the steamer Otter. With groceries of the best quality, and prices very low, they are bound to sell, and please their customers. "Quick sales and small profits" is their motto

Lewis & Frisbie, druggists, have recieved a very large stock, and have something new under the sun. The ladies will be interested in knowing that no where else can such beautiful work baskets be found as at their establishment. Perfumery and toilet articles, and all kinds of notions help to swell the list. Their stock of drugs is fresh and pure, and are warranted to cure any disease the human flesh is heir to. They have a good supply of oils, paints, and white lead, and those intending to paint their houses, will know just where to go for the article.

H. P. Christensen & Bro.'s have received their new and well selected stock of dry goods and groceries. They have taken great pains to purchase a good assortment, and are confident that they can please their customers. Ladies' fine dress goods, beautiful summer shawls, prints, sheetings, shirtings, clothing, boots and shoes, hats and caps, and all kinds of groceries, comprise in part their immense stock. They are bound not to be undersold.

Randall & Smith will receive their stock of clothing this week.

Bradley Brothers have also received a large stock of dry goods and groceries, which are worthy of inspection.

Charlie Heinze desires us to call attention to his stock of goods. He has a large supply of willow baskets, of all sizes, and a goodly number of baby carriages, which he is selling rapidly.

Gen. Jones, in the saddler shop, with a new stock of material, is prepared to do work in a superior manner

Prael & DuBuison in their store-room, are opening a large and varied assortment of dry goods, millinery goods, clothing, groceries, confectioneries, notions, etc. In your "shopping" excursions, reader, do not fail to see their new stock.

White & Marks have an immense stock of goods, which were bought at 'panic prices,' at consequently they are able to sell them low. Their stock is complete, and embraces dry goods, hats, caps, ladies hats, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries and a large supply of crockery and glassware. They invite their friends to examine their stock and are confident, that after doing so none will hesitate to buy Their definition of the term "panic prices" is, to give you all the goods you want, and take what money you have got. Give them a call and you will get your money's worth.

J. J. Shaubut has received his spring stock and has marked his prices very low. Give him a call

In the hardware line, we refer our readers to Messrs. Sparrow & Co. Mr. S. has just returned from the East, where he purchased a large stock of stoves, tin ware, agricultural implements, mechanic's tools, &c., and is prepared to wait upon customers and give them good bargains.

LETTER FROM COMPANY E, NINTH REGIMENT.

WASHINGTON GEN'L HOSPITAL,
MEMPHIS, TENN, April, 5th, 1865.

Editor Mankato Union :

Perhaps a few lines from the hospital squad of Company E, might not be amiss, as our company is represented here by Sergeants Martin and Davis, and Privates Hensly, Cummings, and Douglas; and there are also several members of the 9th belonging to other companies in this receptacle for sick soldiers. We were landed here the 11th of February, and in general terms doing as well as we could expect. Last evening we received the news of the fall of Richmond and the glorious victories of our brave boys in the previous three days battles before that city. I will not attempt to describe the joy of all our brave Minnesota boys, but leave you to judge by your own feelings at home. A salute of 100 guns was fired at Fort Pickering and illuminations and fireworks were the order of the night.

We get occasional glimpses of political affairs at home, and while in camp I took some pains to obtain the sentiments of the members of company E, on the choice of a candidate for Sheriff of Blue Earth County to be chosen, I believe at the next general election, I found the sentiment almost entirely in favor of Sergt. W. J. Martin, and I would respectfully suggest that no better qualified man for the office can be found who resides in the county. He stands high in the esteem of all who have served with him in the field. His whole character for bravery, efficiency and gentlemanly bearing is unquestioned in the company and regiment. I believe every soldier that is now or will be in the county at the next election, will support him, and I suppose you are aware that soldiers are pretty good to hang together, especially when there is a show for a fight of any kind. I throw out these suggestions because I wish to see a brave comrade rewarded for a portion at least of sacrifices and privations that every faithful soldier must encounter in the service of his country. I hope the citizens will look on these suggestions with favor and be prepared to show their appreciation of his services and many good qualities on his return to Mankato. I believe Sergt. Martin served as Deputy for Mr. Tyner, for two years, with entire satisfaction to his principal, and to the people of Blue Earth county. You can consider these suggestions at what they are worth, and I take leave of the subject by leaving this letter entirely at your disposal to publish any part or all, or none as you may deem proper.

S. H. Hensly and H. Cummins have been transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps, and will soon be on their way to Springfield, Ills. The boys all send greeting to all friends at home.

Very respectfully, yours,
A. P. DAVIES.
Sergt. Company E.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved Feburary 31st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shal. fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

SEWING MACHINES.

These Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do: will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever! ! !

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

JAY COOKE,

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession, are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31.26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, towit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, Minn March 31, 1865.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,
☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.
☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE, From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved Feburary 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent. on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

THE INDIAN MURDERS.

We give a full account of the murder of Mr. Jewett's family by Indians, and the capture by Mr. Dodge, and trial, and hanging by the people, of a half-breed Sioux, named John Campbell. Our order and law-abiding people have, for the first time, given away to mob law. While we look upon the proceedings of Wednesday with regret, and consider them hasty, we believe the Indian was guilty, and richly deserved the punishment he received. But the jury recommended that he be tried before the District Court, and it would have been better for us in the opinion of the people abroad, had they acquiesced in that recommendation. The deed is done, and its effects, sooner or later, will be felt. Had General Sibley evinced any anxiety for the safety of settlers, and made arrangements to afford them ample protection, had he pursued a less lenient policy in his past treatment of Indian prisoners, our people would have had confidence in his willingness and determination to mete out justice, and would have placed this prisoner in his keeping. But they had no confidence in him, and were determined to take the law into their own hands, and inflict punishment before he had time to send for him. Allowance must be made for this show of mob law under such a state of feeling. Primarily, we hold General Sibley responsible for the deeds committed Wednesday by an excited and indignant people.

Our limited space forbids further comment this week. But more anon.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BLUE EARTH CO. AGRICULTUREL SOCIETY.—The Executive Committee of B. E. C. A. S. met April 15, 1865 at the office of Dr. Clark, in Mankato. Present, the President, Finch, Miller, Meade, Buck, Clark, and Shaubut.

The Committee on Premium List made their report, which was amended and adopted. M. T. C. Flower was admitted a member. Propositions, for holding the Fair were received from the citizens of Garden City, Shellyville, and from Mr. Mills, each offering to furnish grounds and buildings free of expense, to the Society. Garden City was selected as the place for holding the next Fair.

Messrs Shaubut, Miller and Finch, were selected as a Committee to locate permanent Fair Grounds. The judges for the ensuing Fair were then selected.

D. H. Tyner was appointed assistant Marshal, and J. H. Ray, Clerk. Daniel Buck was chosen to superintend the printing of Premium List and Posters.

Wednesday Septumber, 27th. 1865, was designated as the time for holding the next annual Fair.

The Corresponding Secretary was authorized to procure chickery seed for the use of the Society.

The President and Corresponding Secretary were autherized to arrange the programme for the Fair.

The President, Marshal, and Assistant Marshal were instructed to see that the grounds and buildings are properly prepared for the Fair.

Ordered that the proceedings be published in the county papers.

RIVER NEWS.—The river has been falling until the recent rain, and it is now about stationary, with barely water sufficient to float the large boats. The steamer Julia, commanded by Capt. Jack Reaney, arrived Sunday last, bringing a heavy freight. She took away 1200 sacks of wheat, the largest amount that has been taken away from here at any one time. The Julia is a new boat, brought up from the lower Mississippi, expressly for this trade.

She is well fitted up, has a spacious cabin, and good state room accommodations, for sixty passengers. She is 140 feet long, and draws only 17 inches of water when loaded. The Captain, whom everybody knows to be thoroughly versed in Steamboat matters, and who is a great favorite with the traveling public, knows how to "run a steamboat' on 'general principles,' Long may he wave.

The Mankato on her last trip up, ran on to a snag when about five miles below town, and broke her rudder. It only caused a delay of several hours.

The Ariel and Albany have also made trips this week.

J. TRAVIS ROSSER.—Of this gentleman, whom our readers will remember as having formerly been a resident of this place, the Pioneer says: "We learn by a private letter that Gov. Ramsey, during his recent visit to Richmond, was informed that J. Travis Rosser, formerly Secretary of the Territory of Minnesota, died in Richmond about two weeks before our forces took possession.

ANOTHER INDIAN RAID!

STARTLING INTELLIGENCE.

A Whole Family Murdered by Indians!

Nine Bands of Indians on the War Path.

Mankato to be Attacked!

A Sioux Captured Tried and Hung!

We devote the greater portion of our paper this week, to the important Indian news which will be found below. In twenty minutes from the time the news first arrived in town we issued the following extra from the UNION office.

TUESDAY, MAY 2—2 P. M.

A messenger arrived in town this P. M. with the startling news that A. J. Jewett, and his entire family consisting of his wife, son and aged father and mother, were murdered by Indians this morning.

Mr. Jewett lives on the east side of the Blue Earth River, near the Rapids. Mr. Harlow heard heavy firing in that vicinity early this morning, but thought it nothing out of the way. After breakfast, he went over to borrow Mr. Jewett's wagon, and found him and his son dead in the garden, and the rest of the family dead, in the house, lying on the floor.

Six Indians were seen in the vicinity of Shelbyville yesterday, and it is conjectured that they are the ones that committed this wholesale murder.

A party of our citizens, fully armed, have started in pursuit of the red devils.

THE PARTICULARS.

We visited Garden City late Tuesday night to which place the dead bodies of the murdered family had been taken, for the purpose of getting the full particulars of this sad affair, and get them as correct as possible.

The first that was seen of Indians was on Monday, in the vicinity of Shelbyville. They evidently came through the frontier lines by way of Willow Creek, and followed down on the east side of the Blue Earth river. They stole two horses and the neighbors pursued them, and pressed them so close that they let one of the horses go.

As there is no one left tell the story of how the Indians entered Mr. Jewett's house, we have to judge a great deal from the position of things in the house some three hours after the murders were committed.

Mr. Jewett's farm is on the reservation, five miles from Garden City. The house is built of logs, and has two doors, one on the north and the other on the east side. It was about half past six in the morning that the Indians approached the house and entered by the east door. The family had just got through breakfast. A. J. Jewett ran out doors into the garden in the direction of a ravine on the north side of the house where the hired man, Charles Tyler, was at work. An Indian fired upon him when about four rods from the house, the ball striking him in the breast. From the appearance of the ground where he fell, it is thought he was not killed by the shot, as it passed to the right of the heart. A struggle took place between them as the blow which killed him was inflicted by a tomahawk over the right eye, which fractured the skull. His wife snatched up her little boy, about two years old, and ran out doors along a path leading to one of the neighbors. She was shot when about 8 rods from the house, the ball entering close to the heart. There were no other injuries found upon her person. About ten feet to the right, lay the little child, insensible. It had received a severe blow just forward of and upon the left ear, dealt by a war club or the breech of a gun.

The hired man Mr. Tyler, aged about twenty years, was at work in a ravine, north of the house, and distant about twenty rods. He was shot by a rifle ball. In the breast, about an inch below where the ball entered was a buck-shot wound, and about the same distance above an arrow was sticking in his breast. When found he was lying on his back in a pool of water.

Mark Jewett, the old gentleman, had apparently just moved back from the table. An Indian shot him, the ball entering the forehead, and coming out near the crown of the head. This did not kill him. He fell to the floor, and one of the savages struck him on the head two fearful blows with a tomahawk one of them making a gash five inches in length, and extending from the top of the head to near the right ear; the other gash was an inch forward of the first three inches in length. Both of these cut deep into the brain, which was slowly oozing out, and running on the floor. He was lying near the table when found, alive, but unable to move. He could talk, some. He said there were five or six Indians in the party, and that they were dressed in Indian costume, and armed with guns and arrows. He endeavored to tell more about them, but they could not make out what he said. Wednesday morning he was still alive.

Mrs. Susan Jewett, the old lady, was killed by a tomahawk while in bed. She was in feeble health, and not expected to live long. She had on her night dress. The savages approached the bed, and one of them struck her with the back of his tomahawk, on her forehead, just over the nose. That portion of the forehead was all smashed in. On the top, and to the right of her forehead was another frightful cut, made with the blade of a tomahawk. She was killed instantly.

WHEN THE BODIES WERE FOUND.

Mr. Harlow, the nearest neighbor, says that he heard the firing of guns in the direction of Mr. Jewett's house, about six o'clock in the morning, but thought it nothing out of the way, as persons were hunting in the woods nearly every day. About eight o'clock he had occasion to use a wagon, and thought he would go over and borrow Mr. Jewett's. As he approached the house he found Mrs Jewett and the little boy in the path. As he entered the house, a horrible sight met his gaze. Old Mr. Jewett on the floor lying in his own blood, his wife in bed, her face presenting a ghastly appearance, the table standing in the middle of the floor with the breakfast dishes still upon it, the chairs upturned, the chests, trunks, bureaus, cupboard, and beds broken open and ransacked, and their contents thrown into the middle of the floor. The rooms up stairs were pilfered in the same way. The clock in the house was stopped at just half-past six, probably by one of the Indians.

Mr. Harlow ran and told Mr. Burgess, and a messenger was immediately sent to Garden City. Maj. E. P. Evans, who is a brother of old Mrs. Jewett, had just arrived from New York, He immediately went over with a number of citizens. Dr. Wellcome arrived about 11 o'clock, and dressed the wounds of old Mr. Jewett, and the little boy who were still alive. These and also the dead bodies were conveyed to Garden City. Mr. Jewett and the child were taken to Mr. Evans' house and the best of care taken of them. The Doctor says the child will get well. The old gentleman, was alive Wednesday morning when we left, but Dr. Wellcome said he could not live over two hours. He was insensible the greater portion of the night, but was conscious in the morning. He could not swallow, and his throat was so filled up that he could not speak. He answered questions put to him by Mr. Evans by a pressure of the hand.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jewett, and old Mrs. Jewett were laid out in the hall over Ray & Williams store, that of Charles Tyler, was conveyed to his mothers residence near Mills' place, where we saw it at three o'clock Wednesday morning.

THE PERSONS KILLED

Only one family has been molested so far as we learn, up to Thursday morning and that is Mr. Jewetts.

Those killed there are A. J. Jewett, aged about 32, He was one of our most respected citizens in the county. For many years a leading Republican, and in 1862 was postmaster of Garden City.

He was a very excellent man, and well to-do farmer. Had moved upon his farm not long since.

His wife Harriet Jewett was thirty years of age, and was a most excellent woman. Mark Jewett the old gentleman was seventy three years old. He came to Minnesota last summer, He is probably dead before this time. Mrs. Susan Jewett, his wife, was sixty-three years old. Her health was very feeble, and she did not rise in the morning at the same time the rest of the family did, and was thus killed while in bed.

Charles Tyler, was twenty years old, and was a son of Mrs. Moses Tyler, living near S. T Mills'. Her husband died last summer from the effects of a kick of a horse near Kasota.

The funeral of all the bodies took place yesterday afternoon.

ON THE TRAIL.

As soon as the news reached Garden City, a party of mounted men started in pursuit of the Indians. Striking the trail at Jewett's house, they followed it down the Blue Earth, over to the Le-Sueur, and thence in the direction of the Maple river. Tuesday night the men slept upon the trail. They found where the Indians had crossed the Maple river, camped and took breakfast. On the Le-Sueur river three of the Indians returned up the Blue Earth and the rest continued on in the direction of LeSueur county. An Indian blanket, a buffalo robe, and some flour, were found on the trail, and apparently no effort was made to conceal their tracks.

An emigrant, coming in from the Agency Tuesday afternoon, saw two Indians near McGraw's mill. They were about fifty rods from the road, and going in a northerly direction. When the messenger arrived at Mankato, bringing the news, it caused great excitement. Within an hour about twenty men were mounted and ready to march, led by Maj. Clark. They went up by way of South Bend, and picketed the road from Rush lake to Garden City. Lieut. Mason, of Vernon Centre, established a line of pickets from Shelbyville through to Garden City, and Wednesday discovered where a party of seven Indians had crossed the Blue Earth just above Vernon. There was no sign of their having horses.

CAPTURED A HALF BREED.

O. W. Dodge went out soon after the Mankato party, but lost their track and went up on the east side of the Blue Earth. When he reached John A. Jones house, he went in to get a drink. On coming out he saw a man approach the house from the timber, and ask for a drink of water. As he went away, Dodge followed him for a short distance, and asked him who he was. The man would not answer. After some parleying Dodge drew his revolver and took him prisoner and brought him to town where he arrived about five o'clock. He was taken to the Clifton House and a large crowd of people gathered to get a look at him, Colonel Smith conversed with him, but could get nothing satisfactory, He stoutly denied all knowledge of the murder, and of Indians, That he had not seen any for over a year. D. H. Tyner took him in charge and put him in jail.

He then searched him, and found upon his person a towel, a lady's white handkerchief, two pair of womens' stockings, a pair of new pants, a broadcloth coat, a pair of shoes, a pair of chippewa moccasins, a cake of soap, and five dollars in greenbacks. The pants, coat and shoes he was wearing. The handkerchief he said he got of his brothers wife living near Traverse. A piece had been torn out of one corner, as though it had been marked. But he knew nothing about that, The excitement was so great and the feeling of the people so intense, that they could hardly restrain themselves. In the evening a small party went up to the jail, to see if he would disclose anything. They examined him closely, but he still denied all acknowledge of Indians. They then took him out back of the jail, threw a rope over a limb of a tree, made a noose, and put it over his neck, then gave him to understand that he was to die, and if he had any thing to say to say it then.

But he had nothing to say. The rope was then tightened, and he was drawn up from the ground. He displayed that bravery and sullenness characteristic of the Indian race, and was not scared in the least. It was finally concluded to let him down and keep him until the next morning, and then hang him at nine o'colck. The clothes he had on, and the articles found upon his person were then taken up to Garden City for identification by those who were acquainted with Mr. Jewetts family. The party arrived at Mrs. Tylers about three o'clock in the morning. Her daughter Eva who had worked for Mrs. Jewett, a short time previous, described the coat before she saw it, by there being a certain patch upon the sleeve, It tallied exactly with her description. One pair of the stockings she recognized as soon as she saw them.

Mrs. E. P Evans identified the coat and shoes, and Mrs. Benj Evans the coat, shoes, pants and both pair of stockings. The coat was one sent to the old gentleman, by his son Jay, from Boston. The shoes were Andrew's. He was at her house last Sunday, and she laughed at him for wearing square toed shoes and his brother's coat. The pants belonged to the old gentleman. The stockings were the old lady's, and one pair of them were knit by her while she was visiting at Mrs. Evans', When this news reached town, the people were intent on hanging the prisoner. Colonel Smith said he wished to use him still further, and that they could not have him until he gave him up.

Peter Kelly arrived from Red Wood Tuesday evening, with a message from Lewis Roberts, saying that Scott Campbell, a trapper had told him that his brother John, was heading a party of marauding Indians to steal horses and attack Mankato. It was thought that this man, instead of being Pelky, was John Campbell Accordingly Kelly went up to the jail, and shook hands with him, calling him John Campbell He answered and said that was his name, and his brother's was Scott, and his mother lived at Traverse, near Myrick's old warehouse.

Wednesday morning Colonel Smith had an interview with him, and he disclosed that there were nine bands of Indians on the way to Blue Earth river. They were Standing Buffalo's brother with 16 warriors; White Lodge's son with 10 warriors; Ta-ton ka-wy-no-ca, with 9 men; Red Bottom (Sleepy Eye's band) with 7 men; Black Leg, with 6 or 7 men; Black Leg's brother with 5 men. The names of the leaders of other bands he could not tell. They started down the 23d ult., and he fell in with them near Fort Wadsworth They came down to Lacquiparle, and to the Minnesota river near Wood Lake. He says they are now on the Blue Earth river. Peter Roy's son, a half breed, is with them.

In the afternoon an immense crowd gathered about the jail They were fearful if his trial was deferred, Gen. Sibly would send for him, and he would escape punishment. They organized an informal court in the open air, selected a jury, judge, and attorney. The prisoner was brought out, and the trial commenced, Being without assistance Col. Smith was powerless and left the field.

We give below the testimony of the prisoner as near as we could recollect it.

TRIAL OF THE PRISONER.

The trial of John Campbell, upon a charge of wilfully and maliciously killing Andrew J. Jewett, his wife, father, and mother, and Chas. Tyler, on the 2nd day of May, 1865, in the County of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, the following named persons were selected and sworn as a jury, to-wit: Edward Nickerson, N. Woloben, D. S. Law, Abel Keene, Wm. Funk, A. Tyler, Chas. Wagner, A. T. Noble, E. K. Bangs, J. C. Haupt, A. A. Thompson and E. H Smith. S. F. Barney was chosen Moderator, and J. A. Willard, prosecutor.

The prisoner plead not guilty, and made the following statement of his case: That he knew nothing of the killing yesterday, that upon the Sioux Coteau he was taken prisoner by hostile Indians and compelled to go with them; that they came down, and crossed the Blue Earth river about three miles above the ford, by John A Jones', on Monday night—a party of sixteen in all—where they camped all night. At day break Tuesday morning, three of the Indians started down the river, five of them went in the direction of where they are building a mill on the river, and the balance started in an easterly direction towards the prairie; that he (Campbell) got away from them and came down the river bank till he reached Jones' ford, in the afternoon of the same day; before he crossed the ford and about fifty yards south of it, on the road to Mapleton, these seven Sioux who had gone out east towards the prairie, came up to him and gave him a pair of pants, a coat and a pair of shoes, which they made him put on. It was a half breed named Henry Roy who gave him the pants and coat, and Standing Buffalo's brother the shoes. This Roy was the only half-breed among them. There are nine different parties, numbering from five to sixteen in each party; their destination was to come in the rear of Mankato and attack the town from that side and steal what horses they could. The parties were all together at the Coteau He has a brother there trapping, and told him the Indians were on a war party, and his brother gave them presents, which prevented the Indians from capturing him also; these nine different parties are now all scattered in the woods along the Blue Earth river. Tuesday morning was the first opportunity he had for leaving the Indians; he had to do all the work for the whole party, and was badly used by them; they had been eight days on the way. He enlisted in November 1862, in Brackett's Battallion, in Co. G, Has also belonged to Co D, 3d Minn., Infantry. Served nearly three years in all; had deserted and was trying to get to Traverse des Sioux; had not heard of the massacre till John A. Jones told him Tuesday; when the Indians gave him the clothing he knew it was stolen from some one.

When asked if he had anything further to relate, he stated that he had told all he knew; that the main party of Indians had not come down yet; there are nine hundred lodges to come down; they are near Fort Rice; they are coming as soon as the grass starts; they have been gathering together all the spring from about Fort Garry, where they had accumulated a quantity of ammunition.

The prosecution introduced testimony showing that the prisoner had made various conflicting statements in regard to this transaction: he persisted Tuesday and all Tuesday night that he had not seen an Indian in more than one year; that his name was Pelky, and a half brother of John Pelky at the Winnebago Agency; that he had clerked for H M Rice, and others, at Long Prairie, and various other statements, which were false in every particular. The coat, pants, and shoes that he had on were clearly identified as belonging to the murdered family.

The judge addressed the jury in a solemn manner, and directed them to give the prisoner the benefit of the least doubt as to his guilt. They then retired and in about half an hour returned with a verdict of guilty 'but recommended, that he be tried again before the District court on the 16th inst. Some were in favor of this, but the crowd were opposed to it, and cries of 'hang him,' 'hang the scoundrel,' were heard on all sides. A rush was made for the prisoner. The vast multitude swayed to and fro, in a fierce struggle for the victim. Guns, revolvers and knives were drawn and it was evident that some one would be killed before it ended,

The party opposed to immediate hanging finally gave way, and the Indian was rapidly hurried to the place of execution, where everything had been prepared, under a large tree, on the first bench of land back of town. In less time than it has taken to write this sentence, he was placed upon a wagon, the rope put around his neck, and he was swung off. His pants were pulled off by some one, and there he swung before the vast crowd of men and women with nothing on but his shirt. In the hurry his hands had not been tied. He caught hold of the rope, and cried out for the priest. The wagon was backed underneath, he was let down, and the Catholic priest conversed with him in French, for five minutes.

His hands were securely tied, and the wagon again drawn out, and he dropped down about a foot. The fall did not break his neck, and he was simply choked to death. He struggled hard for two or three minutes; the face grew black, his eyes and tongue did not protrude though, and the heaving of the bosom showed that life was not fully extinct. He hung for about fifteen minutes, was pronounced dead, and that was the last of John Campbell, the Sioux murderer. The crowd dispersed as quietly as though nothing had happened. The body was cut down and sent to his mother, at his request.

He confessed to the priest that he had hid a large sum of money in the bedclothes in the jail, and $470.00 was found just where he said. Marshall Fall, Q. M. of Brackett's Battalion, had deposited about that amount of money with Mr. Jewett to pay for some land. This without doubt, was the money, and is another proof of the prisoner's guilt.

ORGANIZING MINUTE MEN.

Companies of minute men were organized yesterday, and pickets are carefully stationed every night to guard the town against attack.

MISSIONARY WILLIAMSON.

Rev. Mr. Williamson, the Indian Missionary, came into town Tuesday to attend the meeting of the Dakota Presbytery. In the evening he preached a sermon in which he sympathized with the Indians. This so incensed the people that a committee was appointed the next day, to wait upon him and request him to leave town. He did so without delay.

RUMORS.

There are rumors of trappers having been killed near Lake Shetek and Red Wood, but we have received nothing reliable yet.

HORSE THIEF CAUGHT.—A number of weeks ago, a horse and cutter, belonging to Rev. Cyrus Brooks, of St. Paul, was stolen in broad daylight in front of the Jackson Street M. E. Church, in that city, while Mr. Brooks was conducting the services. No trace of the thief could be found, until last week, when Mr. B. received a letter from a man living west of Shelbyville, near Martin county, stating that a horse answering the description of his was in the possession of a man named F. Manizer. Mr. Brooks at once secured the services of police officer Patterson, and started him in quest of the thief. The officer, accompanied by Mr. Brooks' son, arrived at the man's house on Saturday morning last, and made the arrest. He found the cutter, buffalo robe, whip, cushions, &c., concealed in the chamber, and the horse in the stable. He owned up having the articles named, but said he bought them of a man near Ft. Snelling, to whom he paid $25 down and gave his note for the balance. The prisoner is a half-witted German, and don't look as though he knew enough to steal a horse. The officer with his prisoner, passed through town Sunday, bound for St. Paul.

There will be a meeting of the Board of County Commissioners on the seventeenth day of May. By order of the Chairman, A. HANNA.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

PLEASE CALL AND EXAMINE, OR SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " $500 "
20 " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

GAZLAY'S
PACIFIC MONTHLY.

Now is your time to Subscribe for our New Pacific Monthly, which we cheerfully commend to you as the Excelsior of all the

MONTHLY MAGAZINES,

Employing and paying more for Literary talents than any other Magazine in the country, we flatter ourselves that no Department of the Pacific Monthly will suffer neglect from the want of able and well-known

LITERARY CONTRIBUTORS,

representing some of the principle shining lights of the Literary world. We shall make such additional engagements as circumstances may demand. Your special attention is called to our

ILLUSTRATIONS,

which are produced without regard to expense by an efficient corps of artists—at whose head stands Brightly and Mc Lenan, unequalled as designers and Engravers. We call the attention of the Public to the profusion of the first-class illustrations of the varied, novel and picturesque scenery of local views of the

GOLDEN STATES

AND TERRITORIES

PACIFIC,

With Discriptive Views and Reading Matter affording the most reliable and comprehensive medium in existence for full information in regard to California, Oregon, Nevada, and their contiguous and auriferous territories. The information we give in regard to the Pacific States, alone, is worth ten times the Subscription Price of the Magazine. The twelve numbers, a year's subscription, when neatly bound affording two splendid volumes, suitable for the

DRAWING ROOM, LIBRARY,

OR THE

COUNTING HOUSE

and costing but five dollars which in years to come cannot be purchased for any price. Our

EDITORIAL DRAWER

will abound with selections of Wit, Original Stories, Comic Sketches, and light Literature, culled from a well-garnered storehouse of fun, fact and incident, affording interesting and light reading matter for the Parlor and the fire side.

Comic Illustrations.

This Department of the Monthly, under the immediate supervision of McLenan, the celebrated Comic Delineator, will be found always rich with Wit, Merriment and appropriated Design.

FASHION PLATES.

Having made special arrangements with Mme. Demorest, 473 Broadway, New York, for contributions to Fashion Department, we call the attention of the ladies to the same, and commend our monthly to their notice as containing more information in reGard to Dress and the Toilet, than any other Magazine published.

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

Now is the time to Subscribe, and have your volume complete for 1865. We will furnish Back Numbers to such as do to subscribe in time for the January or February number.—But to be sure and get them without delay, send in your subscriptions early. Our subscription price is

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR.

Payable in Advance, upon the receipt of which our receipt, for the same, will be sent in return.

PREMIUMS IN GOLD.

As an additional inducement to Subscribe early, we shall distribute among our Subscribers a large list of valuable premiums, relying upon an extr ordinary large Subscription List to compensate us for our liberty. These Premiums will consist of valuable Sovenirs of the Golden Wealth of the Pacific States, and will be as follows:—

☞ To any person sending us One Hundred Paying Subscriptions, we will send them, immediately, a Twenty and a Ten Dollar Gold Piece, California Coinage; and an extra Copy of the Pacific Monthly, for a Year, free.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession, are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31.26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, towit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, minn. March 31, 1865.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday May 12, 1865.

IMPORTANT NEWS.

A messenger has just arrived from Garden City, this Thursday evening, at 7 o'clock, stating that Mr. Jorgensen of Madelia, had sent word that a large body of Indians were camped four miles from his place, on their way down to the settlements. How many the report does not say. We give this as we received it. The troops from this place have been sont up in that vicinity, and a messenger dispatched below to hurry up Co. H now on the way.

FRONTIER PROTECTION.

Our annual Indian raid came upon us earlier this year than usual, and the tragic manner in which it was ushered in has aroused our people to a sense of their danger and insecurity The miserable arrangements of General Sibley to afford ample protection to the frontier against the incursions of small bands of Indians, up to the present time, have amounted to just nothing at all, in the way of protection, but have subjected him to ridicule and curses without stint from those who have suffered through his imbecility.

In reply to the strictures of a correspondent of the Press, writing from this place last week, the General comes out in a lengthy letter, defending his policy, denying the charge of dealing mercifully with Indian prisoners, and coolly insults our frontier settlers, who have had their houses pillaged, their cattle killed and horses stolen, and their friends deliberately murdered in cold blood by savages sixty miles inside of his military lines, in the heart of a populous community, by impeaching their courage, and insinuating that we must look for protection to our "unerring rifles," and "bold front."

We have no fault to find with officers along the line; with the troops at their disposal they have done well. But within five miles of St Paul hundreds of troops have been lying idle all winter, and when the tocsin of alarm was thundered in the ears of this military official, he treats the matter with indifferent regard, and unconcernedly sits down and writes his letter of defence, instead of hurrying off troops with orders to make rapid marches, to defend the settlers, and aid in capturing the savages.

The news of the outbreak reached this place and was dispatched to General Sibley on Tuesday, and troops should have arrived to our aid as early as Friday evening. But instead of this one company was ordered to leave the Fort on Saturday, five days after the outbreak, and by slow and easy marches arrived here on the following Tuesday. By this time the Indians had commenced their retreat through the lines, and although diligent search has been instituted since the troops came here, no Indians have since been seen, and only traces of them where they apparently went out. With a proper force they could have been captured and destroyed. Now that the horse is stolen, we presume the doors will be securely locked.

The General betrays his ignorance of history when he says that certain western states were settled up without the aid of soldiers; and were that true, it does not follow, in this advanced age, when the government has hundreds of troops within a stone's throw of the border, that farmers must drop the plow and take up the rifle, the merchant leave his counting room and stand on picket We have contributed liberally of our money and men to aid the government in saving the nation, and now when we are threatened with danger at home, and our business suspended, the tide of immigration turned against us, and our growth and prosperity likely to be retarded, we want the aid of that government, and it ill becomes the General, as one of its sworn officials, to treat the matter so lightly, and so contemptuously.

Our State has already suffered incalculable damage from these Indian raids. Hundreds of settlers have been killed, or left the State because of them And the best way to stop this, and avoid a recurrence of these terribly exciting scenes is to provide a more efficient military organization, and place at its head a general competent to conduct its affairs The people demand that there should be a change, and are justly indignant because it has not been made. We know of no better way to quiet the fears of settlers, and guarantee them safety against future raids, than to remove the Brigadier General of this military district.

WHAT A CHANGE.—The Washington Chronicle, of May 1st, contains the following item: "The Richmond Whig.' was shouted along Pennsylvania avenue yesterday, as that broad thoroughfare was cheerful with the sunny noon of spring and thronged with church-coming crowds. As we turned to look, we saw a well dressed little fellow selling to soldiers and civilians the news paper bearing this title, of the day previous.

Another sign of the good time coming! Richmond, that it took General Grant to reach, fighting "on his own line" more than "a summer," is at present visited in a day; and a newspaper, only two months ago bitterly against the Government of our fathers, is now circulating freely, garnished with Government advertisements, and filled with news of peace and loyal editorials. We do not allude to the healthier sentiments of the Whig in order to remind it of scenes all of us should toil to forget, but only to make another note of the irresistible triumph of the national Union.

It is now well understood that Louis Napoleon has for some time past had a secret treaty before the British Government for a proposition of alliance on American possessions. The two powers were to respectively guarantee to each other possession of Canada and Mexico, but the cautious Britons are not disposed to enter into the arrangement. If Napoleon persists in supporting Maximillian he must do so on his own responsibility, and without any backing from Queen Victoria's ministers.

The rebel Secretary Mallory has Surrendered. This is considered a new trick of sharp practice, rather than an evidence of returning loyalty.

INDIAN NEWS.

Aside from the report of Indian news we gave last week, there is but little to note, except the killing of a soldier and a boy by Indians Sunday last.

The woods and prairies have been thoroughly scoured by troops the last two days, we understand, and they could find no traces of Indians. They have evidently become frightened, and are making their way out of the settlements.

A TRAPPER'S CAMP SURPRISED

A couple of trappers camped at Lake Talcott were attacked by Indians early last Monday, and one of the trappers wounded in the thigh and head. They succeeded in getting away, and left the Indians to plunder the camp. The trappers lost about 100 steel traps, eight or ten pounds of powder, about eighty pounds of shot and lead, a couple of guns and some furs.

SOLDIERS ON THE TRAIL.

A party of twelve soldiers of Co. F. 2nd Cavalry, commanded by a sergeant, came into town Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, bringing with them the dead body of one of their comrades strapped across his horse. The soldiers were in pursuit of the Indians, and struck their trail Saturday morning about a mile from Jewett's house. They followed it to the Maple river, thence across a strip of prairie, in the direction of the Le Sueur river. The remains of a cow and sheep were found, killed by the Indians. Sunday morning the soldiers came upon the Indian's camp, which was only about two miles from their own. The pursuit was continued, and when near the Le Sueur, James Jolley, the soldier who was shot, was a short distance in advance of the party, and saw an Indian ahead, who fired at him. He returned the fire, and the Indian fell. When the soldiers reached the spot, they found a large pack of cooked meat. The Indian was probably killed or wounded, and the meat thrown away to lighten their burden.

The trail was followwed for about two hours up a ravine, along the river bank, and while searching for it, in a bend of the river, they were fired upon by the Indians from across the stream. The fire was returned, and several of the soldiers saw Indians running and skulking behind trees. The Indians fired another volley, and this time with effect, a ball hitting James Jolly, in the left breast, as he was leaning forward upon his horse, looking for the trail. The ball entered his breast just above the heart, and came out on the right side of the back bone.

HIS FAMILY—A BRAVE SOLDIER.

His family—a wife and four children—live near Lakeville, in Dakota county. He was one of the best men in the company, and is spoken of as a brave and valuable soldier. After he fell from his horse, he raised up on one arm, and in reply to a question, said he was shot, and fell back dead.

THE SOLDIERS RETURN FOR REINFORCEMENTS

After Jolly was killed, the soldiers retreated into a thicket, and made preparations to bring the body of their comrade to this place.

By some oversight his gun was left standing beside a tree. The body was taken to Dr. Clarks office, where it was carefully dressed, and on Monday morning funds were raised by our citizens to pay for conveying the body to his family.

A party of citizens, under command of Major Clark, went out to where the fight occurred with the soldiers, for the purpose of continuing the pursuit, but not finding the trail returned Monday morning.

A gentleman arrived from vernon Sunday evening bringing news that another band of Indians had succeeded in crossing the lines, and that afternoon were at the mouth of Willow Creek, where they stole two horses belonging to Mr. Day. They fled in a westerly direction, and were pursued by Capt Crandall, with six men. As they have not been caught, they are doubtless outside the lines ere this.

INDIANS SEEN ON THE SCHOOL SECTION

A report reached here on Monday that fifteen Indians had been seen on the school section, about two miles from town. They were seen by three ladies; the Indians saw them, and started in search of them but the ladies hid in the timber and escaped. A party of horsemen went out to investigate the matter, and returned in a couple of hours satisfied that no Indians had been in that vicinity.

A BOY SHOT BY INDIANS

Sunday, towards evening, the parties in pursuit of the Indians, had succeeded in driving them out on the Agency road near Tivoli, At the Le Sueur bridge the picket line was composed mostly of boys, who gave way as the Indians were seen approching them.

They crossed the road, and were thus inside our picket line, in a square, and surrounded by four roads. The pickets were withdrawn and thrown around on the east road, to head the Indians off as they came up. But instead of going on, the Indians when in the centre of the square wheeled to the right, and crossed the river above the bridge, and came upon a small boy ten years old, named Frank York, riding in the road. They fired four or five shots at him, two of them hiting him in the bowels, and two or three striking the horse, killing it instantly. The boy ran towards the house, distant about forty rods, and as he reached the door fell down dead. The Indians escaped. Mr. B. D. Pay had left the spot where the boy was just a moment before the Indians fired, but as they were concealed in a thicket he did not see them. He had been talking to the boy telling him to go away, and the Indians supposed, from the talking, that there were more persons present when they fired.

INDIANS NEAR LOON LAKE.

A party of Indians were seen in the vicinity of Loon Lake on Monday, and were chased and fired at by some citizens, the fire was returned by the red skins, and one man wounded in the hand.

THE CAVALRY ARRIVED.

Tuesday morning, Co. L 2nd Cavalry arrived in town from Fort Snelling, being three days and a half making a distance, of eighty miles. After taking breakfast a squad was sent out in search of Indians in the timber, a portion stationed here and the remainder at Garden City, Madelia, and Vernon.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS,

Col. Pfender arrived Monday morning, and has been stopping with Col. Smith,

Captain Olin, with dispatches from Gen. Sibley, also arrived Monday.

Adjutant General Malmros has authorized Col. Smith to raise volunteer militia to the number of six hundred, and to take chief command of this force. He has appointed Major G. A. Clark, Adjutant, and C. A. Stine, Aid-de-camp. He has divided the district into two sub-districts and placed the men raised in each under command of a Major. E. St. Julien Cox has been appointed Major for the 1st sub-district No Major has been appointed for the 2nd district.

Squads of 30 men each have been organized at the following places, and the persons named appointed Lieutenants. Garden City, Wm R. Smith; Vernon, A. D. Mason; Winnebago City, James Cravs; Blue Earth City, R. Foster.

Colonel Smith has now gone to St. Paul to consult with General Curtis in regard to the better protection of the frontier.

Co. H. 2nd Cavalry, are now on the way here; 40 men will be stationed here; 25 each at Garden City and Winnebago; and some near Willow Creek.

Co. L will be withdrawn and stationed on some line inside Col. Pfenders present line.

DAKATO LETTERS.

A couple of lettres were received at this Post Office directed to "Margaret Campbell, Mendota." The P. O. address was not plain, and by some mistake they were given to Mrs. Campbell, of this place, and opened. They were found to be written in the Dakato Language. This fact elicited suspicion, that they contained information in regard to Indians, and they were accordingly given to Col. Smith, who dipatched a messenger with them to St. Peter to have them read by Rev. Mr Riggs. They proved to contain nothing but family matters, and were returned and sent on to their destination.

GUARDING THE TOWN.

A company of minute men has been organized here, and patrols are stationed around the town every night to guard against surprise.

MR. LOCKE'S HOUSE TO BE BURNED.

At a meeting of a "spiritual circle" the other night a communication was received from the "other world," disclosing a hellish plot of the red devils to burn Mr. Locke's house on a certain night. The family were accordingly warned, and guards stationed to repel the attack. In the morning the house was found to be in statu quo, It turned out that the communication was sent by a "bad spirit."

TOWN AND COUNTY.

THE report of the village election was crowded out of our issue last week by a press of other matter. There were two tickets in the field, the People's, and the Democratic. The following is the vote,

FOR TRUSTEES.

People's.		Democratic.

FRUIT TREES.—We are indebted to J. H. Snyder, Nurseryman of St, Peter, for a present of a fine lot of plum, cherry, crab apple, and pear trees, and Delaware grape vines. Mr. Snyder, we understand has received from Burlington, Iowa, a very large lot of trees, all hardy kinds, adapted to this climate, and has met with great success in filling orders for farmers in this and adjacent counties.

His spring business will amount to more than $9,000. Parties who wish to secure good and hardy varieties of fruit trees will do well to call upon, or write to Mr. Snyder at St. Peter.

CLOTHING.—We would call attention to the large and well selected assortment of clothing to be found in Randall & Smith clothing emporium, opposite Bradley's Store. Their stock is the most complete in the market, and their goods were bought at such prices as enable them to defy competition in offering good bargains to customers. They have all the latest styles of coats, pants, and vests, for spring and summer wear; the most complete assortment of hats and caps ever brought to this market, and under clothing, collars, neck-ties, and notions in abundance. Give them a call, and act wisely.

PERSONAL.—Henry Stoek, esq., connected with the Quartermaster General's Department at Washington, arrived home last week, and will remain for a few days. He will accept our thanks for late Washington papers. We understand he intends to take his family with him on his return,

D. A. Thayer, esq., our townsman, who has been spending the winter in St. Louis, came home this week, much improved in health, He reports the other boys there, from this county, as well.

REDUCTION IN FREIGHT.—The American Express Company have made a reduction in their tariff rates for carrying money and freight, between the points named below, and in like proportion throughout the United States.

Mankato to	Cur'y ℔ $1000.	Ft ℔ 100
La Crosse,	2,00	4,75
Milwaukee,	2,50	5,50
Chicago,	2,75	6,00
New York,	5,00	9,00

NEW AGENCY.—We have recently received the agency for Geo, A. Prince & Co.'s Automatic Organs, and are prepared to fill orders with promptness and dispatch. Their instruments have a world wide reputation as being the best made, and we can recommend them to those wishing to purchase.

SOLD OUT.—We are informed that Mr. Mason, proprietor of the stage and express line between this place and Blue Earth City, has disposed of his interest in that line to John Franklin of Blue Earth. We are loth to part with Dunning, as he has giving general satisfaction to our business community. Mr. Franklin is an old resident of the valley, well known, and we commend him and his express line to our merchants.

A RELIABLE PAPER HOUSE.—We received a call this week from D. R Cameron, Esq., the gentlemanly traveling agent of the firm of Culver, Page & Hoyne, wholesale stationers in Chicago. Mr. C. represents the interest of one of the best houses in the west, and is meeting with great success among the business men of this State, in receiving orders for stationary, blank books, &c.

CHRISTIAN PROCLAMATION.—We have received the second number of a religious periodical, published monthly at Waupun, Wis. by Rev. D. A. Wagner. It is edited by a corps of reverend gentlemen, and is well gotten up. Former residents of Wisconsin who wish to get a home journal devoted to religion, can address Mr. Wagner at Waupun, enclosing $1,00.

GREAT NORTHWESTERN CONSPIRACY.—We are under obligations to Dr. I. Winslow Ayer, of Chicago, author, for a copy of this interesting work. It gives all the details of the plot to plunder and burn Chicago, release the rebel prisoners, and seize the arsenals. Also the trial of the conspirators, and inside views of the Sons of Liberty. Price 75 cents. For sale by J. R. Walsh, Chicago.

This week ends the publication of the Tax list with which we have been embarressed for the past three or four weeks. Hereafter we hope to have plenty of room for correspondents, and news matter.

Godey for May is on our table, as beautiful in design and execution and as interesting in reading matter as ever.

MAGAZINES.—We acknowledge the receipt of Harpers monthly, the Atlantic, Pettersons, and Arthur's Home magazine for may.

There will be a meeting of the Board of County Commissioners on Wednesday next, the 17th inst. By order of the chairman.

An article on the Dakota Presbytery, and its proceedings is unavoidably crowded out. We shall have plenty of room hereafter.

NOTICE.—Hereafter no express matter will be received or delivered at this office on Sunday.

The Richmond Whig of the 4th states that Robert Ould, late Confederate Commissioner of Exchange, and Mr. W. H. Hatch, his assistant, and several other attaches of the Bureau, have been arrested on an order from Washington, upon the charge connected with the administration of affairs devolving on them.

The Richmond Whig of the 22d states that Mosby took leave of his men at Salem, Fauquier county, telling them to disband and return home, that he was bound for Texas, and did not want them to accompany him, as it might put their necks in the halter. He then made off with a few of his old companions.

Robert Lincoln and Judge Davis have selected a block near the center of Oak Ridge Cemetry, as the spot in which Mr. Lincoln's remains shall be finally intered. The selection is a most beautiful one, and elicits very general approbation. It contains from two to three acres. It is near Springfield, Illinois.

The Tribune's Washington special May 4th, says: "Mrs. Lincoln's nervous system seemed stronger and more composed yesterday, but she is laboring under great depression again, in contemplation of the burial of Mr. Lincoln at Springfield to-day. She will leave the White House as soon as permitted by her physician, and proceed directly to Illinois.

The Flight of Jeff. Davis,

NEW YORK, MAY 8.—The Herald's North Carolina dispatches give various rumors of the whereabouts of Jeff Davis but none later or more definite than last week, which represented him in flight one day ahead of Stoneman. The report that he was obliged to abandon his specie train is contradicted.

The Heralds correspondent gives further details of the surrender of Johnston. Over 30,000 men were surrendered. A large number did not wait for the capitulation, and are now engaged in pillaging, and robbing the destitute people Over 100 pieces of artillery were surrendered. Among the officers surrendered is the notorious Semmes of the pirate Alabama.

Kirby Smith Trying to Surrender Dick Taylor Doing Likewise.

The Herald's New Orleans correspondence contains additional particulars of the negotiations for the surrender of Gen. Kirby Smith's entire trans Mississippi rebel army. The meeting to arrange the preliminaries took place on the 23d ult., at the mouth of Red River, at which Col. Sprague represented Gen. Pope, and Col L. Seymanskie appeared on behalf of Gen. Smith, and these officers were to have another conference at the same place on the 2d inst.

Of the result of the latter meeting nothing was known, but it was understood that the terms proposed were the same as those under which Lee's and Johnston's armies were surrendered.

There were rumors at New Orleans on the 30th, that the rebel Generals, Dick Taylor and Forrest had made formal propositions to surrender their forces. General Canby had left New Orleans suddenly for Mobile, and it was believed that he went to the latter city for the purpose of receiving Taylor's surrender.

News From Sherman's Army.

NEW YORK.—Our Raleigh letters of the 28th and 30th state that Gen. Sherman and staff left that day for Charleston and Savannah, thence going to Richmond to meet his army, which was to leave Raleigh the next Monday. Sherman had issued an order announcing the final agreement of surrender by Johnston.

He prohibits all foraging and proposes certain ways to relieve the pressing wants of the inhabitants.

The 10th and 23d corps remain in the department of N. C., together with Kilpatrick's cavalry. Stoneman's cavalry is ordered to East Tennessee and Wilson's to Tennessee River, near Decatur Alabama. Gen. Howard and the army of Tennessee will march to Richmond. Gen. Slocum and the Army of Georgia, also marches to Richmond.

The rebel army is all leaving for their homes. Many taking their arms with them and some trouble is apprehended from those who took their arms and went away on their own hook. General Johnston has endeavored to carry out the terms agreed upon, but the time intervening between the first and second agreement occasioned some demoralization.

A movement was on foot to reorganize the State Government.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent. on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

These Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " $500 "
20 " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

JAY COOKE,
Subscription Agent, Philadelphia.

SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE RECEIVED BY THE
First National Bank of St. Paul,
Second National Bank of St. Paul.

GAZLAY'S
PACIFIC MONTHLY.

Now is your time to Subscribe for our New Pacific Monthly, which we cheerfully commend to you as the Excelsior of all the

MONTHLY MAGAZINES,

Employing and paying more for Literary talents than any other Magazine in the country, we flatter ourselves that no Department of the Pacific Monthly will suffer neglect from the want of able and well-known

LITERARY CONTRIBUTORS,

representing some of the principle shining lights of the Literary world. We shall make such additional engagements as circumstances may demand. Your special attention is called to our

ILLUSTRATIONS,

which are produced without regard to expense by an efficient corps of artists—at whose head stands Brightly and McLenan, unequalled as designers and Engravers. We call the attention of the Public to the profusion of the first-class illustrations of the varied, novel and pictures que scenery of local views of the

GOLDEN STATES
AND TERRITORIES
PACIFIC,

With Discriptive Views and Reading Matter affording the most reliable and comprehensive medium in existence for full information in regard to California, Oregon, Nevada, and their contiguous and auriferous territories. The information we give in regard to the Pacific States, alone, is worth ten times the Subscription Price of the Magazine. The twelve numbers, a year's subscription, when neatly bound affording two splendid volumes, suitable for the

DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, OR THE
COUNTING HOUSE

and costing but five dollars which in years to come cannot be purchased for any price. Our

EDITORIAL DRAWER

will abound with selections of Wit, Original Stories, Comic Sketches, and light Literature, culled from a well-garnered storehouse of fun, fact and incident, affording interesting and light reading matter for the Parlor and the fire side.

Comic Illustrations.

This Department of the Monthly, under the immediate supervision of McLenan, the celebrated Comic Delineator, will be found always rich with Wit, Merriment and appropriated Design.

FASHION PLATES.

Having made special arrangements with Mme. Demorest, 473 Broadway, New York, for contributions to Fashion Department, we call the attention of the ladies to the same, and commend our monthly to their notice as containing more information in reFard to Dress and the Toiret, than any other Magazine published.

SUBSCRIBE NOW.

Now is the time to Subscribe, and have your volume complete for 1865. We will furnish Back Numbers to such as do to subscribe in time for the January or February number.—But to be sure and get them without delay, send in your subscriptions early. Our subscription price is

FIVE DOLLARS A YEAR.

Payable in Advance, upon the receipt of which our receipt, for the same, will be sent in return.

PREMIUMS IN GOLD.

As an additional inducement to Subscribe early, we shall distribute among our Subscribers a large list of valuable premiums, relying upon an extraordinary large Subscription List to compensate us for our liberty. These Premiums will consist of valuable Sovenirs of the Golden Wealth of the Pacific States, and will be as follows:—

☞ To any person sending us One Hundred Paying Subscriptions, we will send them, immediately, a Twenty and a Ten Dollar Gold Piece, California Coinage; and an extra Copy of the Pacific Monthly, for a Year, free.

To any person sending us Fifty Paying subscribers we will send, immediately a Ten and a Five Dollar Gold Piece, and an extra copy of the PACIFIC MONTHLY for a year, free.

To any person sending us twenty-five paying subscribers, we will send immediately, a five dollar and a two and half collar Gold Piece, and an extra copy of the PACIFIC MONTHLY, for a year free.

To any person sending us Ten Paying Subscribers, we will send immediatldly, a three dollar Gold Piece, and an extra copy of the PACIFIC MONTHLY for a year free.

To any person sending us five paying subscriptions we will send an extra copy of the PACIFIC MONTHLY free.

We are also, having made, a large quantity of Valuable PRESENTS and KEEPSAKES for Single Subscribers, who send direct to the Office.

The Presents and Souverins consist of Ladies Breast Pins Ear Rings, Finger Rings, Sleeve Buttons, etc., and Gentlemen's Breast Pins Finge Rings Sleeve Buttons, Studs Settings for Cane Heads, etc made from California and Navada Gold and Silver bearing Quartz and Ore—Crystalized Quartz Jewelry, [commonly known as California Diamond Jewelry.] The Gold and Silver bearing Quartz and Ore from which these Souvenirs are made, is from the celebrated Gould & Curry and Ophir Mines of Navada, and will be valuable as Mementos, as well as beautiful in Appearance and Design.—EVERY REGULAR SUBSCRIBER, as above to the Pacific Monthly, will be entitled to one of the these Articles for every Subscription standing opposite, their names on our books.

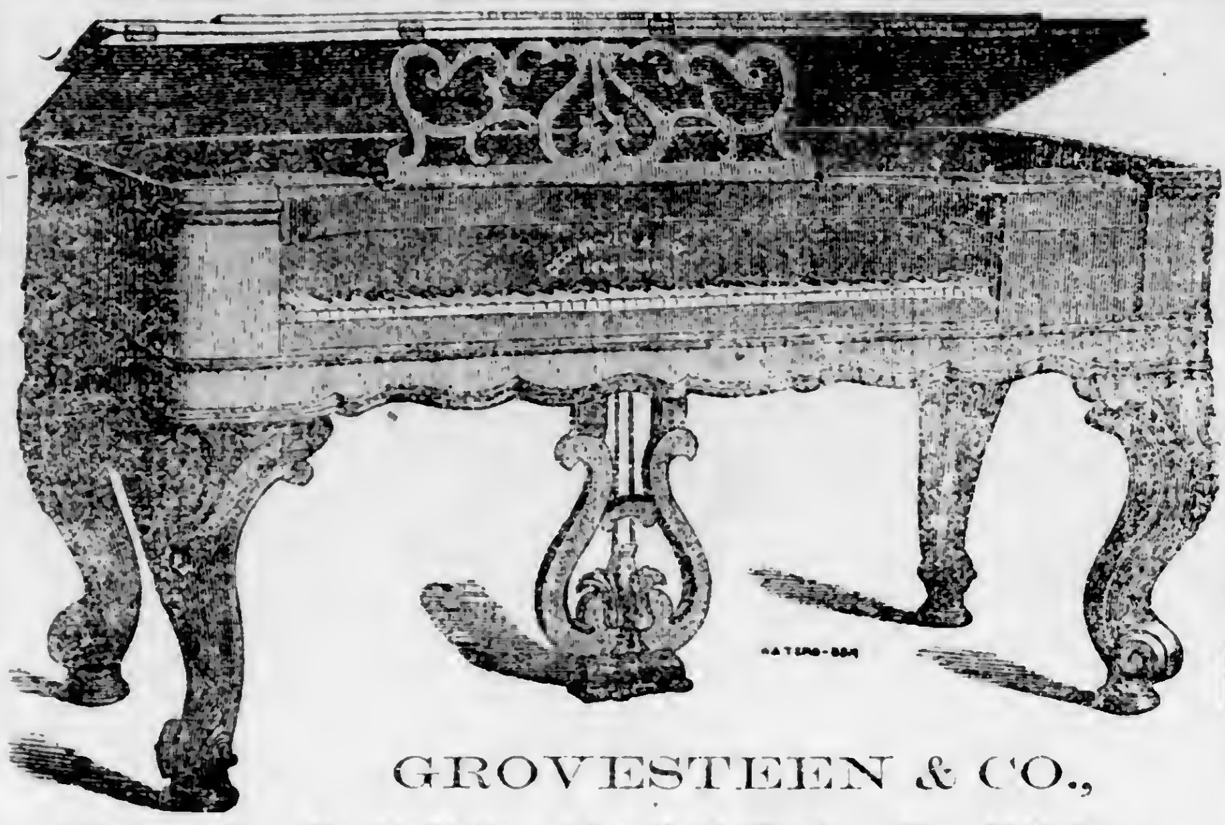
GROCERIES,—a fullassortment at CHRISTENSEN & BROS.'



GROVESTEEN & CO.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS,

499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over Strung Bass, &c., and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr. J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successiv years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware room.

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition.

PRICES—No. 1, Seven Octave, round corners, Rosewood plain case, $275.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON - BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty six Cents (31 26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therefore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to wit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register of Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county on the 20th day of May A. D 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, minn March 31 1865.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

In one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!

Helmbold's

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the Blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for
Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

Poetry.

For the Mankato Union.

A TRIBUTE.

Lo! our country sits in mourning,
For her Chieftian lieth low;
And the black wreathed flags are floating
Over hearts now filled with woe.

Hark! the billowy waves of sorrow,
Surging through our nation come,
And they break in fearful madness,
On the hearthstone of each home.

Every heart is filled with horror,
Every eye burns fiercely bright;
And to-day our maddened nation,
Welcomes on the bloody fight.

For we stand with oaths of vengeance,
Trembling on each whitened lip,
And we'll never sheathe our sabers,
'Till with traitors blood they drip.

Onward we will press with boldness,
And a courage none can daunt,
'Till we stand the sole possessors
Of the fiendish rebel's haunt.

Southern skies shall kiss our banner,
Southern dews baptize it there;
And the incense from her flowers
Shall arise to crown our prayer.

Then shall Peace spread out her pinions,
Over all our saddened land,
And an echoing shout of triumph,
Shall ascend from every band.

But alas! when this new glory,
Bursts, like sunshine, overhead,
We shall pause, while sadly thinking,
Of the loved, LAMENTED dead.

South Bend, May, 1865. Lou.

PLANT FRUIT TREES.

MANKATO, April 10, 1864

Editor Mankato Union:

The Saint Paul Prees of March 23d contains an article, headed, "Farmers plant trees," in which the cost of an acre of Silver Maples, is estimated at $16,70 Walnuts, Cottonwoods, White Willows, and indigenous Maples about the same

The article concludes;—"We say, then, to farmers, plants tress;—plant them, * * from our own forests this spring—plant Silver Maples next June —plant Black and White Walnuts next fall; and then—keep on doing so every year, until you have all the timber growing on your farms that you want. In ten years, if you thus do, I know you will heartily thank me for this advice. Of course, there will be failures, but then there need be no more than with corn or wheat."

The above is good advice, to those who live on our prairies. But while you are planting native, plant a "good sprinkling" of fruit trees.

Every farmer can, and should raise his own fruit. Fruit is a luxury, which no farmer, who has a family, can well afford to do without.

It may be said, that fruit raising is an experiment, in this latitude; so IT IS! So it has been in all the North West! There are many farmers in Wisconsin and Iowa, who are enjoying the benefit of the experiment while others, incredulous and less enterprising, are borrowing their experience with a loss to themselves and families of, at least, ten years of actual enjoyment.—Every farmer should experiment for himself. We cannot afford to wait on the experience of our neighbors. Those who do, rarely profit by it, and always find themselves ten years 'behind the times."

Fifteen years ago, fruit raising, on the bleak prairies of central Iowa, was considered questionable. Now Dr. Jas Weed, a well known nurseryman, of Muscatine County, produces 3,000 bushels of apples annually. J. H. Bryant, of the same county, about ten years ago, set out a small orchard in an exposed locality, without the least protection whatever, at first, afterwards planting a row of Yellow Willows on the north, and a grove of Black Locusts, about a rod wide on the east—a few of his trees, of course, died, these he replaced setting extra rows each way throughout his orchard. Such was his success that, at the end of five years, he planted out a new orchard, and he now has all the fruit he wants and some "to spare," while the incredulous are just opening their eyes to the fact, that they are depriving themselves of a luxury which they can easily have.

Following the advice of the article in the Press, "farmers plant tress," let every farmer select a suitable piece of ground for an orchard, and plant a grove of Cottonwood or some other quick growthed tree, from three to five rods wide around it; within the enclosure thus formed plant fruit trees and he will soon have wood and fruit.

A correspondednt of Moore's Rural New Yorker, April 1st writing from Wisconsin, says: "We must select such varieities as have been thoroughly tested—kinds which withstood one or more of our hard winters without permanent injury—kinds that originated in Northern New York Canada, and Rusia have been found, with scarcely an exception to be hardy; Crown grafts, tested varieties, suitable locations and soils, and careful cultivation, will insure success. There are peculiarities in the climate which demand experience prior to success. Experience gleaned from other states, is no criterion to follow here."

That a few experiments, in fruit raising, have resulted in failure should discourage no one—failures occur in good fruit growing localities.

E. H. Skinner, Marengo, Ill. says:—"Three years ago the coming spring I sub soiled and set five acres to orchard, doing the whole thing thoroughly, having men with spades and hoes, follow and take out all the stones the plow struck while plowing, as I had determined nothing should hinder the after cultivation. The expense being quite large it was often remarked by my friends and others visiting me that I never would get back the money expended. Now let us see: The second year after setting we picked from this orchard of five acres seven and one half barrels of apples and sold them for three dollars per barrel, making $22,50. The third, or last, season we picked one hundred and three bushels of one variety, also fourteen and one half barrels of another, and sold them at time of gathering for five dollars per barrel, amounting to $301 up to date. I call this doing a thing well and getting well paid for it This orchard of five acres is to-day worth two thousand dollars. Now within one hundred rods of this orchard is another one, set out by my neighbor, who, although a fine man, don't take any agricultural or horticultural paper; in fact don't believe in throwing away his money subscribing and paying the printer. Well, this man set out one hundred trees at the same time mine were set and mostly of the same varieties, out of the same lot of trees; he had most of them of me. While one tree of mine will weigh more than ten of his, he could carry all of his apples in his hat. Now take the two orchards into consideration for years to come and see which one will pay best on the money invested."

In setting out an orchard no one should forget, that, "a thing worth doing at all is worth doing well."

Pocket gophers are said to be the deadly enemies of fruit trees, totally destroying their roots, and should be exterminated if possible from the orchard

Yours Respectfully, RUSTICUS.

President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton.

A few days before the President's death, Secretary Stanton tendered his resignation of the War Department. He accompanied the act with a most heartfelt tribute to Mr. Lincoln's constant friendship and faithful devotion to the country, saying also, that he, as Secretary, had accepted the position to hold it only until the war should end, and that now he felt his work was done and his duty was to resign.

Mr. Lincoln was greatly moved by the Secretary's words, and tearing in pieces the paper containing the resignation, and throwing his arms about the Secretary, he said; "Stanton you have been a good friend and a faithful public servant, and it is not for you to say when you will be no longer needed here." Several friends of both parties were present. There was not a dry eye that witnessed the scene.—New York Independent.

Reprieve of a Person on the Point of Execution.

Thomas Martin was to have been shot at Cincinnati on the 5th inst., on charge of being a guerrilla. Just before arriving at the scene of execution, a reprieve arrived from the President. The scene is thus described by the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"At one o'clock precisely the prisoner was informed that he must prepare for the execution, and, without wavering, rose from his bunk, and taking his hat, proceeded to the carriage, in waiting at the door, to take him to the fatal spot. He bid good-bye to the officers of the barracks, thanking them for the many kindnesses they had extended to him, and added, 'Boys, I will die like a brave man.'

"As he crossed the sidewalk towards the carriage in company with Father Garesche, he glanced his eye to the hearse, in the rear of the carriage, in which was his coffin, of plain manufacture. Martin smiled and nodded to the undertaker. Thirty-one convalescent soldiers, under command of Lieutenant Millspaugh, acted as a guard to the prisoner, and walked on each side and in front and rear of the carriage. The procession then started, and consisted of the carriage with the prisoner, the hearse containing the coffin, and two ambulance wagons, filled with soldiers. On the way through the city young Martin bore himself with great firmness, but as they neared the fatal spot, his nature mellowed at the spectacle, and he wept for a few moments. Some stimulants were given him and he rallied again.

"During the morning of yesterday, the announcement that a citizen of Kentucky was to be shot unto death in this city for the first time became known to a few of our leading citizens, and the first dispatch was sent to Secretary Stanton at 10:20 o'clock, asking for a suspension of the sentence. Mr. Logan the prisoner's counsel, sent a similar dispatch, and Gen. Hart, of General Hooker's staff also forwarded a telegram to Gen. Hooker now en route from Springfield to Cincinnati. Gen. Hooker replied that the matter was beyond his control, and entirely out of his hands, and that the President was the only authority to be addressed in the premises. Secretary Stanton replied that he could not interfere, and that, unless the President suspended the execution, there was no remedy, and Thomas Martin would have to be executed.

"Telegrams were then sent to President Johnson, by Col. Hart and leading citizens. It was 12 meridan, and within two hours to come the unfortunate man was destined to pay the penalty. Anticipating a reply from Washington, a swift horse was in waiting in front of General Hooker's headquarters, and a messenger ready to carry the dispatch. 1 o'clock and no answer. The troops had moved and the prisoner had started. Half past 1 o'oclock, and still no reply. Oh, the suspense, the anxiety, and the mental excitement, of the many sympathizers in the young man's fate! The prisoner was half way to the place of execution, and in twenty five minutes more the volley of musketry would have been fired, and the soul of Thomas Martin would have been ushered into eternity. Still there was hope, and, as the nervous operator sat at his instrument, ready to receive the flash of electricity from Washington, a few citizens were at his side in waiting with almost breathless suspense.

At twenty-five minutes of two o'clock the quick click of the instrument, and the operator said, "Here is the reprieve." The dispatch was then received, which read as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C.
May 5, 1865.

Major General Joseph Hooker, Commanding Northern Department:

"Suspend the execution of Thomas Martin, to be executed in Cincinnati this day, until further orders.

By order of the President,
EDWIN M STANTON,
Secretary of War.

"The telegram was immediatley sent to Gen. Hooker's headquarters, and instantly Col. Hart dispatched Lawrence Sands, chief clerk of the headquarters, to the place where the execution was to occur. The courier dashed through the streets, across the fields, over fences, along by-paths, at John Gilpin speed, reaching the spot in seven minutes, the horse in a foam of prespiration, and the rider panting for breath. The procession, with the prisoner, was a few paces beyond the residence of Hon. George H. Pendleton, and in sight of the fatal ground In a few moments afterwards Gen. Willich, who also received notice that a reprieve had been granted by the President, came up rapidly. Receiving the dispatch, the troops were ordered to reform and return to the barracks and the prisoner was ordered to be conveyed to the McLean barracks.

"Young Martin received the announcement with calmness and manifest gratification. He took Father Garesche warmly by the hand and appeared grateful at the very beneficent and highly commendable action of the President.

"The announcement of a suspension of the execution was received by the crowd with universal satisfaction and thankfulness. The soldiers returned to Kelton barracks, greatly relieved in mind, and much affected at the happy result. The nine men who were detailed to do the shooting were under command of Sergeant Hollinscamp, and we never saw so happy a set of men in our lives as these soldiers.

LADIES PASTE THIS ON YOUR MIRRORS.—"I cannot forget pointing out to you my dearest child," said Lord Collingwood to his daughter, "the great advantages that will result from a temperate conduct and sweetness of manner to all persons, on all and every occasion. Never forget, then, 'that you are a gentlewoman, and all your words and actions should make you gentle. I never heard your mother—your dear good mother—say a hard or hasty thing to anybody in her life. Endeavor to imitate her. I am quick and hasty in my temper; but, my darling, it is a misfortune which, not having been sufficiently restrained in my youth, has given me more trouble to subdue this impetuosity than anything I ever undertook.', DESPONDENCY.—What right has any person, endowed with an ordinary share of intellect, and blessed with a respectable share of good health, to despond?

What is the cause of despondency?

What is the meaning of it? The cause is a weak mind, and the meaning is sin. Providence never intended that one of His creatures should be the victim of a desire to feel and look the gloom of the thunder-cloud. Although we cannot expect all our days and hours to be gilded by sunshine, we must not, for mere momentary griefs, suppose that they are to be enshrouded in the mists of misery, or clouded by the opacity of sorrow and misfortune.

MEXICO AND FRANCE.

We publish in our columns to-day two or three interesting documents relative to Mexico. One is a reply of the Mexican Minister at Washington to the statements recently made by M. Costa in the French Legislature. Another is a translation of the timely, patriotic and able protest which Senor Romero addressed to our government on the 6th of February last, with reference to the reported sale or hypothecation by the ex-Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian of Austria of certain portions of the territory of the republic of Mexico to Louis. Napoleon, Emperor of the French. This protest is naturally and properly addressed by the representative of Mexico to the United States, not only as it is the country to which he is accredited, but because of the vital interest which the United States and all of the republics on this continent have in a transaction so directly affecting their security as independent sovereignties.

If France has the right to come to this continent and partition out Mexico at her will, what safegnard has any other Power against a similar attempt at some convenient time when it may please France or some European Power to attack them? It is idle for Louis Napoleon to assert that Maximilian is a responsible sovereign. As the representative of Mexico very justly says, he is for Mexico only the agent of the Emperor of the French. He was carried to Mexico by French arms, and he is sustained there to-day only by French power. No specious arguments or assumptions can gloss over this fact, which is patent to all the world, and its bearings clearly understood. Consequently any transaction between Maximilian and Louis Napoleon is precisely of the same nature, and has no other, of a transaction between General Bazaine and Louis Napoleon. It can have no binding force whatever either in law or in equity upon the Mexican nation. Its provisions may be enforced so long as there are French arms present to enforce them, but they can be no longer. For French arms to remain in Mexico, however, to keep down the republic, is for Louis Napoleon to assume that French arms are to be stronger on this continent than the will of the American people. There are not many who will agree with him in this opinion after the verdict that has just been rendered in the United States that republican institutions shall live.

We regret, for the sake of those sanguine but ill-informed financiers of the speculative persuasion in paris who have just made a present to the unfortunate Maximilian of their first instalment of the loan which will come quite convenient for him to retire upon, that we could not have communicated to them this interesting correspondence at an earlier date. We know they would have been pleased to have seen it before they signed their late contract. Indeed, had this been the case, or had they been better informed as to the course of affairs on this continent, they would at least have saved the cost of the paper upon which their worthless scrip, like the rebel scrip in its every feature, is written.

It may be possible also for them to draw some conclusion from the nature of Mr. Seward's reply to Senor Romero's protest quite at variance, perhaps, with the assurances so confidently communicated by M. Rouher in the speech to which so much credit has unwisely been given.

We commend these documents to the thoughtful consideration of the subscribers to Maximilian's loan, and particularly to the public, whom they have sought to dupe.—N. Y. Herald.

The Moses of the Colored Men.

In October last Andrew Johnson, then Military Governor of Tennessee, made a speech to the colored people of Nashville, in which he declared slavery forever abolished in the State of Tennessee. After referring to the cruelties, the insults and the degration to which the colored people had been subjected, he said:

"Looking at this vast crowd of colored people and reflecting through what a storm of persecution and obloquy they are compelled to pass, I am almost compelled to wish that, in the days of old, a Moses might arise, who should lead them safely to their promised land of freedom and happiness."

"You are our Moses!" shouted several voices, and the exclamation was caught up and cheered until the Capitol rung again.

"God," continued the speaker, "no doubt has prepared somewhere an instrument for the great work he designs to perform in behalf of this outraged people; and in due time your leader will come forth; your Moses will be revealed to you.'

'We want no Moses but you!' again shouted the crowd.

'Well, then,' replied the speaker, 'humble and unworthy as I am, if no other better shall be found, I will indeed be your Moses, and lead you through the Red Sea of war and bondage to a fairer future liberty and peace. I speak now as one who feels the world his country, and all who love equal rights his friends.

I speak, too as a citizen of Tennessee, I am here on my own soil; and here I mean to stay and fight this great battle of truth and justice to a triumphant end. Rebellion and slavery shall by God's help no longer pollute our State.

Loyal men, whether white or black, shall alone control her destinies; and when this strife in which we are all engaged is past, I trust, I know, we shall have a better state of things, and shall all rejoice that honest labor reaps the fruit of its own industry, and that every man has a fair chance in the race of life.'

A woman lately looking at a Gordon press, on which the San Francisco Daily Fair Press was being printed looked up in the face of her male companion, and in the most earnest manner inquired 'Arragh, Tim! so them's the things as writes the papers? Be's them the things they call eydaters? Holy Mother of Moses! does the Yankees lie, abuse and blackguard one another by machinery.'

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday May 19, 1865.

KEEP IT IN REMEMBRANCE.

We publish, by request, a letter written by Governor Miller to James Miller, of our county, last fall, in reply to a request of the latter, directly after the massacre of Squire Mack and others, by Indians, for guns, ammunition and saddles. The letter is on a par with that written by Gen. Sibley, which appeared in print a few days since. The opinion of our Excellency and General Sibley seems to be that our settlers on the frontier who, with their families, are liable at any moment to the inroads of the merciless savages, should devote their whole time to hunting Indians, and be expected illy armed and equiped as they are, to capture and kill every straggling miscreant who appears in our settlements, while Sibley's veterans, who are in U. S. service, and are here in this State solely for the purpose of protecting the frontier, are not to be expected to condescend to such small work as preventing a few Indians, here and there, along the line of the frontier, from skulking into the settlements, and murdering a few whites, and then escaping unpunished, but are only to be useful while employed in regiments, and with cannon, and artillery, and delicious music, with Gen. Sibley and staff in their centre, with their numerous ambulances, to boldly march into the Indian country, shell off any Indians seen at a distance, and after having a weary summer's march, and killed a half dozen savages, march back to Fort Snelling, taking care to entrench every night until safe within the dusky walls of the old fort. This seems to be Gen. Sibley's idea of Indian warfare. He utterly forgets that our frontier settlers, instead of being discouraged and abandoning the country at the sight of Indians, are showing considerable pluck by remaining on the frontier entirely unprotected as they are. To talk about our citizens doing what our forefathers did in similar emergencies, is all bosh. Our forefathers never had any regular U. S. military force in their midst solely to protect them, and of course had to give their whole time to exterminating the red devils, until the last savage had disappeared.

But here is the difference between their case and ours. Our great Gen. Sibley has assured the settlers that they will surely be protected from the merciless savages by his military vigor, and by his military administration. He has promised to protect them: such a big promise our forefathers never had. Any one living in this section of the country can plainly see what will be the effect of these yearly incursions of Indians on our frontier. If our settlers cannot be assured of military protection, if the greater portion of their time is to be occupied in watching for the savages, what inducement have they to remain in our section. Better for them, by far, to return to their eastern homes, where, if the soil is not quite so prolific they will have the more time to till it. Such is the feeling of many of our settlers and such state of things as these annual Indian raids, demand that we should have a change of administration in conducting this Indian war, and the first change that should be introduced is the removing of General Sibley.

We challenge any one to show us what General Sibley has done, of any practical value, except to draw his salary regularly as a Brigadier General. A man who, with a force of several hundred armed men at St. Peter, would not allow them to march to the defence of New Ulm, during the outbreak of 1862, because he was afraid there were Indians really there, while an inferior officer under him, with only one company, in defiance of orders, did march to its relief, and arrived there in safety, is not fit to be at the head of our Indian military affairs in this State. General Sibley with his several hundred armed men did not think it prudent to go to the assistance of New Ulm, but Capt. Cox did. What did Sibley do, when, with his long train of ambulances, his heavy artillery, his pontoon bridges, his several thousand men, he pursued the hostile Sioux across the desert plain? Why, simply killed a half dozen Indians, not half the number that were killed that fall by private citizens. What has been done since by this Sibley, who has fought the Indians at his headquarters in St. Paul. We pause for a reply. Congress never committed a greater blunder than when it suffered a star to be placed upon the shoulders of this man. We do not wish to cast any reflections upon our brave soldiers who are in General Sibley's department. We know they are brave and are willing and eager to exterminate the last red skin from our State; but they must, as good soldiers, obey their superiors, and act as the powers that be command. Any one who heard the imprecations of the soldiers heaped on Sibley, and the deep chagrin that was visible on the faces of the brave boys who were in Sibley's caravan in the summer of 1863, would see that a change was needed in the military commanders, and a new style of Indian tactics adopted, which will consist of hunting the Indians to their holes, and not setting face back to the settlements until the hostile red skins are chastised so effectually that this generation at least, will have a rest from any more Indian outbreaks or hostilities.

It is a very easy and safe matter to place the responsibility of our late Indian troubles just where it should be placed, and the attempt to shift it to Gen. Pope will prove futile.

"WE'LL HANG JEFF. D., ON A SOUR APPLE TREE."

The United States forces have succeeded in capturing this infamous scoundrel, traitor and coward, and we shall soon have the pleasure, we trust, of recording the above as a truism. The so-called Confederacy has collapsed, and been found bound up in hoops. Crinoline, though generally so effective and influential, couldn't save it. Our dispatches give the particulars of this finishing stroke to the rebellion, a fit termination indeed, for so unholy a cause. On his arrival in Washington he will be tried for high treason, and we hope will be hung.

A LETTER FROM GOV. MILLER.

St. Paul Aug 29 1864

J. Miller, Shelbyville Minn.

SIR.—Yours of the 15th inst., is just at hand. Arms for companies, as well as their orgainzation, &c., are intrusted solely for your section of the State to Col. B. F. Smith, of Mankato, to whom you will please apply. The state can furnish no saddles.

No men will be paid by the state except the necessary number to hunt and slaughter Indians actually present, unless they be called out by the National or state authorities.

Your men are armed as state militia, if they have obeyed the law, and if as you say, six Indians were seen in the edge of the woods on the evening, of the 14th, and if your forty men have suffered these infamous savages to escape alive, they have done a discredit to themselves that I could not have believed.

The citizens of the frontier have my earnest sympathy, and I will do my best to assist them; but unless they slaughter every isolated Indian or marauding band that approaches them, as our fathers did in other western states, ten thousand men could not prevent these disgraceful panics and stampedes.

Respectfully yours,
S. MILLER
Gov. Minn.

THE DAKOTA PRESBYTERY.

The Dakota Presbytery convened at the Presbyterian Church in this place, on Tuesday evening of the 2nd inst. It was well represented by both Clerical and Lay delegates, from the different churches under its care. According to custom, the moderator Rev. Dr. Williamson preached the sermon at the opening of the session. In his discourse he showed the necessity of extending the laws of the United States to those Indians who live within the limits of its jurisdiction. That the Government by enforcing its laws and bringing Indians to justice for crimes committed among themselves would furnish additional protection to the white settlers. But so long as the Indians are permitted to commit murder among themselves without meeting with condign punishment, so long will the lives of the settlers be more or less in jeopardy.

On Wednesday morning after spending one half hour in devotional exercises the Presbytery proceeded to transact general business—Rev. Mr. Day of the Methodist Church, and Rev. J. G. Craven of the Baptist Church were invited to sit as corresponding members,—Mr. John B. Renville of St. Anthony, at his own request was taken under the care of the Presbytery and after an examination which was well sustained the candidate was licensed to preach the gospel.

Rev. Thomas Marshall of the 4th Presbytery of New York City presented his letter and was received into membership.

The statistics of the different churches connected with the Presbytery presented many encouraging features. Some of these churches have been refreshed with precious seasons of grace. Numerous new fields are opening and calling for laborers. The question is not where can we find fields of labor, but, where are the faithful men who are willing to thrust in the sickle and reap the harvest that is perishing for want of care?

In all matters brought before this eclesiastical body, the most perfect harmony prevailed. In all its deliberations there was such a flow of christian symthy and brotherly love, that each one felt constrained to say, "It is good to be here."

Rev. Mr. Peck of Traverse, and elder A. D. Seward of Mankato were chosen as delegates to the General Assembly which meets at Brooklyn, N. Y. the present month.

A vote was passed thanking the people of Mankato who so liberally entertained the delegates from abroad.

On Thursday, 12 o'clock, after prayer and singing the doxology the Presbytery adjourned to meet at Traverse in September next.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

We have been permitted to make the following extracts from a private letter from a Union Refugee from Texas to a relative in this place. It is interesting as showing the effect the Rebellion has produced in the minds of loyal men in relation to slavery and the negroes, and what the hopes and reliance of these Union men for their future safety and protection must be. The negro has helped to save the nation, and now they must depend on him to help save the separate States in which they were slaves.

NEW ORLEANS' April 28 1865.

MY DEAR UNCLE:—Your letter of the 14 inst., is to hand, and I most heartily join you, in your joy at our success, and in your hopes for the future. I shall go to Texas just as soon as our army gets a foothold there, and I want and shall expect you to join me. Indeed we shall need you badly, as we will have in all probability much trouble in organizing the State Government.

But I fear my dear uncle, you will find me too radical to suit your notions; for I have been schooled in adversity, and educated by the calamities and chastisements of my country, until I hope I am free from the prejudices peculiar to the South, and the blind uninformed fanaticism of some parties at the North. And I have come to the conclusion that the only hope for the present peace and security of loyal white men in the south is to allow the most loyal element in it, full and equal rights and priviliges under the law, even the highest of all privileges, that of an American citizen, with the right to vote. I have entertained this conviction for some time, which was, however, to some extent modified by a desire to adopt my actions to suit the policy which might be adopted by our late great and good President, as whatever policy he might have adopted would with his aid, have been likely to have succeeded. But since his death, his clear head, and steady hand, and honest heart no longer directs the course of events, I feel it my duty to my country—to four million of loyal citizens of that country, and to myself, to assume a more firm and decided stand for the rights of the negro in the Southern States. I shall insist upon it as their right, which they have fairly won by their services and loyalty to the Government, independent of any personal interest I might feel in the matter; but the truth is, my ability to maintain my rights depends upon conceeding the same right to them. My ability to live in peace at my home in Texas depends on the protection which the power and influence of the negro may be able to afford me. The Rebels are as intolerant and insulting as ever in their views; and will again make a desperate effort to control public sentiment through the same old ignorant prejudices through which they have ruined their States. Union men will again soon find themselves the victims of Mobs, Vigilance Committees, &c., unless thorough means are adopted to thwart it. I am unwilling to again put myself in a position, where either my life, my personal liberty, or my property may, by any possibility, be at the mercy of the old political leaders of the South. Their power for evil must be broken and destroyed, and I propose to settle the question now at once, and forever.

These views meet with opposition from a portion of the Texans at this place, but a large number are up to my standard. Among them are Gen. Hamilton, Gen. Davis, Col. Haynes, Turner, Alexander and many others. Equal rights for the negro is our motto, and I swear they shall have it. Now, my dear uncle, if you are with us in this matter, do by all means come down as soon as a move is made towards Texas, and we will try, side by side, to combat the prejudices of these wild Texans, not by inflamatory appeals, nor by means of such bravadoes and menaces as we were driven out of the country, but by appeals to the reason of thinking men, and demonstrating to them that this is the only means which can afford a certain remedy for the present evils of a disbanded soldiery and a disorganized society, and of driving the political demagogues, who have lead them to their ruin out of the country. If, however, when I get back I find the people still bent on evil, and holding onto their old engines of despotism—"Vigilance Committees," "Knights of the Golden Circle" &c &c,—I will meet them by organizing the loyal and negro element, (and you know I can control the latter) and will make myself safe on the principle adopted to protect one's self from fire on the Prairies of Texas. The practability of such an organization being made must have a good effect; for they well know the mercy they would receive from the negroes once aroused. If driven to such dire necessity, give us a month to organize and every Vigilance Committee could be soon driven out of the country, and every Union man made as safe as he is in Minnesota to day.

You know how earnestly I have ever opposed any thing like a mob. That I have run the risk of losing my own life in my efforts to thwart and suppress them; and I shall surely never wilfully do any act to create a disturbance or breach of the law, much less to shed blood. But I will never be driven from my home again by mob.

Since writing the above, there is a report of the surrender of Johnston to Sherman, which, if true, and approved by the Government, will make me a refugee for life. It will drive me to desperation. I have sworn eternal enmity to slavery, and I will continue the fight against it by every possbile means that promises to make it unprofitable and dangerous. I will not scruple to use every means in my power to destroy it come what may. This rebellion found me a slave owner and an honest and earnest defender of it as it then existed in the South. But I am throughly and completely cured of that error. To slavery I can trace all my own and my countries misfortunes and henceforth I am its inveterate enemy.

INDIGNATION MEETING.

A meeting of the citizens of Blue Earth Co. was held at Vernon on the 12th of May for the purpose of giving expression to the feelings of the people of this section in reference to the late Indian raid and the inefficent means employed by the Government for guarding our frontier. J. Miller esq. was chosen Chairman, and M. B. Haynes Secretary.

Speeches was made by Messrs, Buckwalter, Mason, and others, after which the committee of resolutions consisting of I, L. Buckwalter, T. Sowers and S. R. Granis, reported the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted.

Wheras, hostile Indians are coming into the Blue Earth settlements, in numerous bands, shooting men, stealing horses and brutally murdering whole families—and wheras, this has been the exposed condition of the frontier for the last three of four years—and whereas, most of the able bodied men have been taken away from the border to fight for our common country, thus leaving but a few to defend our homes and cultivate the crops, necessary to secure food for our families. Many being new settlers, and no houses to live in—and whereas, the Indians commencing so early and as we learn are coming in such large numbers, the probability is that they intend to concentrate, and when the grass is up and the leaves are out to begin a war, or bloody massacre on a large scale like that of Cottenwood and New Ulm a few years ago. And whereas, the people are much alarmed seeing their iminent peril. Their wives and children being in danger of being butchered in cold blood. Some are leaving for parts more safe, and this fair portion of the country is likely to be laid waste, and many families ruined. Therefore we the people have assembled together, as freemen have a right to do, to speak of our fearful and dangerous condition, and lay our grievances before our rulers, to demand of them assistance and protection according to the laws of our country and of humanity, therefore.

Resolved 1st That the number of soldiers placed on the frontier line of stockades amount to no defence at all, as the soldiers and lower officers all affirm. One company of men scattered along a line near two hundred miles, and some of the posts are so far apart that the Indians pass and repass just as they please, the soldiers themselves being witnesses, any one can see that this amounts to nothing.

Resolved, 2nd That we utterly protest against H. Sibleys misrepresentation through the public press, of our defences, and his almost entire neglect of our safety. And even now when it is well know from authentic sources that the Indians are already on our very border in large numbers, he has only sent us a very small number of men from Fort Snelling. We feel that it is an unpardonable sin, and intensely evil that the military commander of this district, to whom are commited the lives of our people, should suffer us, our wives and children to be exposed to the bloody tomahawk of the savage Indians, when he has the means so amply at command to make the settlers entirely safe.

Resolved, 3d That we have confidence in the faithfulness of the authorities at Washington, if they were acquainted with the facts in the case, that Gen. Sibley would be removed from his command. That we see the same cause for his removal which has procured the removal of many of our generals, viz. Sympathy with the enemy, and pecuniary interest in the prolongation of our Indian troubles. And that troops would be immediately sent to us, to save our lives in the day of our peril.

Resolved, 4th That the western expedition under Gen. Sibley, so far as border safety, or the extermination of the Indians is concerned, is a miserable humbug, as the private soldiers all acknowledge. And is gotten up for the purpose of playing into the pockets of a few speculating men. And that with less than one fourth of its cost, our border might be made perfectly safe. If Bracketts Battalion had only been left here as by all means it ought to have been, we might have kept back this Indian storm.

Resolved, 5th That Governor Miller who is sworn to protect all his people in every part of the state, ought upon the first reliable report of the savages actually making for the settlement, to have provided that either federal or State troops under thorough command were sent to our relief. But thus far his conduct in this matter is highly blameworthly, for this trouble has been brewing for months, and even last fall the people earnestly plead with him for better means of safety, upon which we got a promise but nothing more.

Resolved, 6th And what adds bitterness and aggravation to our sufferings is that some five or six hundred of our best men have been freely sent South, to put down the great rebellion, consequently leaves us in this destitute condition, (which the Indians very well understand.) Now the war is over, they are away doing nothing, and ought by all means to be called immediately home that they might prevent the bloody massacre of their own wives and children, their own mothers and sisters and brothers. But this they are not permitted to do because of the indifference of our rulers, "O! tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon."

Resolved 7th That we believe the number of stockades on the frontier ought to be at least double, with at least fifty men at each fort, under prompt and energetic commanders. That the increase of expenses would fall very much short of the dangers sustained by the country for want of such an arrangement. And that we most urgently plead with our rulers for two or three thousand soldiers to be sent to our relief immediately, that the savages may be beaten back, the confidence of the people restored, and the ruin of this part of the country prevented.

Resolved, 8th Resolved that only as a last resort will we consent to leave this country, but that we are determined to resist the onslaught of the savages and sustain ourselves here as long as possible.

Resolved, 9th That the Mankato papers, and St. Paul Press be requested to publish the above resolutions, and that coppies be sent to Gov. Miller, to the authorities at Washington, and to our representative the Hon. Mr. Windom and that he use his influence to carry out the spirit of the above resolutions.

J. MILLER Chairmon.
M. B. HAYNES, Secretary.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

CAPTURE OF JEFF DAVIS.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, May 13.

To Major General Dix:

The following dispatch just received from Gen. Wilson, announces the surprise and capture of Jeff Davis and his staff, by Colonel Pritchard of the 4th Michigan Cavalry, on the morning of the 10th instant, at Irwinville, in Irwin County, Georgia.

(Signed) E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, May 14, 1865.

To Major-General Dix:

The following details of the capture of Jeff. Davis, while attempting to make his escape in his wife's clothes, have been received from Brevet Maj. Gen. Wilson, (Signed) E. M. STANTON.

Secretary of War.

MACON Ga., May 13—11 A. M.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton:

The following dispatch, announcing the capture of Jeff. Davis, has just been handed to me by Col. Mentz, commanding the 2d division.

HEAD'RS 4TH MICHIGAN CAVALRY,
CUMBERLANDVILLE, GA., May 11.

To Capt. A. Scott. A. D. C.:

I have the honor to report that at day-light, at Irwinville, I surprised and captured Jeff. Davis and family, together with his wife's sister and mother, his postmaster general, his private secretary, Col. Harrison, Col. Johnson, A. D. C. in Davis' staff, Col. Morris, Lieuts. Lubreck and Hathaway, and several other important persons. Also a train of five wagons and three ambulances—making a most perfect success. Had not a most painful mistake occurred, by which the 4th Michigan and the 1st Wisconsin came in contact, we should have done better. This mistake cost us two killed and Lieut. Bontle wounded through the arm, in the 4th Michigan, and four men in the 1st Wisconsin.

This occurred just at daylight, after we had captured the camp.

We returned to this point last night, and shall move right on to Macon. It will take me at least three days to reach Macon, as we are 72 miles out, and our stock is much exhausted. I hope to reach Hawkinsville to night.

B. D. PRITCHARD,
Lieut. Col. 4th Michigan Cav.

The First Wisconsin belongs to Logan's brigade of McCook's division, and had been sent due east by Gen. Craxton via Dublin. Col. Mentz had distributed his command along the south bank of the Ocmulgee and Alatamaka.

This accounts for the collision between parts of the 1st and 2d corps divisions, and shows the zeal of the commands in pursuit. I have directed increased vililance on the part of the command in hopes of catching the other assassins.

Our disposition of men is good, and so far none of the rebel chiefs have been able to get through. Breckinridge's son was captured night before last, eleven miles south of here. We will send further details as soon as received.

(Signed) H, WILSON.
Brevet Major General.

MACON, May 13—9 A. M.

To Hon. E M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

Lieutenant Colonel Harden, of the 1st Wisconsin has just returned from Irwinville. He struck the train of Davis at Dublin, Lawrence county on the evening of the 7th, and followed him closely night and day, through the wilderness of Alligator Creek and Green Swamp via Cumberland to Irwinville.

At Cumberlandville, Colonel Harden met Colonel Pritchard with 150 picked men and horses of the 4th Michigan cavalry. Harden followed the train directly South while Pritchard having fresh horses, pushed down the Ocmulgee toward Hopswell, and thence by House Creek to Irwinville, arriving there at midnight. From citizens, Pritchard learned that his party were encamped two miles out of town. He made a disposition of his men, and surrounded the camp before day. Harden had camped at 9. A. M., within two miles as he afterwards learned from Davis, the trail being too indistinct to follow. He pushed on at three A. M., and had gone but a little more than a mile when his advance was fired upon by men of the 4th Michigan. A fight ensued, both parties exhibiting the greatest determination, fifteen minutes elapsed before the mistake was discovered.

The firing in this skirmish was the first warning Davis had. The captors report that he hastily put on one of his wife's dresses and started for the woods, closely followed by our men. They at first thought him a woman, but seeing boots while he was running, they suspected his sex at once. The race was a short one. The rebel President was soon brought to bay.

He brandished a bowie knife and showed signs of battle, but yielded promptly to the persuasions of Colt's revolvers without compelling the men to fire.

He expressed great indignation at the energy with which he was pursued, saying that he had believed our government too magnanimous to hunt down women and children.

Mrs. Davis remarked to Col. Harden, after the excitement was over, that the men had better not provoke the President, as he might hurt some of them.

"Regan" behaves himself with dignity and resignation. The party evidently were making for the coast.

J. H. WILSON,
Brevet Major General.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive scaled bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved Feburary 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit"

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shal fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands, by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

Lieut Watson.—We received a call from this gentleman, yesterday, who is connected with the 25th Indiana Battery, and otherwise known as the "ladies' substitute." He has served in the army for four years, and at the end of his first enlistment was honorably discharged. At a sanitary Fair in Indiana, he offered himself to a committee of ladies to be raffled for $10 a chance. A number of chances were sold, and the winner of the prize being a drafted man immediately placed him in the service. His value as an officer being soon discovered, he was made Lieut. of the Battery, and now occupies the position of post inspector at Decatur, Alabama. He is on a visit to his fathers near Red Wood. Being a member of "the craft," and of course, a fine social gentleman, we commend him to the friendship of all.

District Court.—The May term of the District Court, convened in City Hall, on Tuesday, and after a two days session adjourned. His Honor, Horace Austin, presided. There was but little business before the court. The Calender contained seventeen cases, nearly all of which were continued.. One jury trial was had, in the case of Underwood against the town of Shelby, an action brought to recover bounty monies. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, with $475,60 damages. Judge Austin's manner of conducting business gave satisfaction to all the members of the bar, and we predict he will be a popular Judge. He dispatches business rapidly, and with a view to saving expense to the county. We like his style.

Hotel Sale.—Grove Burt is now sole proprietor of the Mankato House, having purchased the interest of James Shoemaker. This hotel so long a favorite with the traveling public, will now be conducted in better style than ever before, and no pains will be spared to entertain guests. If good rooms, clean beds, a well set table, provided with the best in the market, and an obliging and affable host constitute a good hotel, then the Mankato House is the best one in the valley.

Personal.—We take pleasure in welcoming home our old townsman, G. W. Cummings, M. D., who has been absent since 1861. He enlisted as a private in the U. S. service and by his perseverance energy, and good conduct, has worked his way up to an enviable position. He is now in the Medical service, and is attached to Hancock's army corps. He will accept our thanks for a bundle of late papers.

New Millinery Goods.—Mrs. Oglesby has received a part of her summer stock of millinery goods and invites the ladies to call and examine her new style of hats, and bonnets, and beautiful trimmings, before purchasing elsewhere. And we can assure you ladies they are very fine. She has the best and prettiest assortment of flowers we have yet seen. Also a fine assortment of nets, and ornaments for bonnets. We recommend ladies in town and from abroad to patronize her.

Death from Excessive Joy.—We are pained to announce the death of the wife of one of our most respected citizens, last night, from the above cause. She was an excellent christian woman, and her loss will be deeply felt in the social circle in which she moved. The cause, which led to her sudden death, as stated to us by the bereaved husband, is as follows; He was out shopping in the afternoon, and at night brought home a parcel of clothes. He went in to his room, and put them on, and presented himself before his wife. She was so over joyed at seeing him dressed up in a suit of clothes, purchased at Randall & Smith's Clothing Emporium, that she instantly expired. There are several other ladies waiting to expire from the same cause. A change of partners can thus be easily effected by purchasing your clothing at Randall & Smith's Clothing Emporium, and save the trouble of getting a divorce.

Accident.—Mr. Seeley, of Shelby, while riding in a wagon, received a severe wound in his left arm from the accidental discharge of his gun. The wound was so severe that amputation was performed by Drs. Clark, of this place and Welcome, of Garden City.

Another.—A son of Mr. Johnson, of Nicollet, was accidentally shot on Sunday last, the contents of the gun lodging in his arm above the wrist. Dr. Clark is attending the case, and has hopes of saving the arm.

Struck by Lightning.—The school house in West Mankato was struck by lightning on Tuesday last, during the severe rain-storm. The school was in session at the time, but we understand no person was injured.

For Sale.—A house and lot in Mankato. Has an excellent well of water, good cellar, good garden, and other conveniences. For terms, apply at this of-

The Presbyterian Church now in process of completion, will not be finished until about the first of July. In the meantime services will be held in City Hall. Rev. Mr. Day occupying the pulpit in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Marshall, in the evening.

Magic.—Saturday evening Mr. Abournet will perform some of his wonderful magic feats at City Hall. His entertainments are very highly spoken of by our exchanges in this and other States. Give him a full house, and see his advertisement elsewhere.

Lewis & Frisbie have received a full supply of books, stationary, blank books, &c., to which they call attention.

Good Flour.—A. T Williams is now selling a good article of flour for $2,50 per hundred. He has also just received about three hundred gallons of stone ware which he is offering at very low prices.

We learn that the steam saw mill at Vernon was burned down Wednesday night. The origin of the fire is unknown as yet.

The County Board have offered a bounty of $200 for the scalp of every Indian killed in this county,

Discontinued—The post offices at Vernon Centre, in this county, and Verona, in Faribault county, have been discontinued. This is a great injustice to the people in those sections. The office at Vernon supplied at least eighty families, who are now obliged to go to Garden City, or Liberty for their mail. The office at Liberty accomodates only about six or eight families, and its discontinuence would have discommoded but a few. The office at Verona was a great convenience to the people there. We presume the Department will revoke the orders when they learn the facts.

Express Agency.—J. G. Simpson has been appointed agent for the Blue Earth Valley Express Co., in this place. The line is now owned by John Franklin, an energetic, enterprising business man, who will make things "slam" in fine style.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows, and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instruments constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "Geo. A Prince & Co." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞These are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the baleful derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases,—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that the thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Exempt from Stamp Duty.

Editor of Mankato Union:

Dear Sir;—With your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send, by return mail, to all who wish it (free) a recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple vegetable balm that will effectually remove, in ten days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles, and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads, or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxuriant Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than thirty days. All applications answered by return mail without charge,

Respectfully yours,
THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,
36-3m 831 Broadway, New York.

Whiskers! Whiskers!—Do you want Whiskers or Moustaches? Our Grecian Compound will force them to grow on the smoothest face or chin, or hair on bald heads, in six weeks. Price $1,00. Sent by mail anywhere closely sealed, on receipt of price. Address

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31.26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to wit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expeuses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, minn. March 31, 1865.

HELMBOLD'S

GENUINE

PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves, Trembling,
Horror of Disease, Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin, Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude, Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

In one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ See Symptoms above.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!

Helmbold's

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect Helmbold's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the Blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time, the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with [illegible] living witnesses, and upward of [illegible] certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:

See Dispensatory of the United States.

See Professor Dewees' valuable works on the Practice of Physic.

See remarks made by the celebrated Dr. Physic, Phila.

See remarks made by Dr. Ephraim McDowell, a celebrated Physician and Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, and published in the Transactions of the King and Queen's Journal.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned has assumed the General Subscription Agency for the sale of United States Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent. interest, per annum, known as the

SEVEN-THIRTY LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of August 15th, 1864, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a premium of nine per cent, including gold interest from Nov. which makes the actual profit on the 7-30 loan, at current rates, including interest, about ten per cent per annum, besides its exemption from State and municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent more, according to the rate levied on other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest amounts to

One cent per day on a	$50	note.

now offered by the Government, and it is confidently expected that its superior advantages will make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $200,000,000 remain unsold, which will probably be disposed of within the next 60 or 90 days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31.26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it. and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, towit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earth, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, Minn. March 31, 1865.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,
	Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

In one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH

Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

[illegible] BLOOD [illegible]
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

[illegible]

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time, the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for

Freights and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

BEE CULTURE.

Editor Mankato Union:

It will scarcely be considered prudent, perhaps, in the present excited state of the public mind, to refer to anything but matters of present defence, and future security, making no mention of future pleasure and profit. But, whatever may have been the discouragements of the past, or however great the danger of the present, we are still expected to provide for the future.

Dr. Dzierton, of Germany, and L. L. Langstroth, of the United Ltates, cotemporary writers and apiarians, have made recent discoveries which render bee culture a source of national wealth, as individual profit.

"Langstroth on the honey bee and hive," a work of four hundred pages, giving the experience of twenty years, in the apiary, together with plates of his moveable comb hive, and his system of bee culture, should be read by every farmer, whether he is the owner of bees or not; for if he has none, he will obtain a colony soon after reading this book.

THE MOVEABLE COMB HIVE,

Is so constructed that each comb is built in a separate frame, and is not connected with the hive, except at the top. There are twelve or fifteen of these moveoble frames in a hive, which may be lifted from it separately, and the bees and comb examined with ease and accuracy.

The hive consists of two apartments, one above the other. The lower apartment containing the moveable frames, is intended for the use of the bees, above which are placed the "supers," intended to be filled with honey for the use of the owner.

ARTIFICIAL SWARMING.

By the use of movable comb hives, the old system of natural swarming, by which many of the most valuable swarms are lost every season, is avoided, and "artificial swarming may be easily and quickly performed."

BEE CULTURE PROFITABLE.

By using the hive described above, according to Langstroth's directions, bee raising becomes a source of wealth as well as pleasure.

From three to four swarms may be obtained from a single colony in one season. Taking the lowest estimate, three swarms, deducting one swarm for accidents, let us see what will be the proceeds of a single swarm in ten years. At the end of the first year you will have two new and one old swarm; increasing three fold each year, at the end of ten years, you will have 59,094 swarms, unless, like Dr. Dzierton, you are so unfortunate as to lose a number of your swarms. These figures seem high, but I have seen them verified up to the third year. Valuing each swarm at $5 including hive, we have $295,245. To this must be added the surplus honey. Dr. Dzierton says he obtained 160 pounds of honey from one colony in one season. Taking one-fourth of this amount we have the

While such results are only possible, not probable, every one must admit that bee raising is highly profitable—The poet well may sing;—

"Thou cheerful Bee! come, freely come.
And travel round my woodbine bower:
Delight me with thy wandering hum,
And rouse me from my musing hour:
Oh! try no more those tedious fields;
Come, taste the sweets my garden yields:
The treasure of each blooming mine,
The buds, the blossoms—all are thine."

RUSTICUS.

LET YOUR DOMESTIC ANIMALS HAVE SALT.—Animals that are primitted to roam in the salt marshes are generally healthy: they consume a large amount of saline material; the antispeptic property of salt is too well known and apreciated by most husbandmen, and the farmer might as well think of dispensing with food as to fail in seasoning food with salt.

TO CURE A 'FELON.'—As soon as the part begins to swell, get the tincture of lobelia, and wrap the part effected with cloth, saturate it thoroughly with the tincture, and the felon will soon 'die'—poisoned instead of hung, as all felons ought to be. An old physician informs us that he has known this to cure in scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

From Harpers Weekly.

For some time after the late terrible events it was feared that Mr. Seward might have been so seriously injured by his accident and the subsequent murderous assault as to be compelled to retire from the public service. As that apprehension has been happily dispelled, and as the characteristic assertion of some of the Northern friends of the rebellion that Mr. Seward ought to retire because his presence in the Cabinet would be so distasteful to Messrs. Lee, Davis, Wigfall, & Co. as to disincline them to submission, has also disappeared in derisive laughter, it is now insinuated by those who suggest what they desire that President Johnson's policy will not have the cordial support of the Secretary, and that therefore Mr. Seward will resign.

Those who say this are not aware, perhaps, that Mr. Seward's friends in the Baltimore Convention of last June secured the nomination of Mr. Johnson as Vice-President, and that it is therefore a great waste of ingenuity to assume any grave difference between the President and Secretary in their general policy.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Seward had served together in the Senate, where they were firm personal friends. There Mr. Seward had seen that his fellow-Senator, a land-reformer, a stern Union man, a trusted representative of the people of the South as distinguished from the planting aristocracy, was the very kind of leader by whom the political power of the aristocracy was ultimately to be overthrown in its own section. Mr. Seward had watched Mr. Johnson's heroic position in the dark winter of 1860-'61. He had heard his terrible denunciation of the conspirators in the Senate. As Secretary of State Mr. Seward had supported Mr. Lincoln's "Border-State policy," as it was impatiently called; and it was while pursuing that policy that Mr. Lincoln had appointed his friend Mr. Johnson Military Governor of Tennessee. With his administration there Mr. Seward had been, of course, officially familiar.

As the time for the meeting of the Union nominating Convention approached, the perilous chances of the civil war made it essential that a candidate for the Vice-Presidency should be named whose character and career certified that, in case of his succession to the Presidency, the established policy of the Government would not be changed or menaced. And we venture to say that the man whose nomination Mr. Seward most earnestly desired was Andrew Johnson.

When the Convention assembled the nomination of Mr. Lincoln was a fore gone conclusion. But the candidate for the Vice Presidency was not so easily determined. One point, however, was universally admitted by the wiser part of the Convention. Pure and honorable as Mr. Hamlin's career had been, and personally unexceptionable as he was, his nomination was not advisable.

As the Convention was composed of men who had heretofore acted with different political comity required that the Union Convention of 1864 should not repeat the party action of the Republican Convention of 1860, but, by naming a candidate formerly identified with the Democratic party, should prove that it appealed to no partisan traditions, but to the hearty sympathy of all Union men in the country. Who should this candidate be? It was upon this question that the caucusing of the Convention turned. For whom would the sixty six votes of New York be cast? As they went, so would the Convention probably go. It was soon clear that the choice practically lay between Mr Johnson and Mr. Dickinson of New York, and it seems to us indisputable that the final decision was made in the caucus of the New York delegation, and made by the friends of Mr. Seward in favor of Andrew Johnson.

Mr. Lyman Tremaine, the old political friend of Mr. Dickinson, very properly and very powerfully led the Dickinson movement. Mr. Dickinson's long identification with the Democratic party; his instant and entire devotion of all his powers to the cause of the Union and the Government; his incessant and effective service from the outbreak of the war; his vast majority of one hundred and eight thousand votes in his own State as the Union candidate for Attorney General showing his great popularity in the State which it was necessary to carry at the Presidential election; his national fame; his spotless character; his repudiation of old party ties; all these arguments were pungently and impressively presented by Mr. Tremaine, without an unkind word against any other candidate, and with an applause both in the caucus and Convention which showed how hearty was the appreciation of Mr. Dickinson's claims and character among that great representative body of faithful American citizens. In the caucus of the New York delegation Mr. Tremaine was supported by some who had no sympathy whatever with the party to which he and Mr. Dickinson had belonged, but who regarded the latter gentleman as a conspicuous national representative of what was called the War Democracy, and who thought that his nomination would greatly strengthen the ticket in the State of New York.

The discussion in the caucus was animated and exciting. It betrayed the differences and animosities which prevail in New York politics. But the one thing steadily obvious in all the tumultuous conflict of opinion was that the friends of Mr. Seward were favorable

Raymond tranquilly urged the irresistible advantages of a candidate who was a southerner, yet a Union man who had been tried in the fire of the hate of the rebel chiefs whom he had denounced. They pleaded his solitary fidelity in the midst of the defection of his old associates in the Senate; his actual sufferings in the cause; the great confidence reposed in him by Mr. Lincoln, who had intrusted to him one of the most difficult and delicate of responsibilities at a most critical time. They depicted the cordial sympathy between the President and Mr. Johnson, and the rare popularity among the people of a man who had been born and bred in the humblest circumstances, yet who had risen to merited distinction. They recounted his services and his long practical experience of public life. They pointed to his administration of Tennessee, which only the bitter enemies of the Government and friends of the rebellion condemned, and contended that by selecting a candidate who did not live in the State of New York the dangers of political division in that State would be avoided.

They did not forget to recall also that, in all the long course of a public life during which he had been an ardent and conspicuous actor, his personal character had been unsullied by suspicion. No man could deny that Andrew Johnson was a name so identified with unswerving devotion and willing sacrifice to the country that it would be hailed with vast popular enthusiasm.

Meanwhile Mr. Dickinson's friends were not idle, and his chances were imposing. Mr. Simon Cameron came to offer the fifty-two votes of Pennsylvania for Mr. Dickinson if New York would unite upon him. Many of the New England delegations were ready to adopt him upon the same condition. But the friends of Mr. Seward, without denying the claims of Mr. Dickinson, still held firmly that it was wiser to nominate Mr. Johnson. Had they yielded, Mr. Johnson would not now be President of the United States. It is pleasant to remember that when afterward in the Convention it appeared that Mr. Johnson had a larger vote than any other candidate, the friends of Mr. Dickinson at once acquiesced. The vote of New York was thrown as a unit, and it was Mr. Tremaine who promptly and honorably moved that the nomination of Mr. Johnson should be made unanimous by the Convention. Nor is it less agreeable to record that one of the last acts of President Lincoln, at the earnest request of the Secretary of State, was the appointment of Mr. Dickinson, to his own great suprise, to his present responsible post,

If, therefore, Mr. Seward retires from the Cabinet, it will not be because the President is not of his choice. And why should he retire? He is in the ripeness of his powers, and his work is not done. Who would do it so well as he?

How Gen. Grant Outflanked Secretary Stanton.

From the New York Herald, of the 11th.

When Gen. Grant was about to leave Washington to enter upon that sublime campaign which began with the battle of the Wilderness and ended with the down fall of the rebellion, he called upon Secretary Stanton to say good-bye. The Secretary was anxiously awaiting him.

During the two and a half years that President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton had managed the Eastern armies, it was the first point in their plans to keep Washington heavily garrisoned with troops. Large bodies of men were stationed in the fortifications around the city, and other large bodies were kept within supporting distance. Now that Grant had come into power, Stanton wanted to see that the defence of Washington was not overlooked. Accordingly, after a few preliminaries, the Secretary remarked:

'Well, General, I suppose you have left us enough men to strongly garrison the forts?'

'No,' said Grant, coolly; 'I can't do that.'

'Why not?' cried Stanton, jumping nervously about. 'Why not? Why not?'

'Because I have already sent the men to the front,' replied Grant, calmly.

'That won't do,' cried Stanton, more nervous than before. 'It's contrary to my plans. I can't allow it. I'll order the men back.'

'I shall need the men there,' answered Grant, 'and you can't order them back'

'Why not?' inquired Stanton again. 'Why not? Why not?'

'I believe that I rank the Secretary in this matter,' was the quiet reply.

'Very well,' said Stanton, a little warmly, 'we'll see the President about that. I'll have to take you to the President.'

'That's right,' politely observed Grant, 'the President ranks us both.'

Arrived at the White House, the General and the Secretary asked to see the President upon important business, and in a few moments the good-natured face of Mr. Lincoln appeared.

'Well, gentlemen,' said the President, with a genial smile. 'what do you want with me?'

'General,' said Stanton, stiffly, 'state your case'

'I have no case to state,' replied Gen. Grant, 'I'm satisfied as it is,' thus outflanking the Secretary, and displaying the same strategy in diplomacy as in war,

'Well, well,' said the President, laughing,' 'state your case, Secretary.'

Secretary Stanton

ded, the President crossed his legs, rested his elbow on his knee, twinkled his eyes quaintly, and said:

'Now; Secretary, you know we have been trying to manage this army for two years and a half, and you know we haven't done much with it. We sent over the mountains and brought Mister Grant—as Mrs. Grant calls him—to manage it for us, and now I guess we had better let Mister Grant have his own way.'

From this decision there was no appeal. Nobody ranked the President. So Gen. Grant went off with the army, and Sec. Stanton went back to his office.

The Forest Funeral.

She was a fair child, with masses of long black hair lying over her pillow. Her eye was dark and piercing, and as it met mine she started slightly, but smiled and looked upward. I spoke a few words to her father, and turning to her asked her if she knew her condition.

"I know that my Redeemer liveth," said she in a voice whose melody was like the sweetest strain of the Aeolian. You may imagine that the answer startled me, and with a very few words of like import I turned from her. A half hour passed, and she spoke in the same deep, rich, melodious voice—"Father I am cold—lie down beside me;" and the old man lay down by his dying child, and she twined her arms around his neck, and murmured in a dreamy voice, "dear father, dear father."

"My child," said the old man, "doth the flood seem deep to thee?"

"Nay, father, for my soul is strong."

"Seest thou the thither shore?"

"I see it, father—and its banks are green with immortal verdure."

"Hearest thou the voice of its inhabitants"

"I hear them father—as the voices of angels, falling from afar in the still and solemn night-time—and they call me—her voice, too, father; O, I heard it then."

"Doth she speak to thee?"

"She speaketh in tones most heavenly."

"Doth she smile?"

"An angel smile! But a cold, calm smile. But I am cold—cold—cold!—Father, there is a mist in the room, You will be lonely. Is this death father?'

"It is death, my Mary."

"Thank God."

Sabbath evening came, and a slow, sad procession wound through the forest to the little school house. There with simple rites, the good clergyman performed his duty, and went to the grave. The procession was short. There were hardy men and rough, in shooting jackets, and some with rifles on their shoulders. But their warm hearts gave beauty to their unshaven faces, as they stood in reverent silence by the grave. The river murmured and the birds sang and so we buried her.

I saw the sun go down from the same spot--and the stars were bright before I left—for I always had an idea that a graveyard was the nearest place to heaven on earth—and with old Sir. Thomas Brown, I love to see a church in a graveyard, for even as we pass through the place of graves to the temple of God on earth, so we must pass through the grave to the temple of God on high.

THE SURRENDER OF LEE TO GRANT.—When the surrender was made, Gen. Lee presented his sword to our victorious leader—a magnificent blade which had been presented to him by a number of his rebel admirers, and was manufactured in England. Gen. Lee tendered it to Grant, but as he did so a spasm seemed to shoot across his fine face, but he recovered himself with a graceful smile.

Gen. Grant received it, examined it curiously, read the names of the battles engraved upon the magnificently wrought scabbard; and then the generous, magnanimous hero returned it to Lee, saying:

'General, it cannot be worn by a braver man!'

The ceremony of surrender was witnessed by a large number of staff officers and was indeed very solemn and affecting. The soldiers of both sides mixed indiscriminately together, our boys sharing their rations generously with their late enemies.

Lee is the third general, that Grant has compelled to surrender; Buckner at Fort Donelson, Pemberton at Vicksburg; where the star of Grant began to rise, and Lee at Appomattox Court House, where it shown in its culmination.

A SHERIFF was once asked to execute a writ against a Quaker. On arriving at the house he saw the Quaker's wife, who, in reply to the inquiry whether her husband was at home, said he was, at the same time requested him to be seated, and her husband would speedily see him. The officer waited patiently for some time, when the fair Quakerness coming into the room, he reminded her of her promise that he might see her husband 'Nay, friend; I promised that he would see thee. He has seen thee. He did not like thy looks; therefore he avoided thee, and hath departed from out of thy path.'

TO KEEP EGGS.—Take bags made of thick cotton, large enough to slip an egg in, and long enough to hold one dozen; fill the bags and tie the ends with strong cord, and hang them up in the cellar; turn them end for end once or twice a week, so that they will not settle on one side, and your eggs will keep fresh all winter.

BEST SOIL FOR GRAPES.—In the opinion of the Ohio Pomological Society a strong clayey soil, or one of loamy clay with a limestone or slaty clay subsoil will produce grapes of better quality and heavier in most than any other variety of sand or alluvial deposits. It was also agreed, that in all cases, under drainage, is necessary to success in grape growing.

INDIAN MATTERS.

There are all sorts of rumors afloat of Indians, and the tracks of Indians having been seen in various parts of the county. How true these reports are it is not our province to say. If we were to believe them all, we should certainly have to say that the whole Sioux nation had crossed Gen. Sibley's lines, and were making for the settlements.

For our own part we believe that there are several squads of Indians already secreted in the timber along the Blue Earth river, and that other bands are coming in. Those already here, and who are bold enough to come out from their hiding places and fire upon soldiers and citizens, and then return to their retreats, seem to be in no hurry to leave the timber. This circumstance alone leads us to believe that they are but waiting for other bands to join them and then, at the first opportunity will fall upon some defenceless family or town, and we shall have the horrible scenes of the Jewett murder re-enacted. The spasmodic effort of Gen. Sibley to strengthen his lines and guarantee future safety, may quiet the fears of some of his staff, but it has not quieted the fears of frontier settlers, and many of our best citizens are disposing of their property, and preparing to leave the State. We shall be happily disappointed if we are not called upon to record other murders committed by Indians before the first of August.

A party of soldiers stationed at Crystal Lake, and quartered in the school house, were fired upon by some persons in the timber near by, the other evening. It is supposed to be Indians. A party of soldiers fired at some Indians on Willow Creek, and in other sections Indians have been seen.

Gen. Sibley's New Policy.—We understand that those hostile Indians who have so excited the sympathies of 'Pax' and other black-hearted scoundrels, complain bitterly that General Sibley's frontier lines are so dim that they cannot be discerned, else they would not cross them. In view of this the General has decided to plow a furrow the entire length of his line. This done, he thinks it will be a sufficient protection, and do away with the necessity of having a military force on the frontier. We would suggest that when he gets through "plowing" he detail a force to drive all the grasshoppers west of his line, and keep them there. Farmers would then feel secure, and be enabled to get in their crops.

ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF BLUE EARTH COUNTY.

A gentleman from Vernon Centre has sent us a lengthy communication, in which he appeals to the citizens of Blue Earth County, to arise and take some active measures towards representing to the war department the defenceless state of the frontier, and insist upon the removal of Gen. Sibley. We have not room to publish the entire appeal, but give the following extract from it. Short, concise appeals, which deal in facts and not in rhetoric, will do more towards effecting a change in our fronter defences than a dozen voluminous ones.

"Let the people arise en masse and publicly express, as they do privately their settled convictions that the thing will be no better, nor the confidence of settlers restored, until the General be removed, and a new and better military arrangement made for Minnesota. What have our delegation in Congress been doing to affect this much needed change? What have any of our public influential men been doing in this, to us life and death matter, by way of earnestly pleading with the war department at Washington for this very important change.

I have come to Western Minnesota, to make it my permanent home. I like the country well, have made some investment here. My interests are idetified with yours. Now my brethren let us arise and make common cause in this matter. Depend upon it, the voice of a determined, combined, and indignant people, will tell by and by. For our cause is just, and God will assist us. Let wheedling office seekers know that no man can get the suffrages of the people of the Blue Earth Valley, who will not pitch in, and with a feeling heart work for safety like a man.

We do not now plead for railroads or schools, for agrieulturial or commercial favors, but merely for the security of the small earnings of hard toil, for our homes, our lives, and the lives of wives and children. And shall we be denied this? God in heaven forbid. I would suggest that the people from Mankato to Blue Earth City, from Fairmount to Fort Ridgley, in every township or community hold mass meetings, and get up petitions or pass resolutions on this stirring subject, something similar to what we did at a meeting held at Vernon Centre, the proceedings of which you published last week. Let ministers of the gospel in their several communities take this matter in hand, and give it a start. Let any person who has some influence, in every neighborhood give this matter a start. Let the press all over the country speak out in tones of thunder, not to be mistaken. Arouse ye men, let us make the best effort we can to save the country from desolation. Sound the tocsin of alarm, and give it such a ring in the popular ear, that its echo may not die away, until the last hostile Indian shall have been driven forever from the borders of Minnesota.

THE THIRD SERIES OF SEVEN-THIRTIES.

The great success of the 7.30 Loan must always be looked upon as one of the most powerful evidences of the United States Government, and of its strong hold upon the confidence and affection of the people. On Saturday, May 13th, the subscriptions were. over thirty million dollars, and for the week ending on that day, over ninety-eight million dollars, and in the three months that the Loan has been in charge of Mr. Jay Cooke, over five hundred million dollars. These large receipts will enable the Treasury to pay off our armies as they are disbanded, and to rapidly discharge the various obligations that have been incurred during the war. History will show that a great war-debt to individuals has never before been so promptly paid; and we think all will agree that Secretary McCulloch deserves great credit for the ability he has manifested, not only in securing the means, but for the financial skill he has displayed in so directing the e vast receipts and disbursements as not for a moment to disturb the equilibrium of commerce, embarrass individuals, or in any way tighten the money market. It is doubtless true that the Secretary of the Treasury might have negotiated the remainder of his loans at six per cent, interest instead of 7.30, but so much valuable time would necessarily have been lost in popularizing a new loan that the great object of the Government, viz., an immediate supply of money sufficient to pay the debts incident to the war, would have been defeated; and besides, the difference of interest would not have been equal to three days' expenses. The policy may have looked "penny wise," but the best financial authorities, as well as common sense, pronounced it "pound foolish." As it is—and will be, no soldier will go home without his greenbacks, and the floating debt in the shape of vouchers requisitions, &c., will be wiped out as rapidly as the proper officers can audit and adjust the accounts.

The Second Series of the 7.30 Loan was exhausted on Saturday, May 13th. On Monday, the Secretary of the Treasury authorized Jay Cooke, the general Subscription Agent for U. S. Securities, to receive subscriptions for $230,000,000 of a Third Series, which is all that is authorized by Congress, and is without doubt the last loan at this high rate of interest that will be offered by the Government.

There is no change in the terms or conditions of this Third Series, except that the Government reserves the right of paying interest at six per cent, in gold instead of seven and threetenths in currency—a right which would pre-suppose a return to specie payments, and make six per cent even better than the higher rate in currency—a consummation most devoutly to be wished.

The privilege of converting the notes into 5 20 six per cent gold bonds at the end of three years, or receiving payment at maturity, at the holder's option, is retained.

The first day of the Third Series opened with a subscription within a fraction of five millions, and the month of June will certainly see the last of the 7.30s out of market. How early in June we cannot predict, but parties who wish to make sure of a portion would do well to be in time.

Full particulars may be found in our advertising columns.

ANNIVERSARY OF BLUE EARTH BIBLE SOCIETY.

The annual meetting of the Blue Earth County Bible Society, was held in the Presbyterian Church in Mankato on Sunday evening, April 30th, 1864.

In the absence of the President, Mr. A. D. Seward, the Vice President, Rev. J. G. Craven, took the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Adams, State Agent for the American Bible Society, after which singing by the choir.

The minutes for the last meeting was read and approved. It was then moved to go into the election of officers for the ensuing year which was carried.

The following officers were then elected viz:

President—Rev. J. G. Craven.
Vice President—C. H. Slocum.
Secretary—J. N. Hall.
Treasurer—Wm. Frisbie.
Directors—Rev. Thomas Marshall, P. B. Sparrow, J. J. Thornton.

Moved that the appointment of local agents be refered to the Executive Committee. Carried.

Voted that the formation of Bible Societies, auxiliary to this Society, in the several towns, throughout the county, be aided as far as practicable by the Executive Committee.

The report of the Treasurer was then read as follows:

On motion the report of the Treasurer was approved.

Moved, upon the recommendation of Rev. Mr. Adams, that the Executive Committee be authorized to procure a book case, for the use of the Depositary. Carried.

The exercises were then continued with singing by the choir, reading a portion of scripture by Rev. Mr. Marshall, prayer by Rev. Mr. Thompson, and singing again by the choir.

The principal address was then made by the Rev. Mr. Adams, State Agent of the American Bible Society, after which singing by the choir; when short address were made by Revs. Messrs. Marshall an Craven.

Subscription papers were then circulated in the congregation, and the sum of forty-six dollars and twenty-five cents obtained. This sum being sufficient to constitute three persons life members of the Minnesota Bible Society, it was moved and carried, that Revs. Messrs. Day, Craven and Marshall, be so constituted life members.

It was then proposed to constitute the following persons, by the payment of five dollars each, life members of the Blue Earth County Bible Society, viz: Rev. Thomas Day, Rev. J. G. Craven, C. H. Slocum and J. C. Wise, and the sum of twenty dollars was subscribed for that purpose.

The exercises then closed with singing by the choir

Board met pursuant to adjournment, all present.

The following resolutions was offered and adopted:

Resolved, That the sum of Five Hundred Dollars, or such part thereof as shall be deemed necessary hereafter by the committee of one member hereby appointed, be appropriated to the purpose and object of procuring a number of Blood hounds, as a means of protection against hostile Indians, and that we will suggest and recommend to the counties of Nicollet, Faribault, Brown, Martin, and Wattonwan, to make an appropriation to the same object; and that we will recommend the boards of Commissioners of each said counties to appoint one of their number a committee to meet the committee of our board hereby appointed, in Mankato, on the 27th inst., at 12 o'clock M., at this office to select one or more persons to go and procure such hounds, and to fix the amount of the several appropriations which shall be paid to such persons, and pay the same over upon proper securities, and make such other arrangements as may be necessary; and that on our part A. Hanna be appointed as such committee; and also that the Governor of the State be consulted and be requested to aid in the matter in the mean time, through Col. B. F. Smith.

E. P Evans was appointed a committee to notify the chairman of the boards of county commissioners of the different counties and request their cooperation.

Bill of J. F. Meagher for rent of Hall for three days, at $3 00 per day, 9 00.

Adjourned until the next regular session, in September.

W. MAXFIELD,
Auditor B. E. County.

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

The steamer Hansa, from Southampton the 10th has arrived at New York.

In the House of Commons on the 8th the debate on the borough franchise bill was resumed.

Mr. Gregory thought if it was passed it would lead directly to universal suffrage.

The Times hopes that President Johnson, now that the enemy are at his mercy, will treat them with leniency. Booth's fate was too good for such a miscreant.

The Empress of France has addressed a private letter of sympathy to Mrs. Lincoln. The Emperor was received at Algiers with enthusiastic demonstrations.

A Confederate cruiser was reported off Manilla.

It is positively said that the President has sent an order to New Orleans for the recall of General Banks.

Jeff. Davis and party are still on board the steamer William P. Clyde, anchord in Hampton Roads.

New York, May 21.—The Herald's correspondent give the particulars of the arrest of Jeff. Davis, fully confirming the official accounts already published. When the guard went to the tent they were met by Mrs. Davis, en dishabille with the request: "Please, gentlemen, don't disturb the privacy of ladies." "All right, madam," said the Corporal, "we will wait till you have on your duds."

Presently there appeared at the tent door an ostensible old lady, with a bucket on her arm, escorted by Mrs. Davis and her son.

"Please let my old mother go to the spring for some water to wash in," said Mrs. Davis in a pleading tone.

"It strikes me your mother wears very big boots," said the guard, as he hoisted the old lady's dress with his sabre and discovered a pair of No. 13 calf skins.

"And whiskers, too," said the Sergeant, as he pulled the hood from her face, and lo! Jeff. Davis, in all his littleness, stood before them. A "Spencer" was immediately pointed at his ear, and he was marched back to his tent and placed in durance vile.

Only about $8,000 in specie was with the party, though several boxes were not searched. These were brought along, however, and will be delivered to the authorities at Washington. There were found on the person of Postmaster General Reagan, papers showing that a large amount of specie was shipped for London, which will also be delivered to the authorities by Col. Pritchard.

The latter, with his prisoners, started immediately for Macon. The party were all sullen, and Davis remarked to Pritchard that had they not been taken by surprise they would not have surrendered without a fight.

While on the road they received a copy of President Johnson's proclamation, offering a reward of $100,000 for Davis. Davis read it and trembled, his hands dropped to his side, and with a groan he dropped the paper. His wife picked it up, read it aloud, and the entire party burst into tears.

The cavalcade arrived at Macon on the 13th, and soon after took a special train for Atlanta, and thence to Augusta.

Stephens and Weeeler were captured by detachments of General Upton's division, and Clay and lady surrendered to General Wilson at Macon.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF BLUE EARTH.

In Probate Court.

In the matter of the Estate of Andrew J. Jewett, deceased, at a term of the Probate Court, held in and for the County of Blue Earth, at Mankato, on the 25th day of May, A. D. 1865, present David Wilcox, Judge.

ON reading and filing the petition of J. N. Jewett praying for [illegible] therein set forth, and that letters of Administration on said Estate issued to Benjamin Evans, it is ordered that at 10 o'clock A. M. be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and the heirs at law of the said deceased, and all other persons interested in said Estate, are required to appear at a session of the Probate Court, then to be held at the Office of Probate Judge, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that the said petitioner give notice to all persons interested in said Estate of the pendancy of the said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Mankato Union, a weekly newspaper published in Mankato, in said County of Blue Earth, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

THIRD SERIES.

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum, to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent	per day	on a	$50	note.
Two cents	" "	"	$100	"
Ten	" "	"	$500	"
20	" "	"	$1000	"
$1	" "	"	$5000	"

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent, in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent currency. This is now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

For Sale Cheap.—A good second hand Melodeon. Inquire at this office.

Removed.—P. B. Sparrow & Co., have removed their stock of goods to the building recently occupied by Ward.

The Methodist Mite Society will meet at City Hall next Wednesday evening.

"Tecumpsey" is laid over until next week.

Ladies, read the 'matrimonial' advertisement. Take pity on the young man and go and cook his meat.

Morse's Expectorant, is for sale at Lewis & Frisbie's. It is a never failing remedy for all throat diseases. Get a bottle and try it.

Morse's Condition Powders, is just the thing farmers ought to have. It is a most excellent horse medicine. It can be had at Lewis & Frisbie's Public Documents.—We are under obligations to our excellent Senator A. Ramsey for a full set of the Congressional Globe for the first session o the 38th congress.

See Dr. McMahans card elsewhere. He has removed his office over Lewis & Frisbie's store, and will be happy to prescribe for, and deal out pills to, his many afflicted friends.

A letter from Lieutenant Stannard, of Co. F. Heavy Artillery, states that the boys are all well, and expect to come home by the 1st of July. They were highly pleased at the style in which we disposed of John Campbell, and wished themselves back to take a part in exterminating the "red devils."

Prof. Abournet.—We were unable to witness the entertainment of this gentleman last Saturday evening, but from those who were present we learn he had a large audience, and that his performances all through were well executed, and was quite interesting.

Personal.—Our friend, N. Woleben started east on Monday last, on a "tour of recreation." He intends visiting the oil regions, and very likely will "strike ile."

Our townsman, E. H. Smith, esq., took a trip to Winona on Tuesday last on important business. Rumor hath it that our future postmaster at this place is to be a Major.

Randall & Smith—Will remove their stock of clothing next Monday into their new building a few doors below and opposite their present stand. They will have a large and commodious room, where they can display their goods to advantage. Their patrons will bear in mind that they have a large supply of hats and summer coats, which they are selling very cheap.

Sometime since we received a communication from J. W. T. relating to matters of a personal nature between him and a gentleman of South Bend. As the matter has been settled, as per receipts shown us, we shall not publish the letter.

Christensen & Bros, are selling off their stock of goods rapidly. They have a large assortment of prints, of all styles, ladies summer shawls and cloaks, and fine dress goods, to which they invite attention.

J. F. Meagher has moved into City Hall building, and is now fully settled and ready to wait upon customers. He has purchased this year the largest stock of hardware ever brought to this market. His supply of agricultural implements is very large, and complete, and we are informed that the price of reapers has been considerably reduced.

A Good Sale.—Henry C. Eberhart, of Rapidan township sold, last week, one hundred and sixty acres of land, ten head of young cattle, and one hundred and six sheep for four thousand dollars.

New Grocery Store.—Edward Taylor & Co., have engaged in the grocery business, and purchased a large stock of goods. They will open their assortment on Tuesday next, in the building recently occupied by Randall & Smith. We recommend them to farmers and citizens in town. They will give good bargains, and deal fairly in all things. See their card.

Fast Day at Garden City.—The citizens of Garden City will observe fast day in an appropriate manner. The Sunday Schools, Band of Hope, and the Good Templars, will come out in a body, and an address, appropriate to the day, will be delivered by Rev. T. Marshall, of this place. The other exercises will be interesting.

Crackers.—C. Heinze has introduced a new feature in his business in the shape of a cracker machine, by which he manufactures an excellent quality of crackers. A sample lies upon our table, and we pronounce them superior to any made in the state. Those wishing crackers fresh from the oven should patronize Charlie.

Workmen are now engaged in removing the vault in the Auditors office, and setting it back eight feet from its present position. This will make more room in the building, and we understand the Treasurer's office will then be removed thither.

Fire.—The residence of Mr. Matthews of South Bend was burned last week. The family were unable to save any of the furniture, and but very little clothing. Mr. Mathews and his daughter were badly burned. The latter has since died.

Most Beautiful Dead.—At the time John Campbell was hung, and soon after the excitement had subsided, one or two physicians stepped up to examine the body to see if life was extinct. One of them, who has a habit of compressing his lips, and rolling his large eyes about and looking wise betimes, was asked if he thought the half-breed was dead. The doctor, after deliberately thinking it over, very slowly and emphatically replied: "Dead—dead—DEAD—My—God—he is most beautiful dead!"

Not Discontinued—The office at Vernon Centre has not been discontinued. The error occurred in this wise:—The Postmaster General issued an order to the P. M. at Winnebago City directing him to take charge of the fixtures of the office at Verona. The Second Assistant Post Master General directed the mail contractor not to deliver mail at Vernon when he should have said Verona. There is no such office as Vernon—it is Vernon Centre. Government officials do make mistakes, sometimes.

Blood Hounds.—The project of securing blood hounds with which to hunt Indians is meeting with good success. About $1,800 has been raised for that purpose, in the frontier counties, and a commissioner from each county will meet in Mankato to-morrow, and make final arrangements, and dispatch a messenger to Washington, and thence South to procure them. We know of no person so well fitted to perform that duty as Major E. P. Evans. He first started the scheme, has been active in carrying it out thus far, and he deserves to be honored with the appointment. We hope the Commissioners will appoint him.

The National Fast.—Thursday June 1st has been set apart by our Chief Magistrate as a day of fasting and prayer throughout the nation We call attention to it hoping that all our citizens, without respect to sect or creed, will suspend their ordinary business, and, in a solemn and reverential manner, observe the day. Surely there never was a time since we have had a national existance when humiliation and prayer was more becoming.

Religious exercises will be held at City Hall on that day at half past ten in the morning. In these exercises the different clergymen in the town will join, and it is hoped that the citizens generally will be present.

A meeting of the citizens of Vernon Centre held May 22d, to give expression to their feelings in reference to suspicious sentiments uttered by some persons in regard to the loyalty and faithfulness of the half-breed soldiers stationed there, it was

Resolved, That we the citizens of Vernon Centre, have all confidence in the honesty and faithfulness of the half breed soldiers. And that we highly appreciate their labors, as well as of all the soldiers stationed here.

Resolved, That a vote of censure be passed upon those who have maliciously spoken against any of the soldiers.

Resolved, If any threats are hereafter made by citizens against any of the soldiers stationed here, the laws will be strictly put in force against them.

Resolved, That the above resolutions be published in the Mankato papers

S. R. GRANNIS, Chairman.
I. L Buchwalter, Secretary.

Robbery.—The safe of the Minnesota Mutual Insurance Co., was broken open Monday night last, and $500 in money, and a lot of the Company's notes stolen.

The door of the safe was found open in the morning, and the drawers taken out and placed on top. The iron box, containing the money, was pried out, and carried off, together with a satchel belonging to one of the agents. Three hundred dollars of the money had been deposited in the safe a few days before by J. F. Wickersham. Diligent search was made by the Sheriff and other parties on Tuesday, and the satchel and iron box found on the hill side in the rear of Mrs. Sibley's house. The box was broken open, and the money gone, but the notes were still in the box. The notes were all recovered, and for the information of those who are insured in this Company, we will state that its solvency will not be affected in the least, by this small loss.

John A. J. Lyon has been arrested on suspicion by the Sheriff, but as his examination comes off to-day at 10 o'clock, we forbear further remarks.

Notice of Religious Services.—The third Quarterly Meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for Mankato will be held on Saturday and Sabbath the 27th and 28th in the City Hall. Preaching on Saturday at 3. o'clock P. M. by the Presiding Elder, Rev. J. O. Rich. The members of the Quarterly Conference will meet for business immediately after the service.

On Sabbath Love Feast at 9 o'clock A. M. Preaching by the Presiding Elder at half past 10 o'clock. Directly after preaching, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. The usual quarterly collection will be taken up after the morning sermon, to meet the Presiding Elder's claim on this station.

The bell will ring for Sabbath preaching at 10 and again at half past 10 o'clock. Prayer meeting on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock

THOMAS DAY, Pastor.

The Lady's Friend.—"Summer Day's"—a beautiful steel engraving, is the appropriate embellishment of the June number of The Lady's Friend. This engraving will remind many of "The days they went gypsying,

A long time ago."

The double Fashion Plate is excellently engraved, and the ladies no doubt will pronounce it as charming as it must be expensive. More to our masculine taste, however, we confess, is the simple woodcut of "Lucy," with the expressive lines beneath. Ah, these Lucys!

"There she stands her morning dress and mantle
Making space between her and the world;
Shutting in her heart within its whiteness,
Like the sweets in unblown lilies furled."

But we must skip over the other engravings, illustrative of the fashions, new patterns, &c., and come to the music, which is "Sherman's Grand Triumphal March"—like that from Atlanta to Raleigh, we suppose. The literary matter of this number is a choice selection. Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

Mankato, July 15, 1864

Editor of Mankato Union:

Dear Sir;—With your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send, by return mail, to all who wish it (free) a recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple vegetable balm that will effectually remove, in ten days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles, and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads, or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxuriant Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than thirty days. All applications answered by return mail without charge.

Respectfully yours,
THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,

GROVESTEEN & CO.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS,

499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over Strung Bass, &c, and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr. J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philladephia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successive years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware-room

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition,

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases:—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

HELMBOLD'S

GENUINE

PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ See Symptoms above.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!

Helmbold's

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with [illegible] of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent [illegible], Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:

See Dispensatory of the United States.

See Professor [illegible] Practice of Physic.

See remarks made by the celebrated Dr. Physic, Phila.

See remarks made by [illegible], a celebrated Physician and Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, and published in the Transactions of the King and Queen's Journal.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th 1859, and an act of Congress, approved Feburary 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debts of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected, the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

AN Illustrated Catalogue, containing full description of style, and testimonials of the most eminent Musicians, as to the superior excellence of our instruments—will be sent free to any address.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell. Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an apperdage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

GEO. A. PRINCE & CO.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A. PRINCE & CO." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an in ferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over Strung Bass, &c., and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr, J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philladephia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successiv years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware room

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano-Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition.

PRICES—No. 1, Seven Octave, round corners, Rosewood plain case, $275.
No. 2. Seven Octave, round corners, Rosewood heavy moulding, $300.
No. 3. 7 Octave, round corners, Rosewood Louis XIV style $325, a fac simile of the above cut.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON TTE !
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession, are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain Mortgage executed by J. W. Powell and Rhoda B. Powell, his wife, then of the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, to Richard Cassady, then of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, dated 14th day of August, 1858, and recorded in the office of the Register or Deeds in and for said county of Blue Earth, on the 18th day of August, 1858, at 2 o'clock P. M. in Book "B" of Mortgages, on page 498, which said Mortgage was given to secure the payment of the sum of Five Hundred Dollars and interest, according to the conditions of a certain promissory note made by the said J. W. Powell, to the said Cassady or order, dated August 14th 1858, payable on or before the 15th day of August, 1860, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum; and there is now claimed to be due and is at the date of this notice actually due and unpaid upon said note and mortgage, the sum of Seven Hundred and Sixty-one Dollars and Eighty Cents, (761.80) and the further sum of Thirty one Dollars and Twenty-six Cents (31.26) paid by the assignee as taxes on said premises and interest thereon, and the said promissory note and mortgage having been on the 23d day of May, 1862, duly sold, assigned and transferred by said Richard Cassady to Peter R. Wood, which assignment was in writing duly acknowledged and certified, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the county of Blue Earth on the 29th day of May A. D. 1862, in book 'E' of Mortgages, on page 177, and the said Peter R. Wood being now deceased, and the undersigned Joseph Wood, being administrator of his estate, and no suit or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt so secured or any part of it, and no part thereof having been collected or paid. Now, therfore by virtue of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, and in conformity with the statutes in such case made and provided, the lands and premises described in and covered by said mortgage, towit:

The South half of the South-west Quarter of Section No. Twenty-three (23), and the South-east quarter of the South-east quarter and the North half of the South-west quarter of the South-east quarter of Section numbered twenty-two (22) in Township numbered one hundred and five (105) North of Range No. Twenty-eight (28) West, and all the appurtenances, and lying and being in the county of Blue Earth, and State of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, as the law directs and as authorized by said mortgage, at the front door of the office of Register Deeds in and for the said county of Blue Earih, in Mankato in said county, on the 20th day of May A. D. 1865, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due and unpaid on said note and mortgage and said taxes paid by the assignee as aforesaid, and the interest thereon and the costs and expenses of sale allowed by law.

Dated Mankato, Minn. March 31, 1865.

HELMBOLD'S GENUINE PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,
☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of [illegible] unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:

"GOD IS GOOD."

BY STELLA HOLMES.

God is good; how oft we feel it,
In this lower and sinful world;
God is good; how oft it waketh,
In our hearts some hidden chord

God is good, the silent record
Of this wayward erring heart,
From the early morn 'till even'
Father let it ne'er depart.

God is good; O may we ever
All his holy laws obey;
From the truth departing never,
In the paths of sin to stray.

God is good, how oft it stilleth,
In our hearts, the bitter strife,
While we walk among the shadows

A TIME TO DANCE.

BY S. C. WELLCOME.

A time to mourn, and a time to dance, "Thats Bible," says the dancer, "and I don't think there is any harm in doing as the bible says, we may. That is so my friend, stick to the bible, and follow its precepts and all will be right, but be very careful and not stick to the latter part of your text, to the exclusion of all the rest of the bible; for I find that those that quote this text so much, are hardly ever seen at church, at sunday school, or even at funerals, unless to bury their own kindred, and finally, not one half of them can tell whether their own much loved text is in the bible or hymn book. Now this one passage of scripture has been very much abused. The wise man in speaking of the many changes taking place among men from time to time, shows that there was a time when all these things were done. In time of war they mourned, when great victories were gained they rejoiced and danced before the Lord, who gave them the victory; but mind you, they always sung songs of praise to the most high God. It was no modern dance where men and women, congregate together for self-gratification, where their dances and waltzes are of that character that only tends to inflame the passions where wine and poor whiskey helps to keep up the excitement through the night, where the name of God is blasphemed, and his church reviled. But supposing we should admit that there is a time to dance, is this the time, when our nation is bleeding at every pore? Within the last four years nearly half a million of our fellow men have fallen under the terrible scourge of war. Let us look away on the Southern Battlefields. There lie, by thousands, the mangled remains of fathers, husbands, brothers and sons. Could we see them as they have fallen, mangled by shot and shell, hear their dying groans, see them quivering in the agonies of death, while they lift their eyes imploringly to God, for help, who that has a heart softer than a flint, can say "it is a time to dance. Again, can we hear those wails of anguish coming up from Southern prisons, from our brave boys who are starving and perishing for the comforts we enjoy; could we look upon those suffering ones in their desolate almost hopeless condition, see their emaciated forms, once so noble, hear them plead for a little food, just enough to sustain life, let it be ever so poor, and oft times when their brain reels, through intense suffering, they rush madly from their lothsome prison and seek relief from their anguish by receiving the bullets of the guard, and in the midst of all this suffering, say, "it is a time to dance. Do we not often hear of their writing to their friends at home when they can write, desiring their friends to pray that they may be delivered from the hands of their enemies, and by the time the letter reaches the north, that "should be friend," has left off praying and concluded that, "it is a time to dance." Again, without looking away from home, here in our midst are left the widows and the orphans. Their tears are flowing in every town and in almost every house all over the land. Every mail brings some sad tale of wo, and opens some new wound. Some loved one has fallen, and yet every week, in nearly every town, the halls are crowded two or three nights in the week, by the giddy and thoughtless, where the unholy revelry is kept up the livelong night, for, "it is a time to dance." Truly it may be said that the god of this world has blinded our eyes, and instead of having a feeling of sorrow, weeping with those that weep, their trouble does not seem to awaken any feeling of sympathy in our hearts, and if a sick soldier wants help, a grand carousal must be held to raise money, or if the soldier's families need assistance they might starve or freeze, unless a frolic can be got up for their benefit, for, "it is a time to dance." I believe no other christian nation has ever been guilty of so much thoughtless revelry in time of war as our own. Why! if a stranger from other lands should visit our country and witness the many gatherings and revelry, and not know our situation as a nation, he would say surely this people must be in a peaceful prosperous condition to thus pass their time in rejoicing; but, on the other hand, if he knew that rivers of blood were flowing through our land from the vitals of the nation, and standing horror stricken at the scene, would exclaim "I have found a heathen land, where the people dance over the bloody graves of their slain to appease the wrath of their war God." O, shame where art thou! how low we have fallen! It is true we acknowledge God as the ruler over the nation. Our President proclaims days of fasting and prayer, and recommends gatherings throughout the country for that purpose, and while a few meet on such days to plead with God for help in this time of need, the majority think "it is a time to dance." and they go at it with a will from the executive mansion at Washington down through every town and village to the lowest doggery the land. Is it any wonder the war is prolonged when God is thus mocked? Are we so blind, that we do not realize, that his all searching eye is upon us; that it looks into the ballroom where the prayerless assemble; that it penetrates those private dwellings where the ungodly are together spending their nights in drinking and card playing; and into the saloons where night after night, is spent in drunken debauchery, and although much of it is carried on secretly, yet God has promised to bring us into judgment. Have we forgotten Belshazzar's record in holy writ:

The King had met a thousand of his lords
To pass the night in revelry and mirth
All went gaily on 'till those fearful words
Upon the wall to fearful thoughts gave birth
Belshazzar when he saw the ☞ that wrote,
Declaring near his kingdom's overthrow,
Alarmed, his knees against each other smote;"
Till he did fearful signs of terror show.
And now, as then men in high place are found
Who the voice of God in judgments will not hear,
Who'll dance and revel at the viols sound
When signs betoken sorer judgments near.

But though we see awful results from wickedness in high places among our rulers, yet it is imitated all over the land; but it has happened unto us as spoken in Micah 7 1-7. Reader don't be afraid to take the good old book, and read it, and see if we had not better take the course recommended in Joel chapter 1, verse 14, and chapter 2, verses 16 and 17. If we take this course we shall not say it is a time to dance, because it is some ones' else husband, father, brother or son that has fallen and not ours; but if you will go on in unholy revelry decoying others into your snare, persuading the suffering soldier's wives, mothers and sisters to carouse with you, and then say, as you often do behind their backs, I don't think they feel very bad about their friends in the army. I warn you as a friend, that the "day of your rejoicing is almost over." Refrain then from these things, and sympathize with the afflicted, and harp no more upon the only passage of scripture many of you can repeat, and remember the dancing time has not yet come.

GARDEN CITY Minn, April, 1865.

A FORMER Colonel of one of the bravest veteran regiments from Indiana when just out, had occasion once to march his regiment, then in column, through an opening in a fence a little to the right of the point in front of them. The order, fresh in his mind from Hardee came thundering forth, "Right or left OBLIQUE, as the case may be—march!"

During one of our rambles about town recently, we were somewhat amused on seeing an inebriated brother-in-arms leaning picturesquely against a friendly lamp-post, and in passing him said, with a would-be knowing smile—

'Take care, partner, or the post will get the upper hands of you.'

'Dry up,' replied the inebriate, in a whining tone. 'They talk about s'pporting the Constitution, hic, and I'm trying to s'pport my, hic, own.'

We passed on with the firm conviction that he had got the upper hands of us that time.

CONNUBIAL CONFAB.—'Arrah, Pat, an' why did I marry ye, just tell me that—for it's meself that's had to maintain ye ever since the blissed day that Father O'Flannigan sint me to yer home?'

'Swate jewel,' replied pat, 'and it's meself that hopes I may live to see the day when you are a widow, waping over the cowl sod that kivers me—thin, by St. Patrick, I'll see how ye git along widout me, honey.'

A WORD TO MARRIED PEOPLE.

The ring of the door bell has a pleasant sound to me, especially in my idle moods. Like an unopened letter, there is a mystery about it, and one waits with a pleasurable excitement to see who or what is coming.

Returning home one day earlier than usual, I found my wife had gone out; and while lounging idly over the paper, the bell rang

I waited expectant till Bridget appeared with a note, containing a request from my old friend, Dr. Stearns, to ride out to his residence in the country the next day, to transact some business that had been long pending, and an invitation to bring my wife and spend the day.

I was pleased first, because I wanted the business completed; and secondly, because I thought I needed a day's recreation.

But the next morning everything seemed to go wrong. Alice could not accompany me, and I could not get off as early as I wished, and consequently, I was peevish and fretful; and Alice reflected my humor, I suppose—as it appeared to me she had never been so unamiable.

At lenght, however, I drove away, though not in a very pleasant mood. It was a lovely October day; and as I rode along noting the tints of the landscape, memory went back to the golden autumn when I wooed and won my bride.

How lovely Alice was then! I thought. And how happy we were! But that was long ago. Yet nature is the same, though we are changed. Let me see; we have been married three years; is it possible it is no longer?

And I felt a pang as I contrasted the past with the present, to think that we could settle down into the common place life we now led.

We had no serious trouble; we didn't quarrel; though when I felt cross, or other things didn't go to suit me, I took no pains to conceal it, and often spoke harshly to Alice, sometimes she replied in the same spirit, and sometimes with tears. Yet we were generally good friends. But the charm, the tenderness of our early love had imperceptible vanished.

I had become careless about my appearance at home, and Alice was equally negligent. Her beautiful brown hair, which she used to wear in the most becoming curls, was now usually brushed plainly behind her ears, unless she was going out or expected company. I dismissed the subject with a sigh, at the doctor's gate, with the reflection that it was the same with all married people—must be so, in fact—for how could romance and sentiment find place among so many prosy realities? I suppose we were as happy as a yoody; and yet, it was not the kind of life I had looked forward to with so many bright anticipations.

The doctor greeted me cordially.—In the hall we met Mrs Stearns, looking fresh and lovely in her pink muslin wrapper, with her jetty hair in tasteful braids. She scolded me playfully for not bringing my wife, chatted a few moments, and then flitted away, while the doctor remarking that his motto was business first and pleasure afterwards, led the way to the library.

As we entered the room I noticed a vase of bright autumn flowers on the table, imparting an air of taste and cheerfulness to the apartment.—I made some remarks about it, to which the doctor responded:

"Yes, I am very fond of flowers, and like to see them in the house; and as I spend much of my time here, my wife always keeps a vase of them on the table as long as they last."

Our business was finished before dinner, and we walked out in the grounds which were quite extensive and tastefully arranged.

There was a variety in bloom, and I noticed that the doctor selected here and there the finest, until he had a handsome bouquet.

When we reached the house, Mrs. Stearns was on the steps. The doctor, still continuing our conversation, gave her the flowers, with a slight bow and smile, and holding up a spray of crimson berries, she bent her head while he fastened it among the dark braids of her hair.

It was a trifling incident, yet the manner arrested my attention. Had I been a stranger, I should pronounced them lovers instead of sober married people. All through the day I noticed the same delicate attention and deference in their deportment to each other.

There was nothing of which the most fastidious guest could complain; yet, while showing me the most cordial attention, they did not seem to ignore each other's existence, as married people so often do.

I had never visited the doctor before, and was very much pleased with his tasteful home. I said so, after dinner, when we strolled out into the woods.

"Yes," he said, "I think it is pleasant;" and he added, "I believe I am a contented man; so far I am not disappointed in life."

"How long have you been married, doctor," I asked.

"Ten years."

"Well," I pursued, "can you tell me whence the bright atmosphere that surrounds your home? Tell me how you and Mrs. Stearns managed to retain the depth and freshness of your early love, as you seem to do? I should think the wear and tear of life would dim it somewhat. I never saw a home where my ideal of domestic happiness was realized before. It is what I have dreamed of."

The doctor smiled, and pointing to a thrifty grape climbing over a neat lattice, and loaded with purple fruit, he said:

"That vine needs careful attention; and if pruned and properly cared for, it is what you see it; but if neglected, how soon would it become a worthless thing. So the love which is to all, at some period, the most precious thing in life, and which needs so much care to keep it unimpaired, is generally neglected. Ah! my friend, it is little acts—trifles—that so often estrange loving hearts. I have always made it a point to treat my wife with the same courtesy that characterized my deportment in the days of courtship; and while I am careful not to offend her tastes and little prejudices, I am sure that mine will be equally respected."

That night I rode homeward pondering the doctor's words and reviewing the years of my married life, I was surprised at my own blindness, and determined to recall the early dream if possible.

The next morning at breakfast I astonished Alice by a careful toilet, chatted over the dinner, and after tea invited her to ride. When she came down in my favorite blue organdie, with her hair in shining curls, I thought she never looked lovlier.

I exerted myself as of old, to entertain her, and I was surprised to find how quickly and pleasantly the evening passed.

I resolved to test the doctor's theory perfectly, and the result exceeded my most sanguine expectation.

For all the little nameless attentions so gratifying to a woman's heart, and so universally accorded by the lover and neglected by the husband, I find myself repaid a thousand fold; and I would advise all who are sighing over the nonfulfilment of early dreams, to go and do likewise, remembering, that which is worth winning is worth keeping.

Ordinance No. 1.

The Trustees of the Village of Mankato do enact and ordain the following by-laws:

SECTION 1. All side-walks in Mankato shall be twelve feet wide; and not to exceed four feet thereof next the buildings shall be used for cellar doors, steps, stairs or platforms. Said sidewalks may be constructed of plank, or stone, or gravel—the latter two modes to have a curb stone. The plank shall be not less than one and a quarter inches thick, well supported with joists, and may be of pine, oak or ash, and not to exceed ten inches in width. The stone to be well imbeded in sand. The gravel to be at least one foot thick. All of said walks to slope towards the street four inches, and to be of a grade corresponding with the established grade of the street, and eight inches higher than the gutter of the street; and to be accepted by the trustees.

SECTION 2. All awnings hereafter to be erected shall be at least eight feet at the lowest part thereof above the top of the side walk, and shall be supported with iron brackets or iron frames firmly attached to the building, or by substantial wooden or iron posts. If supported by posts, said posts to be placed at the outer edge of the sidewalk. If any person or persons shall erect any awning contrary to the provisions of this section, he or they shall forfeit for each of said offense, the sum of $5, and the further sum of one dollar for each twenty four hours that he or they shall suffer the same to remain after having been duly notified by the marshal. All awning posts now standing within the prescribed limits of any sidewalk in this village, shall, on or before the first day of November, 1865, be removed, or made to conform to the above provisions, under a penalty of five dollars for each offense, and also a penalty of one dollar for each twenty four hours that the same shall remain unaltered after the expiration of the time above mentioned

SECTION 3. No person shall ride or drive, or place, by any means, any horse, ass, mule or any one or more cattle, or any vehicle used to carry one or more persons or any kind of loading, or place or cause to be placed any other obstruction, upon sidewalks, or any foot walk established, or any public grounds within the village. This shall not prevent any person from driving any animal or vehicle across the sidewalk to enter the adjoining premises, upon a suitable crossway to be constructed according to the directions of the trustees; nor to prevent a person from receiving or discharging goods or freight upon the side walk, provided he does not occupy an unreasonable time for that purpose, nor more than two hours after notice of the marshal to clear the same, which shall in all cases be deemed an unreasonable time.

SECTION 4. No person shall place or suffer any of such animals or any such vehicle to stand on any crosswalk in the street, in such manner as to obstruct the free use of any sidewalk.

SECTION 5. No person shall encumber or obstruct any street, sidewalk, lane, alley, public grounds or other public place, by placing therein or thereon any building materials, carriages, carts, wagons, sleighs, boxes, lumber, fire wood, or any other material or substance whatever, without first obtaining from the President of the Board of Trustees written permission; but in no case shall such permission exceed a period of two months, nor to allow the use of more than one-third the sidewalk and one third of the street. The board of trustees may at any time revoke such license. At the expiration of the permission or the revocation of it, said person shall remove the said material, substances or obstructions from the street and sidewalks, within a reasonable period of time.

SECTION 6. It shall be the duty of the owners or occupants of any building or land fronting on a street to remove from the sidewalk in front of such land all snow, ice and rubbish of every kind after 12 hours notice by the marshal.

SECTION 7. No person shall put or cause or suffer to be put into any drain, gutter, sewer, alley or street or public grounds, any filth or substance that may cause obstructions, nuisances or injuries in or to the same, or which may increase the expense of improving the same, unless upon leave of the trustees

SECTION 8. Any person who shall offend against any one of the above sections, except section two, shall be subjected to a penalty of not less than one dollar nor more than ten dollars, in the discretion of the court; and a continuance of the same offenses for the space of twelve hours after such conviction, shall be another offense like the first, and shall subject the offender to a like penalty.

SECTION 9. Any owner or occupant who shall have upon his premises any unsound or unwholesome meat of any kind, or offals of any animal or fish, or hides or skins, or who shall place or cause to be placed on the premises of another, or in any street, walk, public ground or alley, or who shall have or occupy any cellar, tallow chandler shop, soap factory, tannery, stable, barn or privy sewer, or any other unwholesome or nauseous place which shall emit offensive smells, or shall endanger the health of any person, shall clean, remove or abate the same in the manner the trustees shall direct, within 12 hours after notice by the marshal. The existence of all such causes or places are hereby declared to be nuisances; and any person who shall once offend against this by-law shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than ten dollars, and for a continuance of such nuisance for twelve hours after one or more convictions, shall be subject to a penalty of twenty five dollars for each and every such twelve hours continuance.

SECTION 10. Any person who shall wilfully injure or destroy any shade or ornamental tree in any of the streets or public grounds in said village, or who shall wilfully injure any fence or ornament on the public grounds, or any public building, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars

SECTION 11 No person shall dig, remove or carry away, or cause the same to be done, any stone or earth from any street, walk, lane, alley or public ground, without permission of the trustees. A violation of this law shall subject the offender to a penalty of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, in the discretion of the court.

SECTION 12. All public shows, exhibitions, lectures, concerts, theatrical or other entertainments, for which an admission fee is charged, are prohibited, except upon leave of the trustees. Such leave may be granted, in the discretion of the trustees, when such lectures or exhibitions pertain to the arts or sciences, or when the benefits are mainly to be appropriated to charitable or public uses. In all cases, the trustees may grant a license therefor, upon the pre payment into the village treasury of a sum of not less than three nor more than fifty dollars for each such entertainment. Any person who shall offend against this ordinance shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, in the discretion of the court.

SECTION 13. No person shall bathe between the hours of five a. m., and nine p. m. in any place within the village exposed to public view; and every person who shall violate this ordinance shall pay a fine of one dollar

SECTION 14. That all gunpowder now or hereafter to be brought to said village shall be deposited or kept in some place to be selected by the persons owning or possessing the same, and approved of by a recorded vote of the trustees. Every person may keep a quantity of fifteen pounds or less in a tin canister with a tin cap or cover; and no such canister shall be opened after candlelight. Any person offending against any of these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of twenty five dollars for each offense

SECTION 15. No person shall erect within the limits of the village any slaughter house, tallow chandler shop, soap factory or tannery, without permission of the trustees. Any person offending against these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of not less than twenty five nor more than fifty dollars; and every continuance of such erection for the space of five days after one or more convictions, shall be an offense subject to a like penalty.

SECTION 16 No person shall establish or continue in said village, after the first day of July, 1865, the use of any billiard or other gaming table or bowling saloon, or any house or place in which to vend or deal in spirituous, vinous, fermented, mixed, intoxicating or any other kind of liquors or drinks, without license first obtained from the trustees. Any person offending against these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of not less than twenty five nor more than fifty dollars for each offense; and a continuance of such offense after one or more convictions, shall be a new and distinct offense, subject to the like penalty.

SECTION 17 No person shall permit any hogs or horses to run at large in said village at any time; nor any cattle, except between the hours of five in the morning and and nine o'clock in the evening. Any person offending against these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of not less than one nor more than ten dollars for each offense.

SECTION 18 No tavern or saloon keeper, or keeper of any place where any kinds of drinks or liquors shall be sold, or where any game of chance or amusement of any kind is permitted, shall harbor or permit any boy under the age of seventeen years to stay in such place, or shall sell or give, or permit any other person to sell or give to such boy, any kinds of liquors or drinks, or shall permit such boy to play any such game of chance or amusement. Any person offending against these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than ten dollars.

SECTION 19. No person shall ride or drive in the streets or walks or public grounds, on a run, or in an immoderate or dangerous manner, either with or without a carriage or vehicle: and any person who shall violate this section shall be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars, in the discretion of the court.

SECTION 20 The trustees shall appoint a fire warden, who shall inspect all chimneys, ovens, stoves, pipes, smoke houses or dry houses, or apparatus to contain fire or heat, or places where ashes may be deposited; and if any of the same are erected in an unsafe way or manner or place, or shall be so deemed by such warden, he shall give notice thereof to such owners or occupants, and if such owners or occupants shall continue the same in any way or manner or place, not expressly approved of by the trustees, for the space of five days thereafter, such chimney, oven, stove, pipe, smoke house or dry house, or apparatus to contain fire or heat, or places where ashes may be deposited, are hereby declared to be nuisances; and any person violating these provisions shall be subject to a penalty of not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars, and on conviction thereof the marshal is hereby authorized and directed to abate such nuisance.

SECTION 21. All penalties herein prescribed are in addition to the costs of suit, which latter must abide the event of the suit; and the recovery of penalties shall not impair actions to recover damages by individuals, nor actions by the village for damages to public property.

WM. F. LEWIS, President
Board of Village Trustees.

The President's Brother.

At some point on the march from Fayetteville, and old couple, man and wife, in the shabby dress of the South, and with a countenance smoke dried and stained with tobacco juice, made their appearance at the headquarters of the General commanding the column of the division, and, when they succeeded in getting attention, preferred a request to 'pass to Washington.' The following dialogue followed!

'What do you want a pass to Washington for?'

Old Man—'I want to see my brother there.'

'Who is your brother?'

'Well, I reckon you'ns has hearn tell of him He's Andy Johnson, President of the United States.'

This reply caused some astonishment, but the strong likeness of the old man to the President, which now became apparent to all, confirmed his statement, and all became satisfied of its truth. In the course of the inquiries it came out that the old man could neither read nor write.

THE THIEF'S PLEA.—'Well, Sir,' said the City Judge to a prisoner charged with stealing, 'it appears to me that I've seen you before. Your figure head looks very familiar. Have you been here before?'

'Yes, Sir.'

'How many times?'

'Not over a dozen'

'Ah! you old rogue, I thought so. Weren't you before me once for stealing a shawl?'

'Yes, Sir.'

'And a watch?'

'I remember something about it.'

'And a breastpin?'

'I shouldn't be surprised.'

'And a case of boots?'

'I do recollect that time!'

'And some pieces of drygoods, if I am not mistaken?'

'Well, you han't!'

'And an old gentleman's wallet?'

'That's so, your Honor.'

'And on one occasion a barrel of cider?'

'Only one.'

'And about a year ago, a horse and wagon?'

'Quite likely.'

'And here you are, up for stealing old junk, this time. Upon my conscience! What excuse have you?'

'A very good one, your Honor.'

'What one? Necessity?'

'Not exactly.'

'Then what?'

'Your own advice.'

'My advice? How dare you? Bold fellow! You've been here so many times you've got familiar, and grown saucy.'

'I say I acted upon your advice and I stuck to it.'

'Rascal! Tell me when I advised you to steal.'

'Every time I've been brought before you, the evidence was not sufficient, and you discharged me, and said: 'Go about your business!' and I did My business is stealing; I only followed your orders'

'Well, Sir,' now said the astonished Judge, 'the evidence is not sufficient this time, either, and you are discharged, you lucky rogue. But take care you don't stick to business so close, hereafter, or you may find you've overworked yourself, and I shall have to send you to a hospital.'

HELP YOUR FATHER.

"My hands are so stiff I can hardly hold my pen," said Farmer Wilber, as he sat down to "figure out" some accounts that were getting behindhand

'Could I help you, father?' said Lucy, laying down her bright crochet work. "I should be glad to if I only knew what you wished written."

'Well, I shouldn't wonder if you could Lucy,' he said, reflectively. 'Pretty good at figures, are you?"

"It would be a fine story if I did not know something of them, after going twice through the arithmetic," said Lucy laughing. "Well, I can show you in five minutes what I have to do, and it'll be a powerful help if you can do it for me. I never was a master hand at accounts in my best days, and it does not grow any easier, as I can see, since I put on specs."

Very patiently did the helpful daughter plod through the long, dull lines of figures, leaving the gay worsted work to lie idle all evening, though she was in such haste to finish her scarf. It was reward enough to see her tired father, who had been toiling all day for herself and the other dear ones, sitting so easily in his easy chair, enjoying his weekly paper as it can only be enjoyed in a country home, where news from the great world beyond comes seldom, and is eagerly sought for.

The clock struck nine before her task was over, but the hearty "thank you, daughter, a thousand times," took away all sense of weariness.

"It's rather lookin' up, when a man can have an amanuensis,' said the father. 'It is not every farmer that can afford it.'

'Nor every farmer's daughter that is capable of making one,' said the mother, with a little pardonable maternal pride.

'Nor every one that would be willing, if she were able,' said Mr. Wilber—which last was a sad truth How many daughters might be of use to their fathers in this and many other ways, who never think of lightening a care or a labor If asked to perform some little service, it is done at best with a reluctant step and an unwilling air which robs it of all sunshine or claim to gratitude

Girls, help your father; give him a cheerful home to rest in when evening comes, and do not worry his life away by fretting because he cannot afford you all the luxuries you covet. Children exert as great an influence on their parents as parents do on their children.

'Freemasons,' said an inquisitive genius, 'are always good natured, and I should realy like to know the reason.'

'Why,' replied a royal arch, 'when we are initiated they heat the gridiron so hot that it takes all the temper out of us.'

A COUNTRY girl, says the Rocky Mountain News, was spilt from a wagon on the other day, and had a leer fuery mussed in the snowdrifts. After recovering from a short spell of insensibility, her first struggling soliloquy was 'Oh fiddle! I hope there was no editor man in sight.'

THEO HOOD once saw an exceeding pompous man walking in a street in London whom he immediately accosted thus: "Sir, may I enquire if you are anybody in particular?" He then walked off without waiting for a reply.

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn., Friday June 2, 1865.

VALEDICTORY.

With this issue our connection as pro- rietor of the UNION ceases. We have old all the material upon which this aper is printed to Wm. B. Griswold, ho becomes, after this date, sole pro- rietor, as we have been for the past wo years. We shall continue in charge f the editorial department until the rrival of Mr. Griswold, which will be n the course of a week or two, and we ust sooner. We shall be connected ith the office however, until our busi- ess matters are settled up, which will ake us a couple of months. Our ac- naintance with Mr. Griswold is very rief, but it has been pleasant and agree ble, and we believe that we have placed ur paper in safe and competent hands. e has had considerable experience in e publishing business, and is posted all its details, and will, no doubt, ake a live Republican paper.

In thus selling out our interest, we ve not made any sudden move, but ave contemplated, for several months, tiring from this paper, to engage in e same business in another locality, om which our readers will hear from in due course of time.

Our successor will not have the ob- acles to overcome that we have had. strong prejudice existed against the fice that we purchased two years ago. d its management had been so poor at it had sunk into insignificance, and seemed almost a hopeless task to un- take to build up a paper that had so n down. We ventured however, and arted with a subscription list of twelve, d with no advertising or jobbing tronage. At the close of the first ght months our subscription list num- red six hundred cash subscribers, and day the paper is self supporting, pays handsome profit, and at a low esti- ate its business is worth three thou- nd dollars per year.

Our friends in this and adjoining unties have extended to us a hearty pport, and in return for their patron- e, we have endeavored to give them a od paper. That we have succeeded this our constantly increasing sub- iption list is a sufficient evidence, d without egotism, we think we may stly claim a little credit for having ced this paper upon such a good oting in so short a time. We have ly one thing to regret, and that is at the increase of business during the t four months has been so great that have not been able to devote as uch time to editing our paper as we shed, and as a Republican journal this region demanded. For this son, in part, we decided to sell out, d accept a position in another field, ually lucrative and less laborious.

With these brief remarks, dear read , we take leave of you all, thanking r friends for their uniform kindness d support in the past, and extending our enemies the toe of our editorial ot.

Capt. Davy, of Co. H. 2nd Cavalry, understand, has been detained for eral weeks at St. Paul, having been rt-martialed. There is no better or ver man in the service than the cky Capt. Various charges have n trumped up against him, however, h as drunkenness, disorderly con t, appropriating government horses private use, and using disrespectful guage towards his superior officers. The court has not been able to sus- n any of these, and the Captain will n join his company. The using of srespectful language", occurred we ieve, about the time of our late Indi- raid; the Captain represented to the neral that his home and friends were in ger, and asked that he might go h his company and protect them. The General said that he could not Whereupon the valiant Captain srespectfully,' invited the "gay and ive" General to perform a task ich he himself could not do. The neral, having got above his vocation, sidered himself insulted, and so had Captain arrested. We learn still her that another charge was to be ferred but Sibley finally thought it to not bring it up, as it would ssarily bring to light several trans ions of himself and staff, that might lt in relieving him of his "star."

HE NEXT GOVERNOR.—Our State ex- nges are agitating the subject as to shall be our next Governor. Secre- Blakely, before he is asked, says he cannot accept. We are very glad ear it, for the people have determin- o retire all such "issues" this fall, there is better material to be found he State. Our present simple-min- and child-like Governor says "If ouldn't find anybody equally accepta- o the soldiers" as himself, he will ent to serve another term. How and condescending. There are other e men on the battle field more "ac- ble to the soldiers" and citizens me than you are, and we must lay n the shelf. We are sorry for you, hen. "You have our earnest sympa- and we will do our best to assist you; but unless you slaughter every isolated Indian or marauding band that approaches us, as our fathers did in other western states, ten thousand" such 'cusses' as you couldn't be elected Governor. If we may be allowed to express a preference at this early day, we would present the name of Col. Wm R. Marshall, of the 7th Regiment. He is competent in every respect, is a brave officer, has served his country well, and is deserving of the position.

The people on the frontier want to know why Sibley is not removed. So do we, and we think the best way to accomplish it is to circulate petitions asking and demanding his removal. There is not a man, woman or child outside of St. Paul, but what would willingly sign them. Gen. Curtis knows the estimation in which the people hold this billy goat, and we think it not unlikely that he will accede to their wishes ere long. Gen. Curtis is now in St. Paul on business connected with our frontier.

The Minn. Heavy Artillery, now at Chattanooga is to be mustered out of the service immediately.

THE RETURNING TROOPS.

In order to expedite the payment and final discharge of troops, after their return to the State, Col. Averill has been authorized, in case the muster rolls are incomplete in any respect, to examine the records and supply omissions.

Some doubt and confusion exists as to the law granting three months extra pay to army officers. We therefore append the section of the army appropriation bill, passed by the 36th Congress at its second session, which grants it:

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That all officers of volunteers now in commission below the rank of brigadier general, who shall continue in the military service to the close of the war, shall be entitled to receive, upon being mustered out of said service, three months' pay proper.

The bill was approved March 3d last. "Pay proper" means pay exclusive of commutation for servants, rations, forage, &c.

ST. PETER LAND OFFICE.—Hon. H. A Swift has received the appointment of Register of the Land office at St. Peter, and J. B. Downer, of Wabashaw, the office of Receiver.

Duty of Teachers.

Among the duties of teachers, none is more laborious and perplexing than securing the punctual attendance of pupils. Many parents keep their children out of school, without proper cause, and some families invariably send their children too late to school. These evils are seen and felt by the good teacher, and it becomes his duty at once to remedy them. To do this he has to go from house to house, entreating a better attendance. Some teachers are too careless about the attendance of their scholars. A good attendance is an indication of a good teacher, and a good school. Every parent is in duty bound to give his child an education. This he cannot expect to do unless he keeps him in school. It is believed that a statute law prohibiting a parent from keeping his child out of school without a permit from the teacher would have a good effect.

D. W.

Elementary Sounds.

One of the first things that should be taught in school is the sounds represented by the alphabet. Very few teachers in the county have given proper attention to this subject. No teacher must expect to get a favorable report of his school unless he teaches these sounds, nor can a person expect to obtain a license to teach, unless he is able to separately make all these sounds. They are the elements of spoken language, and should be taught to all the pupils in school. Spelling by sounds is an excellent exercise, and should be practised in every school. Pupils who speak any other language often find it difficult to pronounce English words. They should be especially taught how to place the organs of speech to make proper sounds and drilled until pronunciation is familiar.

MR. EDITOR.—I have been too busy the past few months to write anything for the UNION, nor have I regretted that; as abler correspondents have from time to time, occupied your columns. But I take a few moments just to express the satisfaction I feel at the spirit manifested in the communities generally with reference to our Indian troubles. First, we are talking right out at those whose duty it has been, and still is, to provide proper protection for our frontier. That's right, if our public men neglect their duty, it is our privilege and our duty by every means in our power to call them to account.

But what pleases me most is that we are not talking only, but stirring ourselves for our own protection. The organization of a body of minute men and providing arms and ammunition for the settlers was a wise and prudent step. Still it is evident that neither the military on the frontier, nor our armed minute men fully meet our wants, to track the sneaking, thieving murderers into their hiding places in the brush and timber. We need a class of bold fearless men accustomed to hunting, who would be willing for the time being to play Indian, and follow them night and day. But we have no right to expect any one to go into that business unless we are willing to make them ample compensation for the risk and trouble they must incur.

Holding these views as I have long done, I was rejoiced to read in your last issue that our County Board had offered a bounty of $200 for each raiding Indian killed in our county. Doubtless the border counties will soon follow our example. I know there are some who object to our thus taxing ourselves, because they say Uncle Sam owes us protection and ought to give it. Or it should be done by our State authorities. I don't dispute these assertions, but I say that if we wait on their movements, one half of us will get our throats cut and the other be making tracks eastward one of these days. Dan O'Connelly's favorite quotation with some modification we may apply to ourselves.

> "Hereditary bondsmen know you not,
> That he who would be free,
> Himself must strike the blow?"

If we will only properly resist the devils they will flee from us." But we should I think do something more than offer a bounty for killing Indians. It is just possible that some white man may get hurt or killed while hunting them. Now the family of the man who thus falls is as much entitled to our sympathy and our aid, as those who have so bravely died for our country in fighting rebels. We can and ought to see that in some way such should be cared for.

I intended to have made another suggestion or two, but the mail will not wait, and I must close this in a hurry.

Sterling, May 22, 1865. SIDNEY.

INDIAN NEWS.—A Correspondent of the Press, writing from Fort Wadsworth, says:

A dispatch from Ft. Wadsworth some time ago to Col. Adams informed him that a large body of Indians were at Devil's Lake making ready for an attack on this place, and Mr. Peter Bergennaux—just from Red River settlement and St. Joe—confirms the statement and says that from all he could learn there were about 3,000 warriors coming on this Post. It is in good shape, however, to receive a visit from as many more. Col. Adams, commanding here places some reliance on this report, as he is getting things in order.

The Amnesty Proclamation

The Pioneer says:—

The Amnesty Proclamation of President Johnson is very far from being as liberal as that issued by President Lincoln, March 8, 1863. The former excludes fourteen classes, which embrace vast numbers of people, while the latter excluded only six classes, as follows:

1. All those who are or shall have been military or civil officers, or agents of the so called confederate government.

2. All who have left judicial stations under the United States to aid the rebellion.

3. All who are or shall have been military or naval officers with the rank of colonel in the army or like rank in the navy.

All who left seats in the United States Congress to aid the rebellion.

All who resigned their commissions in the army or navy of the United States, and afterwards aided the rebellion.

6. All who have engaged in any way treating colored persons or white persons in charge of such, otherwise than lawfully as prisoners of war, and which persons may be found in the United States as soldiers, sergeants, or in any other capacity,

"More Injury to the West than the War Itself"

H A. TENNY, ESQ., of Madison, (Wis.), in the State Journal, shows how the present tariff is the source of "more injury to the West than the war itself":

The last tariff law, to my view, was a sale of every interest of the consumer for the benefit of the manufacturer, and has done more injury to the West than the war itself. The theory of protection is that manufacturers will compete with each other, and thus in the end bring prices down below those which active competition would secure.

Four years have shown the nature and extent of their competition. Iron that we used to buy for 2½ to 3½ cents, went up to 10 and 15 cents, nails from 2 to 10 cents' glass in the same proportion, paints, oils' &c., the same, woolens 100 and cottons 1,000 per cent, on many fabries. Every form of tool, machinery, and necessaries used by the farmer the same. Indeed, the whole tariff list shows but one result—a small part of this advance that on imported goods is due to the gold market, a part, also, is due to the increased cost of labor and prices of raw material; but taking out this, and the advance over and above every explainable cause, has been fully 50 per cent. On what was imported the government received a revenue, but on every article raised or manufactured in the country the nation not only received no revenue from the manufacturers, but the whole advance, tax and all, was shouldered off upon the consumer. In this way the entire profits, or about all, of the labor of the West was absorbed, and the consumer received little or no equivalent for his money. In other words, the farmers of the West are just as much poorer and the manufacturers just as much richer as this enormous advance has bled the one and filled the pocket of the other.

* * * In general terms, free trade and competition in every farm to effect the reduction of prices to the lowest limit is the great necessity, as it soon will be the den and of the entire West and South—nineteen twentieths of whom are producers, and have received no equivalent for the extortions put upon them. As consumers pay all the taxes that support the government, no matter how levied, it is but the merest justice that freedom of trade should follow freedom to the slave, and the nation in this era of its existence strike off every fetter upon traffic, leaving every one to buy in the cheapest and sell in the best market, and receive to his own use the legitimate profits of his enterprise and industry. I should suppose that even that great seat of philanthropy—New England—would now come forward and gracefully relieve us from their clutches, as we have been taxed for their special benefit ever since the government was organized—even down to paying a bounty on catching mackerel.

NEWS FROM FORT WADSWORTH.

Major Brown received a dispatch on the 16th from Ecanajinka, chief of the scouts stationed at the Hawk's Nest, conveying the gratifying intelligence that a party of ten scouts, under Two Stars, had met five Indians returning from the frontier, and killed four of them. The fifth being well mounted fled during the fight, and was promptly pursued by Two Stars and One Road, who pushed him so closely that he abandoned his horse, and plunged into a large lake. He had been fired at several times during the pursuit, and after he reached the lake—with what success is not known. The scouts having expended all their ammunition took the horse and all the plunder of the Indian, except his arms, leaving the scoundrel nothing but his breech-clout and moccasins in shape of clothing.

The only casualty among the scouts was occasioned by the bursting of a gun during the fight, which terribly lacerated the hand of one of the most reliable, energetic and firm men of the party. Two of his fingers were entirely carried away, and many of the muscles of the hand and wrist utterly destroyed. When the messengers left the camp he was still bleeding profusely, and was suffering great pain.

During the fight a young man of 18 or 19 years was taken prisoner temporarily, from whom the following information was obtained: The party started from Chiefs' Bluff. Two of the sons of White Lodge, John Campbell and nine others formed the original party, and their destination was this post, and the Indian camps in the vicinity; their object was to steal horses and kill whites and friendly Indians. Four other Indians subsequently joined them, and the party numbered sixteen when it reached the Coteau. Finding the chances unfavorable for their business in this vicinity they concluded to go in search of a more favorable locality. The four that joined after the party had started, went towards the Jones (they are probably the four that stole nine horses from the James River Yanktonais,) two of the original party went down the Coteau (they returned from Buffalo Lake on foot) and ten kept together until they reached the Two Woods, near which place they obtained two horses, and the White Lodges' sons and two others turned back. Campbell and five Indians proceeded toward the settlement, and finally reached the Winnebago reservation, where they murdered a family, and plundered the house of all they could carry. Subsequently Campbell was taken prisoner, and at the time of his capture, the entire party was surrounded. The five Indians were subsequently obliged to move very cautiously, as they were pursued by the whites. They finally eluded the pursuit, and had all reached this point without injury. This party had gone to the settlements he said, at the earnest and repeated solicitation of Campbell.

When asked if there were any other party behind, he said that no other party had visited the settlement, and that no signs had been seen below the head of the Redwood either as they were going down or returning, and he did not believe any other party had approached the frontier.

After the scouts had arrived and obtained what information they deemed important the young scamp was sent to join his associates in crime.

There is no doubt about this being the party that murdered the family on the Winnebago reservation, as they had with them a great supply of men's women's and children's wearing apparel, bedding, curtains, dishes, knives and forks, spoons, &c., &c. They also had a mare and colt and two horses that were taken from the whites. One of the horses was shot during the fight.

In the face of the thrilling reports of hordes of hostile Indians having infested the settlements, it is a reckless disregard of public opinion for me to say that Campbell and his five associates constituted the entire force of hostile Indians that have visited the settlements since the opening of spring, and yet I affirm positively that there have been none others from the hostile camps in the northwest. If other hostile Indians have been there they came across from the Missouri. But I do not believe there have been any others.

Take the reports of the encounters between the whites and Indians after the capture of Campbell, and the depredations committed by them, and you find that all took place within a compass of a few miles, until after the Indians 'got out of the woods.' It is stated that in the second fire upon the soldiers when Mr. Jolly was killed, that the boys thought the 'Indians fired from ten to fifteen shots.' This is the only statement I have found where there were more than five Indians seen. In this case there was a man killed, which was calculated to quicken the powers of multiplication in the minds of 'the boys.' When the fire was returned 'the boys' thought an Indian was killed, but I think that he has not yet been found.

The fact is that the five Indians that went down with Campbell, after the murder of Mr. Jewett and family, found themselves hemmed in by the whites, and, as the young Indian stated, were hunted through the woods for several days. They were seen, and committed depredations at several points during that time. Hence the idea of numerous parties. We all recollect the horrors perpetrated in Nicollet county in 1862. There were frequent reports of hundreds of Indians being seen in a body, in different places; yet the record shows that nine Indians committed all the murders that were committed and burned all the buildings that were burned in the county.

When this matter can be examined dispassionately, I think all candid men will admit that five Indians and the miscreant Campbell committed all the depredations committed in Blue Earth county in 1865.

Campbell and four of his associates (and probably the fifth) have paid the penalty of their crime, and I think the frontier will not again be troubled with hostile Sioux. In my last letter I said that Major Rose would use every means at his command to prevent raids to the settlements, and he has now such an organization of scouts and such arrangement of troops as will render the passage of raiders through his lines almost impossible. If the Indians reach the settlement, it must be by the Big Woods or the Missouri. By the latter route they must cross near the Iowa line.

Truly yours, C. HARMIN.

JEFF DAVIS AND SUITE.

The following is from the Herald's Fortress Monroe correspondence:

PERSONNEL OF THE PRISONERS.

Jeff. Davis, of whom we of the North have heard so much and seen so little for the past four years, is a man about six feet in height, rather lean, and not of the finest figure by any means. I should take him to be somewhat above fifty years of age, prematurely gray. He has full whiskers, rather stunted in growth, and, like his hair, sprinkled with gray. His gray eyes (one of which is blind) have an undefined and unfathomable look, and his mouth, of the Grecian mould, is occasionally jerked out of all proportion by a sepulchral laugh or forced smile. He is confined to his bed a great deal of the time, and it requires all the nursing of his strong nerved wife to keep him from giving way to despondency. He is a pitiful sight, and the last man one would have supposed to be a fit subject for Presidential honors.

MRS. DAVIS AND CHILDREN.

Mrs. Davis is the second wife of the ex President, by whom he has had four children. The eldest is a smart little black eyed girl, Maggie, of some fourteen summers, and the next a boy, of about twelve or thirteen, who goes by the euphonious cognomen of "Young Jeff." He is a chip from the old block, and we would suppose from his actions and temper, shown on various and sundry occasions, that he too, like his traitorous sire, would in after days be fit for "treason, stratagem and spoils." The next is a smart little fellow, with bright eyes and flaxen hair, too young to have the least appreciation of his condition, and the fourth is a nursing child. Mrs. Davis is a member of the Howell family, of Georgia, and has a great many relatives at Augusta. She is a pretty woman, of probably forty years of age. When I first saw her, at Macon, and conversed with her on the cars, I thought her pretty and agreeable; but to look at her now it seems as though twenty years had been heaped upon her head in one short week. Her pride and vivacity have forsaken her, and truly she is but the wreck of her former self.

MISS HOWELL,

her sister, is a young lady hardly out of her teens, if we are to judge from her appearance. She has black hair and black eyes, with a ruddy complexion, and very little of the modest demeanor. This is not much to her detriment, however, as her future prospects are not well calculated to develop the finer qualities of a high bred lady. She is affianced to Lieutenant Pathaway, one of the prisoners.

Having thus hurriedly sketched the outlines of the Davis family, I will leave the imaginations of my readers to fill in the back-ground and supply the lights and shades, and proceed to portray the personnel of the other notables.

ALEXANDER H. STEVENS,

the rebel Vice President, is one of the most singular men in appearance you will meet with in a lifetime. I should take him to be about five feet six inches in hight, and almost as slim as a skeleton. He appears to be nothing but skin, bone and cartilage, and is so feeble as to be hardly able to move about. His face is entirely devoid of beard, and his lips extremely thin. He is what is commonly called lantern jawed, and has a high, smooth forehead. His eyes are bright, but after looking at them straight during a somewhat lengthy conversation, I am unable to tell what color they really are. He was dressed in plain black clothes, and wears a heavy gold fob chain. The amber stem of his meerschaum pipe is always seen, either in his mouth or protruding from his vest pocket.

He conversed very freely about the events of the past four years. He maintained that he was always in favor of the Union and opposed to secession, though he advocates the inherent right of a State to withdraw from the Union under the constitution. He vindicates his course in accepting the Vice-Presidency of the Confederacy by saying that he did so in order to prevent the horrors of disorganized warfare, and to try to bring about reconstruction. He is not on good terms with Davis, and I have not seen them exchange words during the trip. Both keep their state rooms closely, and neither seem to pay much attention to what is transpiring around them.

GRAND OVATION TO GENERAL SHERMAN'S ARMY.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Before daylight this morning, the fire companies of the city were out watering the streets for the splendid military display that Gen. Sherman's army has made. The air was chilly, but the sun rose warm and bright, and soon the line of march was packed on either hand with even thousands more than witnessed the pageant yesterday. Major General John A. Logan having received only yesterday, the War Department's order assigning him to the command of the Army of the Tennessee, issued immediately an order requiring the command of the 15th corps to be given to Gen. W. B. Hazen, of the 2d division, who was assigned to the corps by Secretary Stanton. Brig. Gen. Oliver succeeded Gen. Hazen in command of the division. The promotion is eminently deserved, and the division is highly gratified thereby.

MOVEMENT OF THE COLUMN.

At 9 o'clock precisely Gen. Sherman headed the column and moved from the Capitol down Pennsylvania Avenue amid the din of huzzas and congratulations, and a hailstorm of boquets and wreaths. The avenue was so densely packed with spectators that it was almost impossible to move along the street. The 9th Illinois mounted infantry preceded the General, and cleared the streets. Notwithstanding the presence of the guards, the people, bearing their floral gifts, crowded toward the General and would not be denied the privilege of presenting them. The column passed from the avenue to Fifteenth street, and passing the Treasury building moved past the stands erected in front of the White House for the President, Generals and their invited friends.

THE PRESIDENT'S STAND.

Nearing this point a deafening cheer from the multitude, commenced on the extreme line of seats erected opposite the President's stand, and from that packed along the sidewalks, announced the appearance of General Sherman. His appearance was the signal for a welcoming shout that did not die away until he had dismounted and taken his position on the stand. As he advanced from the street toward the platform hundreds assailed him with bouquets, and wreaths, and congratulatory shouts. The General passed hurriedly along declining every opportunity for a hand shake, and ascending the stand, where his remarkably healthy and neat appearance was welcomed again with thundering huzzas.

AN INCIDENT.

A very significant little incident occurred here which having attracted general attention among the thousands coming opposite the stand, and having been greeted with an endless variety of comments, I cannot refrain from mentioning. The animosity existing between General Sherman and Secretary Stanton on account of the latter's denunciations of Gen. Sherman's terms of agreement conditionally made with Gen Johnston is doubtless well known. Occupying the stand on Gen. Sherman's arrival were Gens. Grant, Meade, Meigs, Hancock, President Johnson, Secretary of the Treasury McCulloch, Post Master Dennison, Attorney General Speed, Secretary Stanton, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Meade, and a large number of prominent ladies. Most of the gentlemen met General Sherman as he entered the party, and grasped his hand. Secretary Stanton was seated between Grant and the President, extending his hand, when Secretary Stanton rose and extended his. General Sherman turned on his heel and seated himself at the further end of the platform, without even bowing recognition. The slight was no sooner given than it was noticed by the multitude who in the enthusiasm of the moment loudly applauded the act, and even laughed at the Secretary's discomfiture.

APPEARANCE OF THE ARMY

Notwithstanding the exhausting march of these armies from North Carolina, the want of requisite time to recuperate and the lack of clothing and equipments the appearance of the men compared very favorably with the Potomac army, reviewed yesterday, and it is conceded by every one that the marching to-day exceeded in point of execution that of yesterday. As the regiments moved up to the stand displaying their ragged, tattered banners, an involuntary burst of applause joined in by men, women and children, broke from the assembled masses and even drowned the music of the band. Handkerchiefs, scarfs bonnets, wreaths, flags, hats and every article calculated at all to attract attention waved from the windows, balconies, house tops, tree tops, fences and platforms along the line of march. Such a wealth and profusion of roses never before carpeted the feet of an army. The street in front of the court house was strewn at times with bouquets, thrown at some favorite by the admiring crowds and the bayonets and gunbarrels of the troops were all in bloom with floral tributes of the people. Any comparison would be invidious when so many well disciplined and veteran soldiers vie with each other for the palm.

ARTILLERY.

The artillery of the army made a splendid appearance. Among those especially prominent for neatness and precision of movement was the battery of young DeGrass of Vicksburgh notoriety. Several ladies accompanied the column, riding in review with their husbands at the head of the troops, and being welcomed at every point with enthusiasm.

THE REAR.

At just twelve o'clock the rear of the Army of Tennessee passed the President's stand, and again the eager thousands choked the street in front. Loud calls were made for the General, and then for the President and Cabinet. All responded by rising and bowing thanks for the honor.

THE VICTORIES.

The following are names of victories which appeard on the banners over the President's stand: Chattanooga, Vicksburgh, Jonesboro, Kenesaw, Shiloh, Chickamauga, Savannah, Nashville, Atlanta, Fort Donelson, Resaca, Stone River, Burtonvillee, Pea Ridge, Mill Springs, Charleston and Franklin.

SECRETARY SEWARD.

Secretary Seward, notwithstanding his severe physical affliction, took a deep interest in the review. Gen. Auger made him comfortable and furnished him with a good position at the headquarters of the defences of Washington that he might witness the grand display.

NEW GOODS
AND NEW PRICES!

White & Marks

ARE NOW RECEIVING THE LARGEST Stock of Goods ever brought to this market, which were bought at

Panic Prices,

and they mean just they say when they assure the public that they intend to sell the same at least as low as can be bought at any other house in the valley, All they ask is for the people to examine their goods and prices!

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
Hats, Caps, Ladies Hats, Notions,
CLOTHING, BOOTS & SHOES,
CUTLERY, ETC.,

One and all are invited to call, as they intend to stand to their old motto, to sell MORE GOODS FOR ONE DOLLAR than any other House in the Valley. [2-42:tf

DEFE TIVE PAG

TOWN AND COUNTY.

ACCIDENT.— A man named John Higgs, living at the Agency, was in Baegen's saw-mill Wednesday, and being a little "how come you so" fell in front of the saw, while it was in motion. His right hand was badly cut, the third finger sawed entirely off. The thumb and first finger were badly lacerated. He was conveyed to the Washington House, and his hand dressed by Drs. McMahan and Frisbie.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure yesterday of shaking hands with our old friend Capt A. Cotter, well known to our citizens, who is now on duty as Quartermaster at Prairie Du Chein, Wis., He is in good health and spirits, and is on his way to Anoka.

Capt Henry. R. Walker, of Co. D. 9th Regiment, called on us yesterday, on a furlough. He has been absent nearly two years, and has participated in all the battles in which the noble 9th has distinguished itself up to the battle of Nashville. Since then he has been in the hospital at Vicksburg. He says the Ninth will be at Fort Snelling by the last of this month.

Capt. I. Taylor of the 3rd regiment, after an honorable service in the army, has returned to Mankato and will settle permanently among us. He was heartily welcomed by his many friends.

Samuel Hidden, an old resident of Minneapolis, has removed his stock of goods to this place, and will soon open a store here. We have known Mr. H. intimately for several years, and can commend him to our people as a reliable and good business man, and worthy citizen.

Mr. Hollenbeck, of Anoka is also stopping in town, with a view to locate here.

DANCE AT THE GERMANIA HOUSE.—Mr. H. Hegele, proprietor of the Germania House, will give a dance, next Monday evening, June 5th at his hotel. Good music, English and German, will be furnished. A good supper will also be provided.

THE MARKETS.— Butter is selling on our streets at a shilling a pound, and retailed in the stores for fifteen cents. At present the supply exceeds the demand, and the quality is very good. Eggs are twelve cents per dozen.

GOOD BUSINESS.— Our merchants generally agree that trade last week was better, and more goods were sold in this place, than any previous week for several years, excepting a few days during the Indian panic. The spring business has been much larger than ever before.

EXAMINATION.—On Monday last, before Esquire Moreland, Michael Kellman and his wife, had a preliminary examination on the charge of receiving and secreting stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen from the house of William H. Miller, while temporarily absent from home. His wife was tried first, and after an examination of several witnesses, and arguments by the counsel for the State, and for the defence, the justice bound her over to appear for trial at the next term of the District Court. Her husband then waived an examination, and both having given bail to appear at the next term of court were discharged. The prosecution was managed in behalf of the State by E. P. Freeman County Attorney, and the defence conducted by S. F. Barney Esq.

TOM THUMB.—It may not be generally known why Tom Thumb gave up exhibiting himself and married. The fact was he had ceased to be a wonder, and all by his carelessness. On his last tour West he ate very hearty of some nice buscuits made with Babbitt's Saleratus (as he could get no other) and never having heard that this Saleratus always made little folks grow, it spoilt his littleness at once, and he is now one of the greatest men in the nation. Now it will not spoil every one's littleness, but it will help it amazingly. Just get a paper at Edward Taylor & Co's and try it.

JEWELRY.— Our readers will be pleased to learn that Lewis & Frisbie have purchased a large assortment of beautiful jewelry, consisting of gold rings of all styles, ear rings, bracelets, bosom pins, gold pens and pencils, which they offer at very low rates, cheaper than can be bought elsewhere.

REMOVED.—Randall & Smith have removed their stock of clothing to their new rooms nearly opposite their old stand. They have now a large sales room, and can make a much better display of their goods. Their stock of clothing is well selected, and just suited to this market. In quality of goods, and prices they defy competition.

STATIONARY.—Lewis & Frisbie have just received a large stock of stationary of all kinds, to which they invite the attention of their customers. Their stock embraces letter and note paper, envelopes, pens, pencils and pen holders, blank books of all sizes, and diaries and pocket records.

GOOD FOR "BOSTON".—Mr. J. B. Fiske and H. J. MacFarland of Boston, Mass., have contributed $10 to the bloodhound fund now in the hands of Major E. P. Evans. This is the first private subscription, he has received, and he has agreed to name one of the dogs Boston, in memory of the liberality of our Boston friends. May "Boston" catch the first Indian ! ! ! The Majer starts to-day for the South, and will have in cash about $1,200 with which to purchase dogs.

OXEN LOST!—On the 27th ult., at South Bend a pair of deep red cattle, six years old. Both horns of the off ox broken off. Had a red yoke on when lost. Any information concerning them sent to Mrs. Sidney Jones of Butternut Valley will be thankfully recieved.

STRAYED OR STOLEN!—A few days after the massacre of the Jewett family, seventeen sheep, belonging to the family were missing, and it is believed they have strayed away or been stolen.

There were seven weathers and ten ewes, and six or eight lambs. All of the sheep had both ears slightly tipped. Any information respecting their whereabouts, given to E. P. Evans or J. M. Jewett of Garden City, will receive a suitable reward.

The District Schools will be commenced next Monday, June 5th in the upper story of Leech's stone building. The teachers will be A. D. Seward Esq., and Miss Carrie Pease.

MAGAZINES.—We acknowledge the receipt of Godey, Harper's, Petersons and the Atlantic Monthlies for June. They are all unusually interesting.

We call attention to the advertisement of Clark W. Thompson, Supt. of Indian affairs.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD, AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for

Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled in acting appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been specially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

These are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases:—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Loss of Appetite, Weakness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

HELMBOLD'S

GENUINE

PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

In one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

Is the Great Diuretic.

READ HIM THERE.—A friend of ours who is a clerk in a New York mercantile establishment, relates a colloquy from which a sprightly youth in the same store came out second best. A poor boy came along with his machine, inquiring—

"Any knives or scissors to grind?

"Don't think we have" replied the young gentleman, facetiously; "but can't you sharpen wits?

"Yes, if you've got any," was the prompt retort, leaving the interrogator rather at loss to produce the article.

The Parsimmon county debating club out west, are debating the question: which is the proudest: a girl with her first beau, or a woman with her first baby? An old lady who has had experience on both sides of the question, says if she had life to live over again, she should feel proudest over her first beau, as she was badly sucked in the baby business.

'No more aequaint Amey' gentlemen,' said he, 'when we were young men: his wife taught him.'

'And why didn't your wife teach you,' was the rejoinder.

'Well, General,' said the old lady, 'I couldn't never read nor write myself.'

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

THIRD SERIES.

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.
Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent per annum to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three tenths per cent in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHFARE is again open for

Freights and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, junction with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S government on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases:—Indigestion, Dyspepsia Liver Affections Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr Swain's Bitters having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a Diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the Blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of [illegible] unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

THIRD SERIES.
$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum, to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three tenths per cent in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

"Four o'clock, and no Ellen yet!—What can detain her so—she that is usually more punctual than the clock itself?"

It was scarcely a room in which Laura Avery was sitting—rather a magnificent bay window with draperies of embroidered lace.

'Poor Ellen,' she murmered, 'how differently our lots have been ordered in this world. Her parents died—their wealth irretrievably lost, and she too proud to accept a cent that she has not laboriously earned. Oh, dear!" and Laura sighed again, just as the clock's liquid voice chimed the half-hour.

'She dosen't come,' soliloquized the puzzled little damsel. 'There's something the matter. Perhaps she is sick—oh, yes, she must be sick! I'll send James to enquire—no I'll go myself.'

Before the sentence was out of her lips she was up in her own room adjusting a soft gray shawl over her black silk dress, and tying the strings of a quiet little brown velvet bonnet, whose one crimson rose among its trimmings of emerald moss was not unlike the bloom of her own cheek.

'I don't think it is going to snow,' she pondered, looking out at the gray, threatening sky, as she drew on her perfectly fitting kid gloves. 'At any rate I shall walk very fast.'

As she came through the softly carpeted vestibule a servant approached her.

'A note Miss Laura. It came five minutes ago.'

Ah! the rose was several shades in the back ground now, as Laura Avery broke open the scented seal, and glanced over the delicate cream-colored sheet, with a bright, half suppressed smile dimpling the corners of her mouth. Yet the note was a very simple one after all.

"MY DEAR MISS AVERY:—May I promise myself the pleasure of accompanying you to hear the new opera to-night? Unless I receive a message to forbid me, I will call for you at half past seven.

Your most devoted,
FORIAN RICHLEY"

Laura instinctively slipped the note into her bosom, as if fearful the very pictures on the wall should catch a sight of the elegant chyrography, and pursued her way down the gloomy street, with eyes that the murky atmosphere through a radient glow of couler de rose.

Meanwhile the gray October light was fading away from a dreay room on the third floor of a house situated on one of those side streets where decent respectability strives, hand to hand, with the grim assailant want.

Singularly out of keeping with the shabby and poverty stricken aspect of the little apartment was a newly-finished dress of lustrous purple silk, bright as the dyes of Tyre, that lay folded on the table beside the window in such a manner that you could see the costly trimmings—a wide border of purple velvet, edged on either side with a fluting of white point lace. For poor Ellen Waynall was nothing more important than a hard working and poorly paid dress-maker.

She lay on the little white bed in the corner, with her flushed check pressed close against the pillow, and her slender figure partially covered by a coarse-pladed scarlet shawl, while the occasional involuntary contraction of her forehead bore witness to the pain she was meekly suffering.

As one or two quiet tears escaped from her closed eyelids, and crept softly down her cheek, a light step sounded on the landing outside, and a knock came gently to the pannels of the door.

'Come in,' said Ellen, hurriedly dashing away the tears. 'Laura, is it possible that this is you, dear?'

'Yes, it is myself, and none other, Nell! I could not imagine why you did not come and fit that dress, as you had appointed; but I know the reason now. Nelly you are sick. Why did you not send for me?'

Ellen tried to smile faintly.

I am not very sick, Laura; at least I have not suffered much pain until to-night, and the doctor says that if I only had a little wine—no, Laura, do not draw your purse,' she added, with a slightly perceptible sparkle in her eyes, and a proud quiver to her lips. 'I am not quite so low as to accept charity. Don't look so hurt and grieved, dearest. You know how sensitive I can not help being on some points. It is only for a little while. When I am well enough to take that dress home, and receive the money for it, I shall be enabled to purchase whatever I may require.'

Laura Avery knelt down at her friend's bed-side, with soft, pleading eyes.

'Dear Ellen, you surely will not refuse to accept a temporary loan from me.

Ellen shook her head with a grave smile.

'I can wait Laura.'

Laura looked from the dress to Ellen with a face of pained perplexity.

Suddenly a bright inspiration seemed to strike her.

'Let me take the dress home, Ellen!' she exclaimed, 'The walk will be just what I need, and I can stop a Dubour's on my way back and order the wine for you. You will never be strong unless you cosset yourself up a little. You will let me Nell?'

Ellen hesitated a moment.

'But, Laura——'

'No buts in the matter, if you please, Nell,' laughed Laura, gleefully beginning to fold the rich dress into the little basket that stood upon the table beside it. 'Where is it to go?'

'To Mrs. Richley's in River Street. Why Laura, what is the matter?'

'Nothing, only I am folding this dress wrong,' returned Laura, in a low voice. It was well that Ellen did not see the scarlet blush that rose to her friend's lovely cheek, as she stood with her back to the bed smoothing the lustrous purple silk. Mrs. Richley's! Laura was almost sorry that she had volunteered to go, but it was too late to retract her offer now.

'What a selfish little creature I am,' she mused. 'Poor Nelly needs the money so much, and cannot go for it herself, and it isn't at all likely that I shall see Florian. I will go—there is an end of it.'

'Thank you, dear Laura; it is so kind of you,' said Ellen, fervently, as Miss. Avery came to the bedside with the basket on her arm, and a blue veil drawn closely over the brown velvet bonnet. 'She ows me three dollars for this dress, and there are seven dollars on the old account that she has never yet paid me.'

'Ten dollars! I'll collect it, never fear,' said Laura gaily, as she disappeared, while to poor Ellen it seemed as if the sunshine all died out with the bright presence of her beautiful friend.

It was nearly dusk when Miss. Avery, summoning up all her resolutions, ascended the brown stone steps of the Richley mansion and rang the bell.

"Is Mrs. Richley at home?"

"What's your business with Mrs. Richley asked the servant, suspiciously scrutinizing the little basket that she carried. Laura bit her lip. This manner from servants was entirely a new experience to her, yet how often must poor Ellen have endured it.

"I have called to bring home a dress that was finished for her," she said in a tone of quiet dignity.

"Oh—ah—yes, well, I s'pose you'd best walk in."

The servant conducted her up stairs to a sort of sitting-room, or boudoir, where Mrs. Richley, a portly dame of about fifty, gorgeously dressed in crimson silk, was sitting in her easy chair in front of a glowing coal fire. Laura was inwardly grateful that the gas had not been lighted, particularly when she discovered that Mr. Florian Richley was lounging on a velvet sofa in one of the window recesses. Mrs. Richley looked up as the servant ushered in the new comer.

'Well, young woman, what do you want?'

Laura's cheek tinged at the tone of coarse insolence in which she was addressed, but she commanded herself to reply meekly:

'I have brought home your dress, Mrs Richley.'

Where is Mrs. Waynall?'

'She is ill.'

'Very well, lay down the dress; it is all right.'

But Laura stood her ground valiantly.

'Miss Waynall would like the money to night, madam—seven dollars on the old account and three for the dress.'

'It is not convenient to-night.'

'But, Mrs. Richly, Miss Waynall is ill and needs the money,' persisted Laura

'There, Florian,' said Mrs Richley, petulently, addressing the young man in the Turkish dressing gown and elaborately arranged hair, 'I told you just how it would be.'

'What the deuce is the matter now? snappishly asked Florian, for the first time condescending to evince an interest in what was going on.

'Why, these impertinent dress-making people are always clamoring for money, just when you have drained me of my last cent.'

'Let 'em clamor, then, thats my advice,' said Mr. Florian, without taking the trouble to move his head.

'Just give me back that ten dollar bill, Florian,' urged his mother:—'You can't want it to night.'

'But I do want it, it happens,' said Florian coolly.

'You are just going to fritter it away in some of those gambling places, or drink yourself stupid again,' fretted Mrs: Richley. 'It's too bad, getting my money away from me just to indulge in those horrid habits! Why dont you earn money for yourself?'

'Easy, mamma, easy,' said the dutiful son, lazily dragging himself to a sitting position

"Don't lose your temper, for it is'nt worth while. This ten dollar bill is going to help make my fortune. It shall take the lovely Laura to the opera to-night.

"Nonsense this fine scheme will flash in the pan just like all the rest of your castles in the air. She won't have you.

'Oh, yes, she will, my incredulous mamma; wait and see. I shall bring her to the point pretty soon. Then I'll pay you back the money out of my lady's bag o' shiners."

"And will you leave off your gambling habits? Oh, Florian they will be the ruin of you yet."

"Perhaps, perhaps not," returned the young man indolently. That will be very much as I please."

Both the mother and her hopeful son had, apparently, entirely forgotten the presence of the young girl who was standing in the dusky shadows near the door, until this moment, when Mrs. Richley, turning sharply round, saw her.

"What are you waiting for?" she asked, irritably. "I have already told you that it was not convenient to pay you the money to-night. Why dont you go about your business?"

Her cheeks were flushed, even beneath their artificial bloom of rouge, and her chill gray eyes sparkled with rising anger, as Laura Avery composedly advanced forward. She took one of the wax tapers from its china shelf and lighted the gas with a steady hand, whose flash of rich rings struck Mrs. Richley with astonishment.

"I am sorry that you can not pay your just debts, Madame," said Laura quietly looking the amazed mother and son in the face; "but I am not sorry for any occurrence that has had the effect of opening my eyes to the true character of Mr, Florian Richley. I will take ten dollars, sir, to my friend, as you will find it entirely unnecessary to go to the expense of taking Miss Laura Avery to the opera to-night."

Florian's handsome cheek had grown very pale—his knees quivered beneath him as he mechanically took the bill from his pocket-book and placed it in the hand of the imperative beauty, while Mrs Richley sank aghast into the cushioned easy chair.

Florian made one desperate attempt to retreive his lost fortune, even in the moment of sore defeat and discomfiture.

"I am very sorry—awkward mistake—hope you will afford me an explanation." he stammered.

"I require no explanation, sir," was Laura's cold reply, as she withdrew from the apartment, haughty and unapproachable as a statute of ice.

She hurried homeward through the twilight streets, with a burning cheek and beating heart, and it was nearly dark when once more she entered Miss Waynall's room, lighted only by the faint glow of the low fire.

"Back so soon, Laura?" asked Ellen, somewhat surprised.

"Here is the money, Nelly, and the wine," she said, thankful for the dim light that could not betray her tell-tale features. "And now you must get well as fast as you can."

"Oh, Laura, I am so much obliged to you," said Ellen, earnestly.

Laura stooped to kiss her friend's pale cheek, inwardly reflecting how much she had to thank Ellen's indisposition.

But she never told Ellen of the discovery she had unwittingly made, while fulfilling the gentle mission of friendship, and no one ever knew the precise manner in which the contemplated match between Florian Richley and Laura Avery was broken off.

There are some things that bring their own reward in this world—and the one act of kindness had saved Laura from unconsciously taking a step that would have precipitated her into a lifetime of misery.

BRIGHAM YOUNG'S EARLY KISSING EXPERIENCE.—A correspondent of the Auburn Advertiser tell the following story in connection with an old well in Aurelius, Cayuga Co., N. Y.

'As an episode in the history of this remarkable well in Aurelius, it may not be uninteresting to our readers to state that Brigham Young, the apostle of Mormonism, assisted at the windlass in hoisting the loosened debris from the well. About this time Brigham took unto himself a wife, by marrying a beautiful and enchanting girl, the daughter of Joseph Works, Esq. Although quite young at the time, yet we remember the great imposter very well, and have not forgotten the numerous scuffles between him and his lady during the hours of intermission at school. Brigham was always attempting to steal a kiss, and she would struggle to deprive him of the delicious pleasure. After a short struggle she would seem to become exhausted, and then her little head, with its rich wealth of luxuriant curls, would fall gracefully upon his bosom, and then—we being a bashful little boy—shame closed our eyes, and we only heard sounds resembling the rapid discharge of potato pop-guns. When the sounds ceased, and we again opened our eyes we, saw a blush of modesty tinged her cheeks, but she returned no word of complaint, and serenely seated her much wronged little self upon the harsh slab bench in the log school house. At that time we thought Brigham a bold, wicked and cruel man, to take such advantage of a frail, modest little girl. But we have since become a wiser and better man."

INFORMATION WANTED.—Any returned soldier, or other person, having any authentic information relative to Corporal Louis C. Timson, of company A. 9th regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, of a later date than March 14 1865, will confer a great favor upon his anxious family and friends by immediately communicating the same, either in person or by letter to Rev. Seth Barnes, St. Anthony, or J. B Chaney, St. Paul. Corporal Timson was captured at Guntown, Mississippi, in June, 1864 suffered at Andersonville and other rebel 'pens,' was finally paroled at Goldsboro, and sent to Wilmington, N. C., about the first of March, and was known to have been in hospital there on the 14th of that month, since which time his fate is unknown to his anxious family.—St. Paul Press.

Elocution—Reading.

Elocution is generally considered the most irksome to teach of all branches of education. Even if more time is devoted to this department than the others, it seems to reflect less credit upon teacher and pupil than any other of the studies pursued. Instruction in reading with most teachers appears to be great labor without corresponding profitable results. The subject not being generally recognized as an art with principles, is taught chiefly by an imitative process, and herein lies all the difficulty.

A selection is chosen, the teacher, perhaps a passable reader himself, repeats a portion with such suggestions as may occur to him at the moment, and then asks the pupil to read as near the style he has given as is possible for him to do. If the pupil does not respond to the call with sufficient strength of voice he is told to read louder without having had preparatory training upon the principle of force, and he naturally resorts to a high, shrill pitch, and then if told to read lower he sinks back into weakness of voice. If he read too fast he is told to read slowly, but not understanding the principle of time he draws and whines the words. He may read indistinctly, then he is told to pronounce the words with clearness. His untrained organs are incapable of fulfilling this and similar demands upon them, and the teacher at last not unfrequently settles into the firm conviction that reading is not only very tedious to teach, but something absolutely beyond his power at least to impart to others.

The true method of instruction in Elocution is to teach the principles first. The voice should be thoroughly under control by them before reading is attempted; then success is certain. When the voice of the pupil is strong, smooth, clear, and flexible then the teacher will have little difficulty in teaching him to fulfill any expression of thought or passion he is capable of comprehending. The voice should be first strengthened by vigorous vocal gymnastics The muscles of the mouth and throat should be energeticslly disciplined upon the sounds of the language before words are articulated. To give flexibility to the voice we should practice the principle of pitch. The principles are few: articulation, force, pitch, time. Practice all of these upon the simple sounds of language first till the voice is under complete control.

EVIL SPEAKING.—Perhaps no single cause contributes more to banish the spirit of God from the houses and hearts of men, than evil speaking.—There are sins of more flagrant enormity, but what sin is more extensively diffused? Evil speaking!! Who is without sin in this respect? How common it has become!—How much of it there is every day, every where, in the city and in the country, at home and abroad, in every large concourse, and in every little company, and even in the soliloquy of the closet! Who is not among its actors and its objects? We sacrifice others on the cruel altar, and then we ourselves become its cruel victims. How easily we slide into this sin!,—Nevins.

About two o'clock on a December night, when the thermometer stood in the neighborhood of zero, a party of wags hailed a farm house in a very boisterous manner. The farmer sprang out of the warm bed, drew on a few articles of clothing and ran out to see what was wanted, when the following dialogue occurred:

'Have you any hay, M——?'

'Plenty of it, sir.'

'Have you any corn?'

'Yes,'

'Plenty of meat and breadstuffs?'

'Yes,'

'Well, we are glad of it for there are very few such articles in a family.'

The party then drove off, leaving the farmer to his reflections.

The Enquirer some time since said that the greatest crime of which Jeff. Davis was guilty was that of having been unlucky. This brings to mind an epigram of Harbington, very reasonable at this hour:

"Treason doth never prosper; what's the reason?
For if it prosper, none dare call it treason!"

And there is a world of truth in that epigram.

An unsophisticated countryman, the other day, coming to Washington, saw a military officer, followed at a respectful distance by two orderlies, in full gallop. "Good gracious!" said he, haven't they caught him yet? I was in about three weeks ago, and they was a-running after him then!"

TO SOFTEN OLD PUTTY.—Take a common poker at a dull red heat, and hold it slowly over the old putty at the rate of two feet per minute, and you can easily cut it off with a pocket knife.

An editor out West has married a girl named Church; he says he has enjoyed more happiness since he joined the Church than he ever did in his life before. Wonder if he goes to Church reg'lar?

A new gunpowder has been discovered in Germany, which has three times the explosive force, and costs only half as much as the powder now in use. The principal materials used in it, are rosin and chlorate of potash.

WANTING CHANGE.—Rest is a very fine medicine. It beats sarsaparilla. Let your stomachs rest, ye dyspeptics. Let your brains rest, ye wearied and worried men of business. Rest your limbs, children of toil. You can't? Cut off all superfluities of appetite and fashion, and see if you can.

A SMALL ALLOWANCE.—An exchange, noticing the marriage of Mr. James Hogg, and Miss Ella Beane, says pork and beans form a natural union; he thinks one bean to a single hog is a small allowance.

THERE is no great genius free from some tincture of madness.

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday June 9, 1865.

--As announced in the last issue of the UNION, the undersigned assumes the proprietorship and editorial management of its columns. The transfer of the office involves no change in the political complexion of the paper, which, in the future as in the past, will continue to reflect the principles and policies of the Republican party, and to advocate the adoption of such measures of the party as are consistent with sound, correct logic, and dictated by mature, honest and patriotic deliberations.

The right to discuss, at the inception of measures proposed to be adopted, their expediency, merit or demerit, and the consequences following their embodiment with our party creeds, is of course, conceded to every journalist. This right will be exercised not for the purpose of being captious or presumptious, but only to evolve and develop, by fair argument, the issues joined.

The UNION was established at a period in the history of our government, when treason had shaped itself into open revolution, and was demanding, at the gates of our capitol, the disintegration of the Republic. Our predecessor, stimulated by loyalty and the importance of the issue, and securing the material of the Independent, commenced the publication of a weekly, appropriately adopting the patriotic side of the arbitration which for four long years has been determining the destiny of our country through streamlets of blood, and named his paper THE MANKATO UNION. It is fitting that the title head to this sheet should remain in memoriam of not only the historic fact that the country was almost enveloped in ruin, and that the salient issue of union or disunion forced all parties to marshal into line pro or con, but of the fact that the people of Mankato and the Blue Earth country in their support granted to the UNION, and to the war, despite the local troubles of their frontier, have ever manifested an earnest purpose in crushing the rebellion and restoring the Union in its original oneness. We would not, therefore, desire that any change take place contemplating a different name to this paper.

To the speedy settlement and development of the section of country south, west, and tributary to Mankato it is necessary that natural, social, and educational advantages worthy of publicity be made known through the medium of the nearest paper having a fair circulation. To this end we invite correspondence from points south and west, from responsible parties, giving facts connected with the progress of the country. But here we will be pardoned for requesting that communications be as explicit as possible, and usually not encumbered with too many mere conclusions of the writer. It should be remembered that not only news of this locality, but all important current news must be crowded into the UNION, and correspondents must not be offended when, in the exercise of editorial judgment, a communication is sometimes abridged. Edward Everett, perhaps the finest scholar in the land, considered it no grievance that paragraphs in his articles to the Ledger were wholly omitted, and his letters thrown into the waste basket. It was the fiat of newspaper emergencies, and as there can be but one judge of the fitness of articles for publication, whether his judgment be an error or not, there is no appeal. We can only say that whatever disposition is made of articles for the UNION will be made with the best of motives towards its contributors.

The undersigned trusts that the UNION, as heretofore, will continue to merit in the future a share of patronage, and that the mantle of public confidence and endorsement so long enjoyed by its late proprietor may be worthily bestowed upon his successor.

W. B. GRISWOLD.

A CURIOUS PARENTHESIS.

Our Governor, in one of his happy efforts, pronounced an eulogy upon the character of our late lamented President, Abraham Lincoln, at St. Paul, in observance of the day of national mourning appointed by President Johnson. The address, with the exception of one "digression" was unexceptionable, and doubtless found a response in the hearts of all men who can appreciate honesty, nobleness of heart, and executive firmness which were truly the characteristics of the late President and his administration. But the Governor, forgetting that his audience had assembled with solemn tread, as it were, to the grave of Mr. Lincoln, to commemorate the dead and to condole with each other in this our national affliction, insinuates into his address a very ill-timed flogging for the last Legislature because, in the aggregate wisdom of that body, it was deemed necessary to differ so strongly from the views of his Excellency as to pass vetoed bills by overwhelming majorities, and to lay upon the table certain recommendations of the Governor. In this stricture upon the action of the Legislature "great I and little you" pervaded the entire parenthesis or "digression," and one would imagine that some stump orator was canvassing the State in opposition to the Republican party with a handful of bills of indictment prepared for that purpose.

The last item in his "digression" was the announcement that he should decline the nomination for re-election to the gubernatorial chair, and but for the regret that the announcement was so untimely, that portion of his address would have been received with applause. It has come to such a pass among professed politicians that when once initiated into an office, however unimportant, they demand as a right of succession, that positions of greater influence and honor be conferred until the entire routine of official positions has been filled; hence, to announce that an incumbent is not a candidate for re-election is simply to say that he has abdicated a vested right in favor of another. It should not be forgotten that the people are the source of power and to them returns, biennially, the authority conferred upon our State officials. We are in favor of candidates of integrity and ability, but it is by no means a reliable rule that because a man has ruled once and long, that he has ruled well and long, or that another with less experience, is less worthy the suffrages of the people.

BLOOD HOUNDS.

Major E. P. Evans, of Garden City, left Mankato on the 3rd inst., for the South, via St. Paul, with $900 contributed by the counties of Blue Earth, Watonwan, Martin and Brown, intending to purchase blood hounds to be used in tracking these copper-colored demons west of us. While in St. Paul Mr. Evans received a number of additional subscriptions to the fund, among which was a contribution of fifty dollars from the Press office. We presume these dogs must be "dog cheap" now in the South, since by proclamation of our late President, they will have no further occasion for "smelling for niggers." It has been suggested that this scheme of hunting Indians with dogs is wild and impracticable, and will result in no good, because the Indian will be more than a match for them. But the intention is not that the dog shall dispatch the savage, but merely trace him while a party of troops in close proximity to the dogs will follow and make an end of the fugitives. To say the least the project is more feasible, we think, than one proposed by a gentleman of a neighboring town, whose position entitles his views to respectful consideration. His proposal is, in effect, to take the armies of the South, form a hunting party similar to that of a fox chase, enclose within their lines the whole territory west of Minnesota and east of Oregon, and forming a ring march to a common centre, taking in all the buffalo and coraling them, leaving the poor Indian to starve for want of meat. But as it may soon be decided that no more Government troops can be used to advantage, this grand and peculiar scheme, we fear, will never be realized to its originator.

NO MORE TROOPS.

The St. Paul Press of the 3d inst mentions the arrival of Senator Ramsey from Washington. Mr. Ramsey made application to the War Department for more troops for frontier defense. Secretary Stanton referred the matter to General Grant, who promised that he would consult with the military authorities of this department, and if any more troops can be used here with advantage he would send them forthwith. We wonder that any doubt could exist as to the necessity or advantage of more troops on our border, unless, such doubt arises from a conviction that the Government is whipped. If the military power of the Government cannot reach and punish these border murderers, how can a few scattered settlers upon the frontier be expected to perform the double task of tilling the soil and defending themselves and families from Indian incursions. It is proposed as a means of safety that each settler shall prosecute his work, holding in one hand his gun and in the other his plow. Let any one who thinks that bands of Indians numbering from five upwards can be overpowered by a single man and a rusty shot gun betake himself to the frontier and try the experiment. The Governor of this State in authorizing the organization of militia forces concedes the necessity of a concentration of the people for their defense, thus repudiating the idea that a single isolated farmer can successfully defend his own home. If the militia of the State can be used with advantage cannot the forces of the United States be used with equal advantage, and if not why not. We are daily awaiting the result of Gen. Grant's consultation with the authorities of this department, but the delay begins to confirm the fear that the Government is about to confess its inability to give its citizens protection.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

The citizens of St. Paul have issued a call for a meeting to take some measures to establish a Soldiers' Home in that city for the benefit of our returning veterans. The object, which certainly commends itself to the public, is to secure a temporary resting place and food for transient soldiers who are on their return home. A committee was appointed consisting of Isaac Markley, J. H. Stewart, M. B. Patterson, J. P. Pond and R. H. Fitz, who were instructed to collect funds and secure a building suitable for that purpose. They expect to secure rooms in Mackubin's block, and have the institution in running order in a few days. St. Paul is certainly deserving of great credit for her efforts in this mission of benevolence as well as for the many banquets and ovations which followed, in swift succession, when re-enlisted veterans were visiting their homes.

REVOKED.

The order for mustering out the Minnesota troops has been revoked on the ground that their terms of enlistment will not expire previous to Oct 1st. This order included the 6th 7th 8th 9th and 10th regiments who were not mustered in until several months after the date of their enlistments. The War Department decides that their term expires three years from the date of muster and not from the date of enlistment. Gov. Miller is making an effort to have this decision revoked.

HOSTILE SIOUX.

A correspondent of the St Paul Press writing from Fort Abercrombie says there are about 3,300 lodges of hostile Sioux assembled at Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain. A number of tribes have banded together and it is presumed their point of attack will be that Fort. The correspondent remarks, however, that there is a military movement on foot which will soon make the fur fly among the red devils.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

LAYING TRACK.—The Minnesota Central Company have a large force engaged in laying down the track of their road south from Mendota. About three-quarters of a mile is put down per day. Work on the Minnesota Bridge has been resumed, and it is said that it can be so far completed in two months as to admit of trains passing over it. Thus it will be seen that the "Central" is certain of being completed from Minneapolis to Faribault within a period of four months. Within the past week large quantities of rail for the road, and castings for the Bridge, have been landed at Mendota, while daily accessions are made thereto.—Atlas May 31

GOOD.—Our sheep growers report that their flocks have passed the winter months in fine condition, and that the number and quality of the lambs is unusually encouraging. We suppose this success ought to allay all apprehensions in regard to the feasibility of raising sheep in Minnesota. Wool growing is speedily destined to become the great business of the State, unless "striking ile" should eclipse it.—Atlas May 31.

Sergeant Hoback, Corporal Williams, and ten men of Capt Davy's Company, 2d Cavalry, took military possession of this city last week. The terms of capitulation were that they guarantee us against farther interruptions from moccasin tracks.—Blue Earth Advocate.

From the Red Wing Republican:

Destructive Fire in Red Wing.

Wednesday evening between eight and nine o'clock, this community were alarmed by the cry of fire, which proved to be in Daniels, Howe, & Co's saw mill. In ten minutes after the fire was first discovered half the city were on the ground, but the fire spread with such wonderful rapidity that it was impossible to save the building or even the most trifling thing that was in it. The building is a total loss.

The mill was worth propably $15,000, and is a total loss, not having been insured.

The upper story of the mill was occupied by Mr. R. O. Sprake as a manufactory of sash, doors and blinds. He had about $1,000 worth of excellent machinery and a large amount of stock made up, all of which is lost. His entire loss is about $1,500.

The fire was so furious that it communicated with a wood pile on the opposite side of the river, and it was only with great exertion that it was saved.

The health of Gen. Winfield Scott is so improved as to enable him to ride and walk in moderation, The old hero visited the Surrogate's office, in New York, on Wednesday last, with reference to the estate of his late wife, who died some time ago in Italy.

A communication was received on Monday at the General Land Office, from the Surveyor General of Kansas, covering a contract ordered for the survey of lands on the direct route from Sioux City to Montana and Idaho, and the opening of a road on the route.

The trial of conspirators closes this week. Hon. Reverdy Johnson has prepared a long protest, denying the jurisdiction of the militay commission to try the accused.

President Johnson has finally decided to allow the soldiers to retain their arms, as honorable heir-looms of their services, but as there is no law authorizing him to give them to the soldiers they can only retain them by paying for them.

The Richmond bapers complain of want of proper support, among the people of that city, of Gov. Pierpont's administration. The people, however, allege that the new constitution disfranchises almost all of them.

The Times' special says Longstreet's business in Washington is to make special application to the President for pardon and restoration to full civil rights. He has already taken the amnesty oath.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Tribune,s Washington special says, Gen. Walter H. Taylor, Gen. Lee's Adjutant General, and Gen. W. J. Moore, have been summoned to appear before the U. S. District Court at 10 o'clock this morning, with the view of testifying against Gen. R. E. Lee and other prominent rebel officials on a charge of treason.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Herald's special says the arrival of Jeff. Davis was prematurely announced. He was sent from Fortress Monroe on the monitor Saugus, which got aground eighteen miles below this city. He was then transferred to the torpedo boat Chico, and has arrived up here in her. It is understood that quarters have been prepared for him in the Old Capitol, and that a suitable guard will be furnished to ensure his safe keeping.

Gen. Thomas had a long interview with the President. It is not known as yet when he will proceed to Richmond to assume command of the Department of Virginia, but it will probably be within a few days.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The World's special says Mr. Chas. O'Connor has applied to the War Department for permission to tender to Jeff. Davis his professional services, in case he is arraigned upon the indictment found in the District of Columbia, and the President has directed that Mr. O'Connor's application be granted, to the end that the constitutional provision which secures to accused persons the assistance of counsel, may be respected.

Gen. Slocum's army has left South Carolina. Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, they will not leave until rolls are prepared and the veterans mustered out, when they will proceed West.

Capt. A. M. Vandyke, Adjt. Gen. of the armies of the Tennessee, left here to-night to establish Gen. Logan's headquarters in Nashville.

The Post's Washington special says the trial of Jeff Davis in the United States Court, in this city, will take place before a full bench consisting of Judge Carter of the District of Columbia, Judge Olin of New York and Judge Wylie of Virginia.

The delegation from Alabama are receiving very little countenance here.

The President will not consent to a call of the rebel legislature of that State.

The Commercial's special says the returning volunteers are to be paid up to the date of their arrival at their respective State rendezvous, where they are to be mustered out.

The Herald's Raleigh correspondent says ex-Gov. Smith of Virginia, is roaming in the woods, determine to fight it out "if it takes all summer."

He has a body guard of guerillas with him.

John Minor Botts has been invited to Richmond by Gov. Pierpont.

It appears that a large number of Moseby's men are still at large in Virginia.

A Visit to South Carolina Planters.

NEW YORK, June 3.

The Charleston Courier of May 31st, says Ensign C. C. Neil, who left here last week for the purpose of visiting the planters on the Cooper river, and enlightening them as to the orders of Gen. Hatch concerning freedmen, returned to this city last evening. He called upon the various planters in St. Thomas and St. Denis parishes, and found them cheerful and willing to do all in their power to promote the interests of the common country. Their great annoyances are the depredation committed by roving bands of idle and dissolute people, the majority of whom are colored. They are eager to obtain a supply of field and farming implements, and are also in want of horses, mules and wagons. Large crops are not looked for this season.

The planters received Ensign Neil and his associates with the utmost civility, and spread before them the best that their houses contained. In their conversation they admitted the total failure of the rebellion and expressed themselves solicitous to restore harmony and have Union again prevail.

NEW YORK, June 5.

The steamer Havana brings Havana dates of the 30th ult.

Advices from Galveston by blockade runner Lark, of the 20th, states that great confusion and anarchy reigned in that city and Houston.

The Lark was robbed of her cargo taken there, and returned to Havana in ballast.

Gen. Magruder attempted a speech to his soldiers, but was hissed and silenced, He was told they had been humbugged enough, and intended to settle affairs for themselves. Magruder returned to San Antonio.

The Texans would fight no longer, and wished to return to the Union.

The Mayor and principal citizens had left Galveston to meet Federal officers and hurry up the surrender. It is also said Murray and Ashabel Smith had gone to New Orleans to surrender up the State.

The famous blockade runner Denbigh, has at last been destroyed by a Federal gungoat. The Captain and crew escaped.

The Owl has returned to Havana, fearing robbery at Galveston.

Mexican dates of the 28th state that guerrillas are as thick as ever. Negrete was at Monterey with 5.000 troops, on the 2d of May, and the French troops were moving against the place.

The United States steamer Susquehannah, the monitors Monadnock and Canonicus, and the gunboats Chippewa. Fayette, Monticello and Wanderer have arrived at Havana, causing a great sensation.

General Headquarters, State of Minnesota.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
ST. PAUL, MINN, June 5, 1865

The attention of discharged officers and soldiers is called to an act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1865, of which Section IV. reads as follows:

"And be it further enacted, That every non commissioned officer, private, or other person, who has been, or shall hereafter be, discharged from the army of the United States, by reason of wounds received in battle, or skirmish, on picket, or in action, or in the line of duty, shall be entitled to receive the same bounty as if he had served out his full term; and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this, are hereby repealed."

All soldiers who have been, or may hereafter be, discharged the service, on account of wounds, and only receive the instalments of bounty that had become due at the date of their discharge, can collect the balance remaining unpaid, by making the proper application through this office, where these as well as other claims for back pay, bounty, and pensions for discharged soldiers, as well as for their heirs, are attended to, free of all charges to the applicants.

Adjutant General and State Claim Agent for Minnesota.

Drowned or Escaped.

Some little time since a desperado named Wm. Godbois was arrested in Scott county for burglary. He managed to break jail and fled, but Sheriff Cressy pursued him by telegraph, and he was recaptured in Wisconsin. Securing a requisition from Gov. Miller, the sheriff proceeded to Wisconsin, secured his bird and took passage on the Northern Belle at La Crosse for this city. About nine o'clock Saturday evening, when the boat was five miles this side of Hastings the Sheriff removed the rascal's handcuffs in order to allow him to remove his coat previous to going to bed. No sooner were the handcuffs removed than Godbois broke away from the officer and running to the guards of the boat sprang overboard. As soon as possible the boat was stopped and a yawl launched to search for him, but in the darkness no traces could be found. It is thought he must have been struck by the wheel and killed, though it is possible that he reached the shore in safety. Sheriff Cressy, of Shakopee, Scott county, will liberally reward any one for information concerning him.—Press June 6th,

The Expedition to Texas.

FORT MONROE, June 1.

The Texas expedition, under command of Gen. Weitzel which has been fitting out in this harbor during the past week is now fairly on its way to its destination somewhere on the coast of that State. Preparatory to its sailing, orders were issued to the commanding officer on board each vessel to proceed first to Mobile Bay, in the vicinity of Forts Morgan and Gains, with a view of making a rendezvous at the harbor in order to coal the steamers and thoroughly clean them before proceeding farther southward. The steamers composing this expedition fleet are among the largest and best adapted to a long sea voyage of any known.

News From Alabama

NEW YORK June 3.—The Tribune correspondent, writing from Montgomery, Ala. details the march of the 1st division of the 16th corps from Blakely, opposite Mobile, to that place. They passed through a part of the country not visited by a Union army, and the people were greatly excited and terrified. The wealthy planters tried to hide their stock and supplies in vain. Mules and loads of bacon were dragged out of the swamps and hiding places to replenish our scant commissary.

The negroes hailed us as their deliverers, and the number that followed us to Montgomery is estimated at 5,000. One old man, seventy five years old, born in the North a free man, had been kidnapped at the age of fifteen years, and been held in slavery sixty years.

He was determined--this being his first opportunity--to regain his freedom.

On one of the plantations an overseer shot and killed one negro and wounded another, for not hastening to work after looking at some of our soldiers passing.

The overseer's house was burned down after stripping his family. He succeeded in making his escape.

The negroes are enlisting rapidly.

The people of Montgomery are very sullen, not relishing their being subjugated.

The Secretary of War has ordered that the returned prisoners enlisted, and who have endured the hardships of Andersonville and other rebel prisons, be musterd out as soon as possible, and that they be allowed three months extra pay.

A gentleman who called on General Scott in New York the other day found him in excellent health and much rejoiced at the successful termination of the war. The conversation turning on Jeff. Davis, the old General very pointedly and emphatically remarked, "I hope he will be hung by the neck, sir; I hope he will be hung by the neck."

The Herald's special says that Congressman Harris, of Maryland, tried for persuading rebel soldiers not to take the oath of allegiance, was sentenced to three years imprisonment and forfeiture of all political rights. The President has approved the finding, but remitted the sentence.

The President is about to issue a proclamation announcing the restoration of peace, and will also shortly abolish all military tribunals.

The President has commuted the sentence of Bowles, Milligan and Horsey, (who were sentenced by a military commission to be hung,) to imprisonment for life.

The trial of Chief Justice Bullit, of Kentucky, has terminated in a recommendation to the Governor for his removal.

The Tribune's special says in the Department of the Interior several clerks whose sympathies have been with the rebels have received their dismissals.

Gen. Washburne relinquished his command of the District of West Tennessee on the 29th ult. Gen. John E. Smith succeeds him.

The Post's Washington Special says it has been computed that the number of troops to be mustered out during June will exceed 120,000.

— CHAS. H. SLOCUM, Esq., late proprietor of the UNION, will, until further notice, remain in charge of its mechanical department, and may be found at the office during business hours. Subscriptions unpaid will be collected by him to the 1st of June, 1865. He will be happy to receipt for the same at the earliest convenience of those who have favored him with their patronage.

ARRIVED.—To us the most important local item of the week is that we have "come to town," bag and baggage, wife and baby, by hack besmeared with dust, and beleagured by sixteen passengers, two or three pretty fair stocks of dry goods and groceries, express goods, band boxes, mosquitos, etc., which arrived in town by due course of mail early on the morning of the 5th inst. As strangers are of necessity compelled to introduce themselves, we know of no better way of performing this disagreeable task than by referring our readers to the foot of the first article on the second page. We wish the people of Mankato and our worthy cotemporary "up the creek" to consider our card received, and that we are entitled to a call which we shall be happy to receive at the UNION office during business hours.

INDEPENDENCE.—Time flies so swiftly that probably few realize the fact that the 4th day of July is near at hand. Doubtless the citizens of Mankato and vicinity are this year a unit upon the subject of celebrating, with imposing demonstration, the birth-day of our Republic. If there ever was a time in the annals of American history when patriotic joy and pride should be allowed public expression, it is in this our year of jubilee and on the 4th day of July next. Events of endless magnitude have so far crowned the year of 1865, and the middle of the year finds us emerged from the perils of revolution and quietly enjoying peace and the blessings of a strong and united government. It will be unnecessary for us to do more than to suggest that a meeting of our citizens be held soon to give form to the proposed [illegible]

JUSTICE COURT.—On Monday, of this week, Richard Fairchild, of Garden City, was brought before Justice Hoerr, charged with committing an assault and battery upon M. T. C. Flower, some weeks since. The prosecution was conducted by S. F. Barney, and prosecuting attorney Freeman. The defence was managed by J. A. Wiswell. A jury trial was waived, and after quite a long time spent in adducing testimony, the Justice fined the defendant five dollars and costs, which he paid, and went on his way rejoicing.

HEINZE'S VARIETY STORE.—Charlie Heinze has made many improvements in his establishment in the last six months, and now keeps on hand a stock of notions, in connection with his bakery and groceries, that is well worth inspection. He has recently purchased one of Holyland's improved cracker machines, and now turns out a quality of crackers equal to any made in the State. Charlie is bound to succeed.

MACHINE AND REPAIR SHOP.—We call attention to the card of Messrs. Bœgen Brothers which will be found in another column. They have fitted up their shop with a view to repairing threshing machines, reapers, mowers, sugar cane mills, and all work of that kind. They are prepared to do turning in iron or wood to order. We are in favor of encouraging home enterprises, and advise our friends to patronize them whenever possible.

THE warm weather of the past few days, has been a gentle reminder to doff our woolen clothes for something cooler. To those not supplied with summer hats, linen coats and dusters, linen, light cassimere or cottonade pants, silk and marseilles vests, we would say now is your time to procure the same by calling at Randall & Smith's Clothing Emporium, where may be found anything in the way of mens' or boys' wear at very reasonable prices.

STATIONARY.—Lieut. Wickersham has received his large stock of stationery embracing letter, note, legal and foolscap, and several styles of envelopes. Also, ladies' gilt edge note paper of an excellent quality. Jason knows how to keep pace with the wants of the people, and is never behind the times in the price or quality of his goods.

OUR friend Taylor has opened his stock of groceries, and is prepared to weigh out tea, coffee, and all articles in his line, with pleasure, and guarantees to sell them at prices lower than they can be purchased elsewhere in town.

WHITE & MARKS have a few more goods left upon their shelves, which customers can purshase at very low figures. Their trade this year has been better than ever before, and the reason is they bought their stock at "panic prices," and can afford to sell lower than any other store in town.

A NEW STOCK.—Leo Lamm, in lower town, has just received a new stock of boots, shoes, leather and findings, of a good quality, to which he calls the attention of his many friends and patrons. He guarantees to sell a good article lower than can be purchased elsewhere in town.

MCCORMICK'S REAPER.—Mr. Hall advertises that he will soon receive a supply of these celebrated reapers. An improvement has been made upon them since last season, and farmers will consult their interests by purchasing of him. Mr. Stine is now canvassing this and adjoining counties, and will fill orders for these machines.

NAVIGATION.—The river is now so low that navigation above St. Peter has been suspended except, perhaps, by flat boats which continue to some extent the freighting business. Passengers are accommodated by Burbank and Co's stages and no detention is experienced.

A SHOWER—Mankato was visited by a refreshing shower on the morning of the 6th inst. She was more fortunate than other river towns as hardly a drop of rain fell east of St. Peter on the same day. The indications are that we shall soon be the recipients of more of that desirable element.

FLOURING MILL AT GARDEN CITY—We are informed that H. C. Capwell Esq., of Garden City, has got his flouring mill so far completed as to be able to do custom work. The flour turned out is of a superior quality.

Our old friend Lieut. Quayle has charge of the milling debartment. He is an excellent miller and has a good reputation for dealing fairly by all.

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

"Morse's Eye Balm" is an excellent remedy for sore and inflamed eyes, and can be purchased of Lewis & Frisbie. It costs only twenty-five cents.

THE Methodist Mite Society will meet in City Hall next Wednesday evening at the usual hour. All are cordially invited to attend.

THE PACIFIC MONTHLY.—We are assured that the demand for this new monthly magazine is unprecedented, owing principally to the fact that every subscriber obtains an excellent work, well worth the price of subscription, and at the same time receives an article of Jewelry as a present, worth from five to ten dollars—compared with the prices of such articles in retail stores. The subscription list to the Pacific Monthly is becoming immense, attributable to the enterprise and liberality displayed by its proprietors. Send in your orders for the Monthly early, and secure the numbers complete for the year, which make, when bound, two handsome volumes.

MARRIED.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHFARE is again open for
Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route ronte by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

AN Illustrated Catalogue, containing full description of style, and testimonials of the most eminent Musicians, as to the superior excellence of our instruments—will be sent free to any address.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an apperdage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

GEO. A. PRINCE & CO.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A PRINCE & Co." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

GROVESTEEN & CO.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS,
499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over-Strung Bass, &c., and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr, J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philladephia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successiv years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware-room

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition,

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,

Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,
☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.
☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
AND
IMPROVED ROSE WASH
Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether
EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,
From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the Blood. Such a remedy that could be relied upon has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of [illegible] certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHFARE is again open for

Freights and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

Mankato, July 15, 1864

Editor of Mankato Union:

DEAR SIR:—With your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send by return mail, to all who wish it (free) a recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple vegetable balm that will effectually remove, in ten days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles, and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads, or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxuriant Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than thirty days. All applications answered by return mail without charge,

Respectfully yours,
THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,

GROVESTEEN & CO.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS,
499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over Strung Bass, &c., and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr. J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successiv years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware room

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition,

PRICES—No. 1, Seven Octave, round corners, Rosewood plain case, $275.
No. 2, Seven Octave, round corners, Rosewood heavy moulding, $300.
No. 3, 7 Octave, round corners, Rosewood Louis XIV style $325, a fac simile of the above cut.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are fault, palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the Poetry.

American Slavery—The Prophecy.

BY MRS. HENRIETTA WELLINGTON BOOTH.

[The following lines were written in Europe twenty years ago in answer to a slave owner's family, who invited the authoress to travel in the Southern States. They were first published many years ago. The lines were indeed prophetic:]

You tell me of a bright land far over the sea,
But, ah! can you call it the land of the free?
Where the image of God, for a handful of gold,
Like a beast of the field, in the market is sold,
Where the child from the mother's fond bosom is torn—
Where the father is chained, leaving orphans forlorn—
Where the maiden is bartered, like merchandise ware,
Then doomed to the lash, and groans of despair!

Woe! woe to thee, fair land! far o'er the main,
For the canker of death—dark slavery's stain,
Shall know to thy vitals, while every sigh,
From the victims who writhe, mounts for justice on high.
And He, the great Lord of the universe wide,
Shall smite thee to earth in thy strength and thy pride;
For vengeance must fall for foul cruelties done
On the beings redeemed by His own beloved Son!

The sound of the war drum shall thrill thee at night,
As thy sons and thy brothers are borne to the fight;
The slave and the cotton shall stab thee with pain,
And the North and the South be divided in twain,
And brother 'gainst brother shall strike in the fight.
And battles be fought in the dead of the night;
And the white maid and widow in sorrow shall mourn,
And the flags of thy freedom in tatters be torn.

* * * * * * * *

The North in her might like a whirlwind shall rise,
And the notes of the cannon be borne to the skies;
And though the warm blood of her heroes be shed,
The light of her freedom shall never be dead;
The Stars and the Stripes an Excelsior shall be,
Proud Liberty's banner from land and by sea;
And the Union, though spurned by the slaveholder's scorn,
Shall be guarded by Northmen for ages unborn.

Select Miscellany.

WHEAT OR TARES.

"Wheat or tares, which are you sowing, Fanny dear, in the mind of this little fellow?" said uncle Lincoln to his niece, Mrs. Howard, and he lifted a child not beyond his fourth summer, upon his knee and laid one of his hands amid the golden curls that fell upon his neck, and clustered about his snowy temples.

"Wheat, I trust, uncle Lincoln," replied Mrs. Howard, smiling, yet serious. "It is the enemy who sow tares—and I am his mother."

There was a glow of proud feeling in the countenance of Mrs. Howard, as she said "I am his mother."

It was Mr. Lincoln's first visit to his niece since her marriage and removal to a city some hundred miles away from the old home.

"Even a mother's hand may sow tares," said the old gentleman. "I have seen it done many times. Not of design but in thoughtless inattention to the quality of the seed she held in her hand. The enemy mixes tares with the wheat quite as often as he scatters evil seed. The husbandman must not only watch his fields by night and day, but also the repositories of the ground lest the enemy cause him to sow tare as well as wheat, upon his own fruitful ground.

"Willie," said Mrs. Howard, speaking to her little boy, about ten minutes afterwards, "don't upset my work basket. Stop, I say! you little rogue!"

Seeing that the wayward child did not heed her words, the mother started forward, but not in time to prevent the spools of cotton, scissors, emery cushion, etc., from being scattered about the floor.

Willie laughed in great glee at this exploit, while Mrs. Howard gathered up the contents of the work-basket, which she now placed on the shelf above the reach of her mischievous boy. Then she shook her finger at him with mock resentment, saying,

"You little sinner! If you do that again, I'll send you off with the milkman."

"Wheat or tares, Fanny?" Uncle Lincoln looked soberly at his niece.

"Neither," replied Mrs. Howard, smiling gaily.

"Tares," said uncle Lincoln, emphatically.

"Nonsense, uncle."

"The tares of disobedience, Fanny. You have planted the seed, and it has taken root. The tares of falsehood you always throw in the broken soil. What are you thinking about, my child?"

"The tares of falsehood, uncle Lincoln! What are you thinking about?" said Mrs. Howard, in real surprise.

"Did you not say that you would send him off with the milkman if he did that again? I wonder if he believed you?"

"Of course he did not"

"Then, said uncle Lincoln, "he has already discovered that his mother makes but light account of truth. Will his mother be surprised if he should grow up to set a small value on his word?"

"You treat this matter too seriously, uncle. He knows that I am only playing with him."

"He knows that you are telling him that which is not true," replied Mr. Lincoln.

"It was only in sport, said Fanny, persistently.

"But in sport with sharp-edged instruments playing with deadly poisons." The old gentleman looked and spoke with the seriousness that oppressed his feelings.

"Fanny! Fanny! Truth and obedience are good seeds; falsehood and disobedience are tares from the Evil One. Whatever you plant in the garden of your child will grow, and the harvest will be wheat or tares, just as you have sown."

Mrs. Howard did not reply, but her countenance took on a sober cast.

"Willie," said she, a few moments afterwards, "go down to Jane and tell her to bring me a glass of water."

Willie, who was amusing himself with some pictures, looked up on hearing his name. But as he did not feel like going off to the kitchen, he made no response, and let his eyes turn to the pictures in which he had become interested.

"Willie?" Mrs. Howard spoke with decision, "did you hear me?"

"I don't want to go," answered Willie.

"Go this minute."

"I am afraid."

"Afraid of what?" inquired the mother.

"Afraid of the cat."

"No you are not. The cat never hurt you or anybody else."

"I am afraid of the milkman. You said he would carry me off."

"The milkman is not down stairs," said Mrs. Howard, her face beginning to crimson; he only comes in the morning."

"Yes, he is. I heard his wagon a little while ago, and he's now talking with Jane now. Don't you hear him?" said the little fellow with remarkable skill, having all the resemblance of truth in his tone and expression.

Mrs. Howard did not look towards her uncle; she was afaid to do that.

"Willie," the mother spoke very seriously, "you know the milkman is not down stairs, and you know that you are not afraid of the cat. What you have said therefore is not true; and it is wicked to utter a falsehood."

"Ho! ho!" laughed out the bright eyed little fellow, evidently amused at his own sharpness, "then you are wicked, for you say that which is not true every day."

"Willie!"

"The milkman has not carried me off yet."

There was a world of meaning in Willie's face and voice.

"You haven't whipped me for throwing my cap out of the window."

"Willie!" ejaculated the astonished mother.

"D'ye see that?" and the young rebel drew from his apron pocket a fine mosaic breast pin, which he had positively been forbidden to touch, and held it up with a mingled look of triumph and defiance.

"You little wretch!" exclaimed Mrs. Howard. "this is going too far."

And springing towards her boy, she grappled him in her arms and fled with her struggling burden from the room.

It was a quarter of an hour later before she returned, alone, to the apartment where she had left her uncle. Her face was sober, and her eyes betrayed recent tears.

'Wheat or tares, Fanny?' said the old gentleman, in kind and earnest tones as his niece came back.

'Tares,' was the half mournful response.

'Wheat were better, Fanny.'

'I see it, uncle.'

'And you will look well in the future to the seed in your hand, ere you scatter it upon the heart of your child.'

'God helping, I will, dear uncle.'

'Remember, Fanny,' said Mr. Lincoln 'that truth and obedience are good seed. Plant them and the harvest will come in blessings.'

What Shall be Done with Jeff. Davis?

From the New York Times.—

We are going to hang the murderer of Harry Lazarus, a week from next Friday. Why? A young varlet born haply, of a rag picker in a back attic of Cow Bay, his swaddling clothes a ragged dish clout, suckled in adulterated gin, weaned over an apple-stall, his first lessons the choicest phraseology of blasphemy and obscenity, knowing nothing that he has a soul, and witless of all distinction between himself and the street curs, save that the dogs bit him and he kicked the dogs, well grounded for his early years in picking and stealing, a pupil of Jack Sheppard at the Bowery Theater, and in due course removed to the Benicia Boy's Finishing School—for aught we know Bernard Friery was guilty of all that, and now having brought his villainy to a climax by getting "drunk as a lord," and idiotically killing the first man he ran against, the law has decided that it is high time he should be put out of the way, and this it is going to do. But, go to now; don't touch a hair of Jefferson Davis.

True, he spent long years in hatching treason against his country. True, he has spilled the heart's blood of four hundred thousand good and true men, who now lie stiff and stark under the sod.

True, he has starved to death sixty thousand of our sons and brothers, with an accumulation of torment that beggars all that Dante ever wrote of hell. But Mr. Davis is a gentleman. He fed on pap when a child. He went to West Point when a youth. He was sent to Congress when a man. He sat on velvet in Washington when revolving parricide. He walked on velvet in Richmond when murdering his myriads.

As for hemp, therefore—vulgar hemp—don't speak of it in connection with Mr. Jefferson Davis.

The crime of Jeff. Davis admits of no extenuation. He was the prime mover of the rebellion. Without him, probably, it would never have taken an organized form at all. He was the head and front of the conspiracy that "precipitated the South into revolution," and he has ever since been the head and front of the Confederacy that has battled against the Government. The responsibility for this colossal treason primarily attaches to him as principal.

Whatever may be done to his accomplices, or to the accessories after the fact, he at least should suffer the extreme penalty of the law. But there is a reason even beyond the fact that he is the arch-traitor. Jeff Davis is directly responsible for the starving of our prisoners. This infernal work was carried out in pursuance of a plan deliberately settled upon by him as Commander in-Chief of the Confederate armies. It was not only a violation of the rules of war, but was a barbarity that was never before conceived of within the pale of human civilization. No educated man, who had not the spirit of a fiend, could have been capable of it. Nena Sahib, the leader of the East India insurrection, is called a monster of the human species for suffering the Cawnpore massacre. But what was this butchery in hot blood of three or four hundred, in comparison with the cold-blooded murder, by slow starvation, of forty thousand, perpetrated under the leader of the American rebellion?

Out upon magnanimity toward such a wretch. There are provocations., as we have read, at which "the soul of every God created man flames wholly into one divine blaze of sacred wrath." Of such provocations never were there greater than the acts of Jeff. Davis. To endeavor to save him from retributive justice is to outrage every enlightened sentiment, every unperverted instinct. It is to undermine every sanction of human law, to sap every conservative principle of human government. There is no one thing which threatens such evils to our liberties as this substitution of mawkish sympathy for the virtuous indignation which foul guilt ought to excite. A shallow philanthropism has been growing rife which has already cankered the moral sense of the nation not a little.

The old Achillean wrath against untrue men, the grim old Puritanic intolerance of the workers of iniquity, has been giving place to a sentimentality as impotent as it is passionless.

THE SOUTH CONQUERED AT LAST.

Serious Objections of the South Carolina Chivalry to Standing Armies in their Midst.

From the Columbia (S. C.) Phœnix, May 18.

There is no good pretext for our conquerors keeping up any longer the shows and exercises of war in our country. On the part of the people of this State, and of every Southern State this side of the Mississippi, all struggle has ceased. There are no embodied parties anywhere making the slightest show of resistance. Our armies have been thrown down. We have neither arms nor munitions of war. No banner of the confederacy now floats the sky. No commanders call upon troops either for flight or fight. The soldiers, in scattered groups footsore, weary, in rags, and without money, are wending their weary ways homeward to homes in ashes, doubtful of their future bread, and certainly without heart or hope in any prolongation of war or renewal of struggle. In this condition of things—a condition which is patent to all eyes, and can be questioned by none—the distribution of armed garrisons among the people throughout the country, and from the sea board to the mountains, seems to be wholly without use, pretext or necessity, and may possibly lead to mischief. The country, in the first place, is in no condition to feed its own people, and we know too well the characteristics of all soldiers quartered among a conquered people to suppose that they will forbear to lay hands upon all they can find, without considering the difference between the meum et teum—the mine and thine. A rude soldier—an arrogant, overbearing captain or lieutenant—may goad, by his persecutions, the most quiet people into phrenzy, and lead to acts of desperation which will then be construed into acts of war and rebellion, and bring punishment on the heads of the innocent and unoffending.

We need hardly call upon our people to submit patiently—retire to their several homes—succumb to a fortune against which they have been unable to contend, and seek to achieve the ends of life in the obscurities of a private and purely domestic condition. They wish only the privilege to do this. Let them work at their own grounds if allowed to do so, content to rear cabbage and potatoes, and forbear all considerations of polities, nor ask again what is doing in Congress, nor care to know who is in power, or who shall win the present plaudits of Demus. Let the farmer substitute the potatoe-making for the President-making interest, and the craftsman attend to his workbench. "Ne sutor ultra crepidam," will prove a saving rule for those who have vainly striven to save themselves by quitting the last, the saw, the anvil and the hoe. Briefly, let them humble themselves to a state which the will of God seems to have decreed as fitting their deserts. In this humility they may propably deserve a more gracious countenance in future from that great Dispenser of judgement who rules the world now, however, invisible and inscrutable, even as he did six thousand years ago.

CONGRATULATORY ORDER!

The Lieut. General to the United States Armies.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Gen. Grant has issued the following congratulatory address to the armies:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT GEN. OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.
General Order No. 108.

Soldiers of the Armies of the United States, by your patriotic devotion to your country in the hour of danger and alarm, your magnificent fighting, bravery and endurance, you have attained the supremacy of the Union and constitution, overthrown armed opposition to the enforcement of the laws and of the proclamations forever abolishing slavery, the cause and pretext of the rebellion, and opened the way for the rightful authorities to restore order and inaugurate peace on a permanent and enduring basis on every foot of American soil. Your marches, seiges and battles, in distance, duration, resolution and brilliancy of results, dim the lustre of the world's past military achievements and will be the patriots precedent in the defense of liberty and right in all time to come.

In obedience to your country's call you have left your homes and firesides, and volunteered in its defence. Victory has crowned your valor and secured the purposes of your patriotic hearts, and with the gratitude of your countrymen and the highest honors a great and free people can accord, you will soon be permitted to return to your homes and families conscious of having discharged the highest duty of the American citizen.

To achieve these glorious triumphs and secure to ourselves, your fellow countrymen, and posterity the blessing of free institutions, tens of thousands of your gallant comrades have fallen and sealed the priceless legacy with their lives. Their graves a grateful nation bedews with tears, honor their memories and will ever cherish and support their stricken families.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT,
Lieut. General.

Let us Pay off the National Debt.

The idea, first suggested by the Herald, of immediately paying off the national debt by private subscriptions of $20,000 each, is peculiarly an American idea. No other people would have dared even to contemplate such a stupendous movement. And it has been gallantly led off by Commodore Vanderbilt with an initial subscription of five hundred thousand dollars. Several other gentlemen have also put down their names for one or more shares of $20,000 each; and the chances are that within a short time the sums subscribed will count by hundreds of millions. That's the way to do it. Let us pay off the national debt at once, in the off-hand, American style, and not have it dragging along, with its burdens and annoyances of taxation, for generations and centuries to come, after the old-fogy, European, pauper fashion. Let everybody who can even contribute a dollar towards it, give that sum if no more; for we do not believe in confining the enjoyment of such a patriotic luxury to the twenty-thousand-dollar men. The people—the great, enlightened, noble-hearted, generous, patriotic, American people—will want, and will have, a hand in this most magnificent movement of all the ages. Let us all take hold of it, then, in the true democratic spirit. The Ledger will do its share.—N. Y. Ledger

It is easy for an undecided man to become a dishonest one. Innocence departs with childhood, and leaves man to battle for the attainment of virtue, or surrender to the temptations of vice.

He cannot stand still, for the world presses in upon him from the one side or the other. If he be a man of decision and virtuous motives, he will be an honest man, and we know where to find him; if a man of decision and vicious motives, he will be a dishonest man, and we know where to find him also. But if he be a man of indecision we know not where to find him. To-day he hovers about the armies of virtue, and perhaps stands bravely for awhile; to-morrow he deserts to the ranks of vice, a traitor to his manhood. Even the honesty of a man, who may possess a character which is in the main strongly disposed to virtue, is to be trusted with great caution, if from a lack of decision we find him vacillating in the midst of conflicting influences.

DR. BLACKBURN.—The Montreal Gazette, which all along has scouted the idea that Dr. Blackburn was guilty of being engaged in Bermuda in a plan to import to the United States clothing infected with yellow fever and small pox now admits his guilt, and says it was an evil hour for Dr. B. which led him to commit so foul a crime.

What makes the crime of this man still more infernal, is the fact that when he left Canada to go to Bermuda, on his hellish plot, he went as a philanthropist in the cause of humanity, to investigate the yellow fever, and to give the physicians there the benefit of his great experience at New Orleans, in that disease The British Vice Admiral sent the Doctor a letter of thanks for his "humane services," and as a testimony of appreciation, the Lords of the Admiralty presented him with one hundred pounds.

THE first applicant for pardon under the President's amnesty proclamation is General Longstreet. He has been a very great sinner, but claims to have experienced a change of heart.

THE STAMMERING WIFE.

BY JOHN G SAXE

I.

When, deeply in love with Miss Emily Pryne,
I vowed, if the maiden would only be mine,
I would always endeavor to please her.—
She blushed her consent, tho' the stuttering lass,
Said never a word, except, "You're an ass—
An ass—an ass-iduous teaser!"

II.

But when we were married, I found to my ruth
The stammering lady had spoken the truth,
For often, in obvious dudgeon,
She'd say,—if I ventured to give her a jog,
In the way of reproof.—"You're a dog—you're
A dog—a dog-matic curmudgeon!"

III.

And once when I said, "We can hardly afford
This extravagant style, with our moderate hoard,
And hinted we ought to be wiser.
She looked, I assure you, exceedingly blue,
And fretfully cried, "You're a Jew—you're a Jew—
A very ju-dicious adviser!"

IV.

Again, when it happened that, wishing to shirk
Some rather unpleasant and arduous work,
I begged her to go to a neighbor,
She wanted to know why I made such a fuss,
And saucily said, "You're a cus—cus—cus—
You were always ac cus-tomed to labor!"

V

Out of temper at last with the insolent dame,
And feeling that Madam was greatly to blame
To scold me instead of caressing,
I mimicked her speech—like a churl as I am—
And angrily said, "You're a dam—dam—dam
A dam-age instead of a blessing!"

News and Other Paragraphs.

A WASHINGTON special says that Jeff. Davis was placed in irons for three days because he abused the guard and their officers, and threw his food at them, and otherwise acted abruptly. He objected to being placed in irons, and asked that Gen. Halleck might be applied to rescind the order. Owing to his health, he has been furnished something besides ordinary prisoner's fare.

THE Augusta Constitutionalist says: A deplorable state of affairs exists in South Carolina. There is no law save that of might, and citizens are pillaged continually of their property by marauders. An overseer on a plantation near Abbeville, S. C., was murdered by his negroes a few days since. It is said the slave population in that vicinity are becoming quite unruly.

OFFICERS of one of the Richmond banks, while on their way to that place with the assets of the bank, amounting to $400,000, were attacked by robbers near Washington county and robbed of $200,000.

A CORRESPONDENT, speaking of Gen. Sherman, says his pictures are like him, 'if only his whiskers were a little redder and a greater hostility to the War Department thrown into the expression of his face.'

MAJ. GEN. McCOOK has been ordered to New Mexico, where he is assigned to an important position.

HUBERT HOLCOMB, of New Hartford, New York, had lost his voice while serving as a soldier in North Carolina, April 5, 1862, and from that time till last Sunday had not been able to speak a word. Sunday morning a horse kicked him, which injured his feelings so that he could'nt help expressing himself, and since that time he has been able to talk as well as anybody.

A MOST horrible rape is reported as having been commited near Bladensburg Thursday by three drunken officers, involving the death of the victim, a young lady, near that town. The offenders were captured on Friday before a drum head court martial, and sentenced to be shot. Particulars are not learned.

THE earthquake-shock of last week was severely felt in some portions of Illinois. At Elktown, Washington county, all the chimneys were cracked and a good deal of window glass was broken.

REPORTS have been circulated that the rebels swept the State of Virginia in the recent legislative elections. Mr. M. H. Conway writes, in refutation of these rumors, that there has been no general election in the State, but that special elections have been held is some counties, in all of which but one, so far as returns have been received, the Union candidates have been successful.

WHO ARE ENTITLED TO BOUNTIES.—It has been decided by the Second Comptroller of the Treasury that under the act of March 3, 1865, to entitle a soldier to bounty, the wound for which he may be discharged must be a result, or necessary incident of his military service, and that the wound must be received in the line of his duty as a soldier—not in the peaceful occupation of a citizen. The wounds for which bounty is provided must be the consequence of hostilities actually going on at the time.

MRS. PARTINGTON'S LAST.—Isaac was reading to his mother the head lines of one of the telegraphic columns of the Commercial of Tuesday last, and when he came to "Jeff. Davis to be confined at Fort Lafayette," the old lady threw up her hand, exclaiming: "Laws-a me! I knew that he wore petticoats, but I didn't think that would happen to him! Well, well; the Confederacy is com'n' to pieces!" The old lady resumed her reading, and Isaac his knitting.

What Will be Done with Leading Rebels.

It is believed that the further intention of the Government on the amnesty question, as far as it has taken form, is to indict for treason all or most of the persons excepted from the proclamation, and when they are arrested to try them for treason, and on conviction to sentence them severally to be hanged by the neck until dead. It is also proposed to keep a vigilant eye on those embraced in the amnesty who shall make themselves exceptions to it by refusing to take the oath which it prescribes, and when such persons shall become obnoxious and mischievous by their pro-Slaveryism and disloyalty, they will be arrested and tried for treason in a manner similar to the above mentioned class, and like them, sentenced to death. It is believed that when such persistent rebels shall have been indicted, arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to die a felon's death for treason, they will be deprived of all power to make themselves dangerous, even if the President should see fit to pardon the most of them, or remit the penalties against them. A convicted traitor who is at large by favor of Executive clemency, will be a very harmless creature, it is argued, whereas many of the returning rebels are now more pompous and self-complacent than before the war, refusing to speak to old friends who had been Unionists, and in organizing into political factions to resume control of all the Southern States in the name of State Sovereignty and Slavery. These heresies are not yet given up, but they form the nucleus of partizan leagues through the Border States, which are full of danger. They not only vote against the policy of the Administration, but, as in Virginia, combine through three quarters of the State to ignore the Government, and defy and violate the law. The trials and convictions spoken of as included in the prospective policy of the Administration, will take place in the District Courts of the border and Southern States as fast as they are organized. This will probably be their first work, and it will be prosecuted with no feeling of malice or revenge, but solely to vindicate law and restore order in the land. Some of these trials will soon take place in Virginia, where they are much needed, and where the outrageous conduct of the traitors has already convinced most of the clearest-headed men that the return to civil government has been premature.

Admiral Porter's Last.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 18, 1865.

ROBERT BONNER, Esq —Dear Sir: In the Ledger of this week I notice 'Admiral Farragut's Last.' For the benefit of your readers I will give you Admiral Porter's 'last.' While in Baton Rouge not long since, we called upon General Bailey, and in course of our conversation we asked him to give us the particulars of his famous 'dams' with which he saved Admiral Porter's Fleet above the Falls in Red River. He said that he took a letter of credit from General Franklin to the Admiral. He was admitted on the 'Black Hawk,' and almost the first question the Admiral asked was: 'Well, General, how do you purpose to save my Fleet?' 'By a process of damming,' said the General. 'General,' said the Admiral, 'I fully appreciate your motive, but if this Fleet could have been saved by damming, it would have been saved long ago.'

JOHN H. PATTERSON.

COLORED TROOPS FOR TEXAS.—The Petersburg (Va.) Express, of Saturday, says: "The 25th Army Corps, colored, Major General Weitzel commanding, which recently marched through Petersburg, and has since been stationed in the vicinity of City Point, has received orders to embark for Texas. The embarkation has been progressing at the Point for two or three days. As fast as the transports receive their loads they drop out into the river and anchor. Parties from the Point, who witnessed the scene represent it as one of much interest. In a day or two, if they have not already done so, these troops will start for their new destination—the extreme Southern State of the Union.'

THE Birmingham (England) Gazette, asserts that Mrs. Lincoln is a Welch woman. The facts on which this extraordinary assertion is based are thus stated: "It has been ascertained on good authority that Mrs. Lincoln, the wife of the late President, is a native of Monmouthshire. Her maiden name was Jenkins, and her father was for some time sexton of St. Paul's church, Newport. He married a Miss Russell, who was in the employ of Sir Thomas Salisbury, of Lianwern, and the issue of the marriage was two daughters. The family afterwards emigrated to America, and it appears that Mr. Lincoln selected one of them to be his partner in life.'

A CERTAIN eminent lawyer is celebrated at our bar for the following mode of examining a witness: 'Now pray listen to the question I am going to ask you. Be attentive; remember, you will answer as you please; and remember, I don't care a rush what you answer,' &c., &c. One of our Supreme Court judges, somewhat weary of the monotony of his perorations, one day accosted him in the street:—'Ha! is it you, ——? Now pray listen to the question I am going to ask you. Be attentive. Remember you will answer as you please, and remember I don't care a rush what you answer. How are you?'

General Sheridan is said to be as witty as he is brave, and excessively fond of connundrums. One day he astounded the grave and quiet Lieutenant General by asking him why a grape vine is like a soldier. Of course, General Grant couldn't begin to guess. 'Well,' said PHIL, 'it is because it's 'listed and trained. has ten drills (tendrils) and shoots.' The Lieutenant-General gazed fixedly for a time upon his favorite officer, then bowed his head upon his hand, as if in deep thought, and quietly remarked 'You'll do.'

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn. Friday June 16, 1865.

THE DOG QUESTION.

It is a time honored adage that the best of people will differ in opinion, and it is probably equally true that the worst of people will also disagree. To show the unanimity expressed by leading journals of this State in regard to the propriety of employing bloodhounds to assist in the frontier defense, we clip from the St. Paul Press and the Winona Republican. In justification of the course adopted by the frontier settlers, the Press says:

> Experience has proved that ordinary military precautions are of no avail to protect the frontier settlements from the stealthy incursions of small bands of Indians.
> Throughout large districts, men and women have given up all other avocations to sentinel each other against this invisible, skulking foe. It is vain that posts and garrisons are established in their neighborhood. Fifty thousand soldiers planted along our frontier would not relieve the settlers of the universal feeling of insecurity, arising from the peculiar tactics of the Indians. They have learned by dear-bought experience that a single Indian ambushed in the grass is more than a match for thousands of white soldiers.

From the Winona Republican, of the 7th inst., the following is taken:

> But the whole system is entirely unnecessary. The military force that can now be brought to bear upon the predatory bands of Indians on our frontier is more than sufficient to wipe them out. A few crushing blows directed into the heart of their country, by competent officers, would do more in six months' time towards bringing them to terms than all the bloodhounds in existence could do in six years. What the settlers want is security and adequate protection from the attacks of the lurking foe—and no such "scare-crow" safety as would be brought about by the employment of bloodhounds as a means of offense or defense.

The article of the Press is one of a number of arguments adduced in favor of the adoption of some new measure for public defense, and a vindication of its own course in subscribing fifty dollars to the blood hound fund. The "system" mentioned in the article of the Republican is the blood hound project which is denounced as unnecessary upon the basis of a military opinion expressed adversely to the sentiments of the Press. The one says that ordinary military precautions are of no avail, while the other contends that a military force can be brought to bear upon the Indians which will utterly wipe them out. In effect, one contends that the United States forces cannot give security, and the other that they can. If the opinion of the Press is to be taken as true, the censure of the military authorities at St. Paul by the people of the frontier is misplaced, and apparent short comings of our military District will be construed as herculean efforts for the last three years to perform impossibilities, and now Gen. Sibley, confessing himself placed hors du combat, ungracefully yields the protection of the frontier to a few "dorgs" and the scattered denizens of the prairies. If, on the other hand, the Government is able to give us protection but has failed for three years, on account of the inefficiency of district, field and post commanders, of what avail is it to assert that the military power of the government can afford protection. It certainly has not been given, and who knows that it will be. The opinion of the Press affords an excuse for the signal failure of the authorities, while that of the Republican is an accusation of gross dereliction of duty somewhere. We can hardly coincide with either of the above opinions, but from an observance of the past and reliable evidence furnished us, we incline to the opinion that this military District can give protection but will not. Thirty men are guarding Mankato. Their horses revel in fat and laziness, while the men are ordered to remain within the lines except for the purpose of procuring forage and water. Not a man is allowed to ride his horse a rod from his quarters, although he sickens with the monotonous ennui of camp life, and would gladly receive the order to scout, alternately with his comrades, the ravines, trails and unfrequented points where Indians may skulk while concocting their murderous schemes. Other detachments, we learn, are under orders which contemplate a slackening of vigilance, and soon the frontier defense will relapse into its former torpidity and worthlessness.

Protection consists in preventing any and every injury contemplated against the inhabitants, and not in chasing off the offenders after the hostile barbarians have accomplished their purpose. The most farcical performance ever witnessed, is the practice of hastening to the scene of blood, picking up the wounded, and returning to camp with the apparent consciousness of having done a "big thing" in the defense of settlers. Such protection is no better than such as vultures give to lambs, because, relying upon the military arm, people are not forewarned, and therefore not forearmed for their own defense.

Another objection raised by the Republican is that the employment of blood hounds is a foul and heartless project and a disregard of all principles of honor and manliness. It is also compared with, as being akin to, the southern practice of hunting negroes. The premises are untenable, because the cases are not parallel. We are not attempting to capture those whose only crime is the assertion of inborn rights. We do not pursue for the purpose of riveting the chains of our fellow man and consigning him to a life of bondage, neither is it proposed to carry on an offensive warfare by means of these animals, but rather to keep them within the settlements to dispute the entrance of the red skins. It is just as senseless to say that it is a total disregard of honor and manliness to place the watch dog in our stores and dwellings to protect us from midnight burglary or assassination. No one doubts but that the faithful mastiff will throttle his antagonist until life is extinct in the defense of his master's property, and in such an event the verdict of all enlightened communities is "served him right," and yet, under the silly pretense of philanthropy the Republican demurs with holy horror to the only feasible means now suggested to guard the frontier.

IS IT SAFE?

Inquiries are often made, by those seeking homes in the west, as to whether it is safe or expedient to venture west of Mankato in search of lands with a view to immediate settlement. Although the question may not, perhaps, be answered by a direct affirmative, we may at least say that there is no section of country in the whole north-west so accessible, so cheap, so abundant in every element of wealth, and hence, so desirable to those whose limited means prompt them to emigrate, as the country south and west of Mankato. Indeed we think the natural resources of the country, and the advantages gained to settlers by an immediate occupation of the soil will abundantly repay the hazard of uncertain safety occasioned by Indian raids. Nothing risked, nothing gained. Since the Indian war began but two raiding parties have visited the Blue Earth country, one in August 1864, and the other in May, 1865. In these raids nine persons in all were killed in a population of many thousand citizens. The deaths, then, from this cause bear no comparison to the number of deaths occurring from ordinary casualties, and therefore the chances in favor of life are even greater than in many sections of the older States where epidemics are of more frequent occurrence, and in their wake of destruction, sweep off the panic-stricken inhabitants by hundreds. Will emigrants go south, or west, or north? If south, they must encounter the deep-seated animosity of those whose life and aim has been to murder in cold blood any who dare to settle upon confiscated lands as well as the miasmatic atmosphere which enshrouds many sections of that region. If it to Missouri or Kansas, the disorganized condition of society is not the only objection. The soil is shallow and quite unproductive in comparison to the soil of Minnesota. If into Minnesota, and especially to the Blue Earth country, the only objection is the bare possibility of a recurrence of Indian difficulties. The best method to banish all doubt of safety is to encourage a speedy settlement of the frontier so that every eighty acre lot may have its proprietor and castle, leaving no spot for the foe to secrete himself. There are yet unoccupied lands in Blue Earth county which have not for years felt the tread of a hostile Sioux, and to such we can conscientiously invite the attention of those desiring to come west.

COMING.

—It is reported that the third Illinois Cavalry, under Col. Carnahan, seven hundred and fifty strong are on their way to Fort Snelling. We are not informed why more troops are sent to this State, though from the condition of things on the frontier the reason might easily be conjectured. Judging from the past, however, and the desperate condition of the sutlership at the Fort owing to the reduced number of soldiers now stationed there, it is possible the reinforcement will be kept to drink Frank Steele's beer. Three companies are already there having little else to do but to fill the coffers of such Government sucking vultures, but a "paying thing" will require more troops to take the place of those recently discharged from rendezvous.

NOTES OF THIRD SERIES OF 7-30 NOW READY.

The demand for the Second Series of the 7-30 Notes was so great that the Treasury Department was unable to print them with sufficient rapidity to fill the orders. It will be remembered that a hundred millions were subscribed and paid for in a single week. The printing presses have finally surmounted the difficulty, and on Wednesday, June 7th, the deliveries of the Third Series commenced, and will be continued with the same promptness that marked the supply of the notes of the first and second series. It has been this interruption of delivery at the time of subscription which has given an appearance of a falling off in the popular taking of the loan,—the great body of small takers being unwilling to pay their money unless they receive their notes right in hand, to carry them home. It is expected that after this week the daily subscriptions to the Seven-Thirties will run up into millions, as they will undoubtedly be stimulated by the opening of the farmer's wool markets East and West. It is not at all likely that the Government will ever again offer so desirable a security as these notes, and about two hundred millions only remain to be taken.

With the close of the war the national expenses will be vastly reduced, and investors must look for a sharp reduction in the rate of interest as soon as the present loans become due, and can be paid off. There is no reason why the United States credit for money should ever again fall below its credit for courage. The same spirit that preserved the geographical integrity of the country will place its pecuniary integrity on a par with that of the most favored nations—and that will represent a rate of interest under rather than over four per cent.

—The first locomotive for the Minnesota Valley Rail Road arrived at St. Paul last week, and was landed at Credit river the same evening. Credit river is on the line of the road, and about twenty miles from St. Paul, and empties into the Minnesota. It is at the mouth of this stream that ties, iron, and other fixtures are being landed for this road. The locomotive is named "Mankato" probably in indication of the desire of the people of St. Paul, Mankato and the members of the company to reach this point as being the most important on the entire route.

—The Record stated last week that Major General Curtis had started on a tour of inspection of the frontier posts along the southwestern line. Such was his intention, but owing to unexpected business elsewhere he was compelled to return down the river without coming west of St. Paul.

Try Again.—The St. Paul Pioneer of Sunday, in copying an article from this paper credited it to the Mankato Record, and on Tuesday corrected the mistake by saying that the article was from the Mankato Independent. Three times and out, Mr. Pioneer. Try once more.

—Colonel Averill received a telegram on Monday last from Col. Gilfillan dated Gallatin Tenn., June 12th stating that the 11th Regiment would probably be mustered out and sent home within twelve days. We feel personally interested in this statement having a small brother in that regiment. Doubtless many of our readers are troubled in the same way —Private advices state that Hon. Wm. Windom is still in Washington making efforts, not only on behalf of the frontier defense, but looking to the removal of some of our incompetent military Generals.

Attempted Suicide at Anoka.

T. R. Webber, a returned soldier, about twenty five years old, who was on a visit to his brother at Anoka, attempted to commit suicide yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a jack-knife. A week ago he attempted to commit suicide by poisoning himself but failed. Yesterday morning he went out into the yard, cut his throat and returned to the house and from thence walked to the doctor's, a quarter of a mile distant. Just as he reached the physician's he fainted. He was immediately cared for, but his recovery is very doubtful.

He had told his brother that he was subject to gloomy spells, and had better be watched. He said this time he meant to finish himself. He is a single man and a fine scholar, speaking three or four languages. Loss of health in the army occasions his gloomy spells.—Anoka Sentinel.

STATE NEWS.

The Presbyterian church of this city design building a new house of worship during the present season, and to this end proposals are invited by the building committee, Messrs. Hodgins and Mitchell, such proposals to be handed in before the 20th inst. The building will be an ornament to the town and a credit to the congregation for whose use it is designed.—Winona Republican.

Coming Home.—Mr. Brack, late of the Heavy Artillery, returned from Chattanooga yesterday. He says he saw the order, before he left, for the musterout of companies A and B of that regiment. The men composing these companies were mainly recruited last September and mustered in squads, from time to time, though it was not until October that they were fully organized as companies. The construction of the muster-out order has accordingly been such as to release them.—Press June 13.

Court Martial Adjourned.—Assignment of Officers to Commands,—The District Court Martial which for several months past has been in session in this city, adjourned sine die last week, and the officers composing the court have been assigned to duty as follows:

Col. McLaren, of the second Cavalry, who was President of the Court, has been assigned to the command of the first Sub-District which comprises the posts at Fort Ripley, Sauk Center, Princeton, Chengwatanna and the whole Chippewa frontier. His headquarters will be at Fort Snelling.

Lieut. Col. Tamblyn has been ordered to take command at Fort Ripley.

Major John R. Jones goes to Fort Ridgely. Capt Mix to Fort Abercrombia, and Capt John J. Jones of the Third battery to Fort Ridgely.

Capt. Telford A. A. G., has been appointed inspector of the first Sub-District. Judge Advocate Doane is absent on furlough.—Press June 13.

FROM RICHMOND.

New York, June 12.

The Tribune's Richmond correspondent details the treatment of negroes are subjected to in that city and vicinity, showing that poor people are treated by our authorities far worse than they were by the slave-driving and slave-owning authorities, both before and after the rebellion. An appeal from Richmond negroes for protection is also published. They state that they are obliged to get some white person to give them a pass to enable them to attend to their daily occupation, without which they are marched off to the negro bull-pen. The rebel mayor Mayo has been reinstated, and he has reappointed his rebel agents who were notorious and infamous negro hunters, and who now occupy themselves in entering the houses of inoffensive negroes, dragging them out and imprisoning them.

The Herald's Richmond correspondent says Gov. Smith of Virginia is about to surrender himself.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Washington, June 7, 1865.

Some persons may be interested in learning that the Chronicle to day in order to set at rest what it calls a malignant falsehood, says on authority of Mr. Stanton himself, that he has not resigned, that it is not known he has determined to leave the Cabinet very soon, and that he has had no disputes, no differences, no collision with President Johnson. His relations with the President are of the most cordial, and friendly character, and the President's relations with Mr. Stanton are entirely agreeable and confidential.

The Secretary of the Treasury has devided Mississippi, South and North Carolina into districts, for the collection of internal taxes.

New York, June. 6.

The Post's Washington special says the delegation from Alabama, left for home to day. It is understood they did not succeed in obtaining permission for the rebel Legislature to re-assemble. A provisional government for that State will be appointed.

Washington, June 7.

Fred A. Sawyer has been appointed Collector of International Revenue for the city of Charleston, S. C. Mr. Sawyer is a native of Boston, but for some time past has occupied the position of Superintendent of the Public Schools of Charleston.

Among the latest arrivals from the South are Geo. S. Houston, of Alabama, and Joshua Hill, of Georgia, both formerly members of the United States House of Representatives.

Nearly all the citizens of the District of Columbia who went South and who survive the war are home again.

Washington, June 13.

President Johnson to-day moved his residence to the White House, of which he has now taken full possession.

An Alabama delegation called at the State Department this morning for the purpose of paying their respect to Secretary Seward. They were cordially received by the Secretary.

Yesterday quite a number of the rebel officers confined in the Old Capitol took the oath of allegiance.

Secretary Seward walked to the State Department to day from his residence for the first time since he received his injuries. His lady who has been confined to her bed for a week past is quite low.

Gustavus Webber, a jealous and crazy New York politician, went, on Saturday evening, and finding Mr. Albert Ainsley talking with his wife, shot him through the breast, killing him instantly. Webber fled, but finding himself hotly pursued, went into a vacant lot and shot himself through the head. He is not expected to live.

The story that an actress, named Henrietta Irving, attempted to kill J. Wilkes Booth, with a dirk, cutting him badly, at Stanwix Hall, Albany, in 1861, is denied by the Albany Argus. It says that while Booth was in Albany he roomed with an actress, with whom, for some cause, he grew jealous and had a quarrel, and he slapped her face. The next night she procured a pistol and watched for him on the stairs to shoot him, but he did not come to give her the opportunity.

Some time ago, Slidell, the confederate representative at Paris, gave a mortgage to a French banker for sixty thousand dollars upon his property in New Orleans. The banker now claims the property under the laws of Louisiana, and a suit is to be instituted in the United States Court, and it will be made a test case. Interesting and important legal points will be raised under the confiscation act, the decision of which will govern similar cases hereafter.

News from Europe

The Indemnity Question—Halifax, June 7.—The steamer Africa, from Liverpool 27th, and Queenstown 27th, has arrived with two days later news.

Great Britain.—In the House of Commons on the 26th, Sir G. Walsh asked Lord Palmerston wheter the Government had received from the United States any formal official demand for compensation to American subjects for losses sustained by the Alabama and other confederate cruisers alleged to have been equipped in Brittish ports. Lord Palmerston said that correspondence had been going on for some time between the two governments on the prizes taken by the Alabama and other vessels of the same kind. There had been received within the last few days, further correspondence on the subject through Mr. Adams, but there had not yet been time to reply to it. Government had stated its views of the case, and the question had been discussed in the most friendly and amicable terms.

The London Times, in an editorial, trusts that there is nothing in the Alabama affair which need cause apprehensions of rupture either now or at any future time. The American commercial marine has indeed suffered, but such a calamity must be expected when a maritime and trading State enters into a contest with an energetic and active enemy. It is with a clear conscience that the government which declined every invitation to interfere in the war, even by offers of mediation, now stands on its legal rights and refuses to make any compensation where it has done no harm.

A correspondent of the London Morning Post says that the correspondence can lead to only one result, namely, unconditional refusal on our part to indemnify the Americans for the losses occasioned by the chances of war.

Fire.

Cincinnati. June 10.

The Gazette Chattanooga dispatch says an ordnance magazine exploded, setting fire to and consuming two Government warehouses filled with Government stores. Loss to Government one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Between ten and fifteen were killed and wounded. The explosion was caused by sparks from a locomotive.

The Surrender of Galveston.

New York, June 10.

The Tribune's correspondent with the fleet off Galveston, the 24th May, says, Galveston was evacuated by rebels on that day. It appears that previously a number of paroled rebel officers were brought from New Orleans and landed, among them Gen. Wilcox, well known in Texas, and it was hoped they would influence a surrender. This proved to be the case and on the 24th the announcement was made by signal.

The famous blockade runner Darleigh was run ashore and destroyed.

Parson Brownlow, of Tennessee, has never been considered a negro-worshipper; but he says, in a recent letter, that he "would rather trust the poorest black in Tennessee with a vote, than a miserable, canting hypocrite of a rebel, who has sneaked back in the Union without taking time to wash the stains of loyal blood off his hands." And this is the feeling among a large class of Union men in the South who have suffered every thing but death at the hands of the rebels.

New York, June 13.

The Times Washington special says a strong feeling is finding expression among many leading men in favor of the policy of appointing Military Governors for some of the extreme Southern States, such as South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Mississippi, and of keeping these States under strict military control until the people once more thoroughly return to their avocations and the labor status of freedom properly adjusted. With masters the efforts of the delegations from those quarters are not meeting with much encouragement. There are several prominent Generals with fine extra abilities and cool heads, who can now be spared to settle the disturbed affairs of these States.

The President has finally determined to appoint Judge Parsons Provisional Governor of Alabama. Instructions to Provisional Governors will be determined upon at the Cabinet meeting to morrow.

It is understood that Gen Slough has been appointed Governor of Colorado, in place of Mr. Evans Mr Slough received his first military commission from Col. Gilpins, the first Governor of this Territory.

The Tribune's Washington special says Gen. Alfred H. Terry has gone to Richmond to take Halleck's position.

Says the Louisville Journal: "We understand that the negro population of Louisville and vicinity propose to celebrate the approaching Fourth of July in grand style. The Celebrated colored orator, Fred. Douglas, has been invited, and will be present to address the assembled multitude.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.
THIRD SERIES.
$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.
Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum, to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date,

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

LOCALIZING.—Of the many duties of an editor of a weekly journal, that of portraying local events is perhaps the most perplexing. There is nothing done, either of public or private importance, except through the agency of some individual who may or may not according to his natural caprice, be disposed to appear in public print or so appearing may fancy himself the subject of invidious criticism. Freedom of the press, however, is a cardinal point in the creed of "Young America", and as the truth will not prejudice any who keep within the pales of good order, we must be allowed to announce it under our privilege as a journalist, taking care not to abuse our prerogative. If the readers of the press were as slow to make a personal application of its strictures upon public conduct, as many are to apply to themselves a practical sermon from the ministry, we should be pretty sure to escape the ill humor of all. A. and B. listen to an "excellent" discourse and return home. A. thinks it a capital hit upon the short comings of B. furnishing him abundant food for reflection upon his past conduct. B. reminds his wife that the sermon was admirably prepared for A's benefit, religiously adding that he hoped A. would see the error of his way. Neither dreamed of applying the lecture to himself, while both, in the best of humor, voted the minister a gentleman and a scholar. Were the editorial fraternity thus easily handled, how swimmingly would they pass the breakers of time. If we are unfortunate enough to have an enemy, he will probably challenge us, and having the choice of weapons we shall take the UNION, and he must choose a similar "pair of tongs" and thus a la duel the honor of both will be vindicated.

RETURNED SOLDIERS.—Sergeant W. J. Martin of Co. E 9th Reg., returned last week from Memphis duly discharged from the service. His wife and family also arrived from the east, preceding him one or two days. Mr. Martin reports that Minnesota soldiers in hospital at Memphis are being discharged and many are already on their way home.

Among those reported returned and returning are the following; E. Howe, A Douglas, George Maxfield and J. P. Davis of Mankato, and Milton Walbridge of Shelbyville.

We also notice the arrival of Lieut. Dwight Seward an officer in a colored regiment. It is understood that he has resigned his commission and resumes his place as a citizen among us.

REMOVING.—West Mankato is gradually moving into Mankato proper. Mr. Barrett is the owner of a spacious building which he proposes to move in and locate south of Mr. Bradley's store. We are not a very accurate judge of dimensions when applied to buildings, but would venture to estimate the length of this building at two or three hundred feet and the breadth a little more. At all events, it is certainly the largest building we ever saw—in West Mankato. The skids and rollers are already in position, the route of ingress selected, and the right men are at the helm. The building will be brought in "dead or live." Applications are already being made by renters and we presume by the time the building hails to view it will be filled with tenents who in the rapid influx of new comers, congratulate themselves that while others arrive by stage with scanty baggage, they arrive amply provided with accommodation for the year.

CRIMINAL ACTION.—Harmon Tyner, Jackson Thomson, and J. Witherspoon were arraigned last week Wednesday before a Mankato court, charged with an assault and battery committed at the Germania House, of this place during the progress of a dance on Monday evening of the same week. A change of venue was taken to South Bend, Justice Berry presiding. Jury trial being waived a large number of witnesses were examined eliciting nothing against Tyner, and Thompson who were therefore discharged. Witherspoon was unlucky enough to be mulcht in the sum of five dollars and cost. Too much "rye" and too many yankees we understand was the cause of the disturbance at the dance. E. P. Freeman Esq appeared for the State and Judge Waite for the defendents,

A CALL.—On Tuesday last, Mr. C. S. Olney, of Southern Illinois, called at our office. He reports that the best corn he has seen this spring is a field lying near Mankato, and that the crop in this State is far ahead of that of Illinois. In this connection we are reminded that Mr. Bird, living within two miles of town, planted corn three weeks since, which is now about a foot high. Mr. Olney reports that there is a great desire in Illinois to emigrate, and that although many are now migrating to Missouri, he thinks the tide will turn toward the Blue Earth country next fall, and in the following spring.

MUSICAL.—Miss Sarah Wood, formerly of New York, who, for a few months past, has been teaching at Garden City, has returned to Mankato and taken rooms at the Clifton House. She is prepared to give lessons in instrumental and vocal music, and is now forming a class for that purpose. Terms may be learned by calling upon her at her room. A brief acquaintance with Miss Wood leads us to believe that satisfaction will be given in the musical art.

GRAIN.—It is said that there are still in store in this place about one hundred and forty thousand bushels of wheat. About one-third of the amount belongs to Beaupre & Kelly, one-third to W. F. Davidson, and the balance, in small amounts to parties residing here. So far the farming community have suffered but little from the loss of navigation, while all the articles of produce other than wheat have found a home demand at remunerative prices.

Editor Mankato Union.

THANKS.—Allow us through your columns to return our sincere thanks to the ladies and misses of Mankato for the splendid supper served to the detachment here, on Saturday evening last, also for a similar compliment tendered to the company some three weeks since. Such demonstrations of kindness will ever be gratefully cherished in the hearts of its members, and we only regret that a better opportunity of proving our worthyness is not afforded.

Co. H 2nd Minn. Cav.

RETURNED.—Mr. Uriah Karmony, of the Second Regiment, arrived home last Tuesday evening. Mr. Karmony has been a prisoner nineteen months, and passed through all the horrors of Libby, Andersonville and other Southern prisons. He promises to give us a detailed statement next week of the vicissitudes of prison life experienced by Union soldiers, which, coming from such reliable authority, will doubtless be of interest to our readers.

REFITTING.—The building owned by Bradley Brothers just east of their store, is being overhauled and fitted up for a stock of goods which will be put in as soon as the building can be made ready.

A Mr. Johnson of Milwaukee has leased the premises below. Dr. C. E Butts, Dentist, now doing business in the Clifton House, has engaged the upper rooms, which will be in readiness for him in three or four weeks.

COLLATION.—We noticed on Saturday last in a beautiful grove at the upper end of town, a long table elegantly spread with every dainty heart or palate could wish. Upon inquiry we learned that the young Misses of Mankato were about to receive as their guests the portion of Co. H., 2nd Cavalry, now doing duty here consisting of thirty men.

Among the leading spirits in the enterprise were Bella Warren and Emma Cross. The names of others we could not learn. The supper was greatly enjoyed by the "boys", and the young ladies were no less delighted in being able to afford them a pleasant variation from the old routine of hard tack and pork.

SETTLERS.—J. H. Welch Esq. Register of the land office at Winnebago City reports that settlers are still flocking in, many venturing far on to the frontier, notwithstanding the late raid. Corroborative of this we mention that last week a number of teams passed through Mankato bound for Jackson, distant twenty miles west, with machinery for the erection of mills. A number of families are connected with the expedition. Jackson is located in a splendid region which is about equally divided into timber and prarie land affording abundant inducements to adventurers.

WEDDING PARTY.—Tuesday of this week was a gala day for our neighbors of Kasota. A wedding party from that place passed through town on their way to the falls of Minneinneopa and on returning took tea with mine host of the Clifton House. We did not learn the names of the newly married couple, but should judge from the degree of their enjoyment that all had just taken the matrimonial vows. The party consisted of sixteen persons with eight carriages, one of which met with several accidents by way of variety. A wheel turned wrong side out, pole broken, and two or three spokes, sum up the amount of damage.

CHURCH.—Mr. Spear, architect from St Paul, is in town finishing the interior of the Presbyterian church. The seats which were worked out at St. Paul, and the pulpit furniture have been received. The gallery, pulpit and seats only remain to be completed, and the church will be ready for use. With commendable zeal the citizens of Mankato have prosecuted this work without incurring any encumberance upon the property. A few hundred dollars only will be necessary after all subscriptions are paid to bring the church square with the world.

GRASSHOPPERS.—We regret to learn that these pests have made their appearance near Mankato. Just west of town the discovery has been made that the grass is full of small grasshoppers which are yet too young to do any damage.

At the mouth of the Cottonwood immense damage has been done while in the vicinity of Le Seur whole fields are laid waste by their ravages.

FAIR.—We publish this week the prize list of the Blue Earth County Fair to be held at Garden City in Sept. next. The names of the members of the different committees are also given. We shall have occasion to refer more in detail to the interests involved in this enterprise.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE.—The School District of West Mankato is to be provided with a new school house at a cost of about fifteen hundred dollars. A levy of six hundred dollars has been made this spring, and a similar amount will be raised next spring and the building erected at that time.

DEATHS.—In the list of deaths of Minnesota soldiers in hospital at St. Louis we notice the name of John Stockholm, of Co D 9th Reg. He was from Winnebago City, and died May 5th at Jefferson Barracks of scurvy and diarrhea.

BOUGHT OUT.—Messrs. Tompkins & Quinn have bought out Mr. Franklin's interest in the Mankato & Blue Earth City Stage and Express Line. We are glad it has fallen into such good hands. Success to the new Company.

A SUCCESS.—The Methodist Mite Society which convened at the City Hall on Wednesday evening, was unusually well attended, and the nett proceeds were quite large. An outlay of five dollars gave a nett gain of eighteen dollars and ten cents. A pretty good investment.

RESTAURANT.—Ellmore & Brother are putting up a building between Finch & Thurston's store and A. Lorentz's saloon. These gentleman intend establishing a restaurant where meals can be had at any hour of the day.

PERSONAL.—We notice that C. S. Levitt Esq., formerly a resident of this place but now living in New York has arrived in town and will remain a few days.

PERSONAL.—Capt. P. B. Davy of Co. H., 2nd Cavalry, passed through town en route for Blue Earth City on Monday last. He will visit his family and recreate while "red tape" at St. Paul disposes of the charges preferred against him as a military officer.

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

SEMINARY.—The present term of the Woodland Seminary will be continued another month. See the advertisement in another column.

THE Presbyterian Mite Society will be held at City Hall next Thursday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

AMNESTY PROCLAMATION.

The Classes Excepted from its Benefits.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

WHEREAS, The President of the United States, on the 8th day of December, 1863, and on the 26th day of March, 1864, did, with the object to suppress the existence of rebellion and induce all persons to return to their loyalty, and to restore the authority of the United States, issue proclamations offering amnesty and pardon to certain persons who had directly or by implication participated in the said rebellion; and,

WHEREAS, many persons who had so engaged in said rebellion, have, since the issuance of said proclamation, failed or neglected to take the benefits thus offered thereby; and

WHEREAS, many persons who have been justly deprived of all claims to amnesty and pardon thereunder by reason of their participation, directly or by implication, in said rebellion and continued hostility to the Government of the United States, since the date of said proclamation, now desire to apply for and obtain amnesty and pardon; To the end, therefore, that the authority of the Government of the United States may be restored, and that peace, order and freedom may be established, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do proclaim and declare that I hereby grant to all persons who have directly, or by implication, participated in the existing rebellion (except as hereinafter excepted) amnesty and pardon, with restoration to all rights of property, except in cases where legal proceedings under the civil laws of the United States providing for the confiscation of property of persons engaged in rebellion have been instituted. But on the condition nevertheless, that every such person shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation, and thenceforth keep and maintain said oath inviolate, and which oath shall be registered for permanent preservation, and shall be of the tenor and effect following, to wit:

"I do solemnly swear or affirm in the presence of Almighty God that I will henceforth faithfully defend the Constitution of the United States, and the Union of the States thereunder, and that I will, in like manner abide by, and faithfully support all laws and proclamations which have been made during the existing rebellion with reference to the emancipation of slaves, so help me God."

The following classes of persons are excepted from the benefits of this proclamation:

First, All who are, or shall have been pretended civil or diplomatic officers, or otherwise domestic or foreign agents of the pretended Confederate Government.

Second, All who left judicial positions under the United States to aid the rebellion.

Third, All who shall have been military or naval officers of said pretended Confederate Government above the rank of Colonel in the army, or Lieutenant in the navy.

Fourth, All who left seats in the Congress of the United States, to aid the rebellion.

Fifth, All who resigned, or tendered resignations of their commissions in the army or navy of the United States to evade duty in resisting the rebellion.

Sixth, All who have engaged in any way in treating otherwise than lawfully as prisoners of war persons found in the United States service as officers, soldiers, or seamen, or in other capacities.

Seventh, All persons who have been or are absentees from the United States for the purpose of aiding the rebellion.

Eighth, All military and naval officers in the rebel service who were educated by the United States in the Military Academy at West Point, or the United States Naval Academy.

Ninth, All persons who held the pretended offices of Governors of the States in insurrection against the United States.

Tenth, All persons who left their homes within the jurisdiction and protection of the United States, and passed beyond the Federal Military lines, into the so called Confederate States for the purpose of aiding the rebellion.

Eleventh, All persons who have been engaged in the commerce of the United States, upon the high seas and all persons who have made raids into the United States from Canada, and been engaged in destroying the commerce of the United States.

Twelfth, All persons who at this late day seek to obtain the benefits hereof, by taking the oath herein prescribed, who are in military, naval or civil confinement or custody, or under the hands of military authorities, or agents of the United States, as prisoners of war, or persons detained for offences of any kind, either before or after conviction.

Thirteenth, All persons who have actively participated in said rebellion, and the estimated value of whose taxable property is over $20,000.

Fourteenth, All persons who have taken the oath of amnesty as prescribed in the President's Proclamation of December 8th, 1863, or an oath of allegiance to the Government of the United States, since the date of said proclamation, and who have thereafter kept and maintained the same inviolate.

Provided, That special application may be made to the President for pardon, by any person belonging to the excepted classes, and such, if any, will be liberally extended as may be consistent with the facts of the case, and the peace and dignity of the United States. The Secretary of State will establish rules and regulations for administering and recording the said amnesty oath so as to insure its benefit to the people, and guard the Government against fraud.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington, the 29th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, in the independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF BLUE EARTH.

In Probate Court.

In the matter of the Estate of Andrew J. Jewett, deceased, at a term of the Probate Court, held in and for the County of Blue Earth, at Mankato, on the 25th day of May, A. D. 1865, present David Wilcox, Judge.

ON reading and filing the petition of J. M. Jewett praying for reasons therein set forth, and that letters of Administration on said Estate issued to Benjamin Evans, it is ordered that at 10 o'clock, A. M., be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and the heirs at law of the said deceased, and all other persons interested in said Estate, are required to appear at a session of the Probate Court then to be holden at the Office of Probate Judge, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that the said petitioner give notice to all persons interested in said Estate of the pendancy of the said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Mankato Union, a weekly newspaper published in Mankato, in said County of Blue Earth, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHfare is again open for

Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. At Baltimore with seven daily trains for Philadelphia and New York.

TWO DOLLARS additional on Through Tickets to Baltimore or the Northern Cities, give the privilege of visiting Washington City en route—being $3.00 lower than the cost by any other line.

This is the only route route by which passengers can procure through tickets and through checks to Washington City.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows, and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of 'double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

GEO. A. PRINCE & CO.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A PRINCE & CO." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

HELMBOLD'S GENUINE PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,
Loss of Memory,
Weak Nerves,
Horror of Disease,
Dimness of Vision,
Hot Hands,
Dryness of the Skin,
Universal Lassitude,
Loss of Power,
Difficulty of Breathing,
Trembling,
Wakefulness,
Pain in the Back,
Flushing of the Body,
Eruptions of the Face,
Pallid Countenance,
Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!

Helmbold's

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin.

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the follow ing diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Its History—Our Position with Respect to European Powers, as viewed by one of England's Ministers of State—Interviews on the Subject between the British and American Ministers.

As the Monroe Doctrine now looms up in the political history of our country in reference to the establishment of a monarchy in Mexico, we present a short history of that doctrine as compiled from the account of the interviews on the subject between Mr. Canning, the British Minister, and Mr. Rush, the American Minister, as reported in Rush's "Residence in the London Court."

At an interview between the two ministers, on the 16th of August, 1823, in a conversation upon the war between France and Spain, and the revolted Spanish American States, Mr. Rush said that should France ultimately effect her purpose of overthrowing the constitutional government of Spain, there was at least the consolation left, that Great Britain would not allow her to go further and stop the progress of emancipation in the colonies. He had been assured of this fact from the sentiments promulgated in a note from Mr. Canning, on the 31st of March preceding. Upon the American Minister expressing the sentiment, Mr. Canning asked him what he thought his government would say to going hand in hand with England on such a policy? Mr. Canning did not think that a concert of action would be necessary, believing that the simple fact of the two countries being known to hold the same opinion, would by its moral effect, put down her intention on the part of France to bring them under her dominion, if she entertained it. Mr. Rush replied that he was unable to say in what manner the United States would look upon such a suggestion, but he would communicate to his Government. He also asked Mr. Canning to inform him of the precise situation in which England stood in relation to the Spanish colonies, and especially on the material point of acknowledging their independence. He replied that Great Britain never again intended to lend her instrumentality or aid toward making up the dispute between Spain and her colonies; but that if this result should still be brought about, she would not interfere to prevent it. He believed that the day had arrived when all America might be considered lost to Europe, so far as the tie of political dependence is concerned; if Spain and the colonies should be able—agreeing among themselves—to bring the dispute to a close upon terms satisfactory to both sides, and which would at the same time secure to Spain commercial advantages not extended to other nations, that Great Britain would not object to compromise in this spirit of preference to Spain. He hoped France would not extend her views to Spanish America, for the purpose of reducing the colonies, nominally indeed for Spain, but in reality to subserve her own ends, but that if she did meditate such a course, he was satisfied that the knowledge that the United States would be opposed to it as well as England, could not fail to have a decisive influence in checking it.

On the 22d of August, Mr. Rush received a note from Mr. Canning, asking if the time had arrived when the two Governments might understand each other as to the Spanish American colonies, and whether it would not be expedient and beneficial to the world that the principles of the two nations in regard to them should be clearly settled and avowed; that as to England, she had no disguise on the subject.

1. She conceived the recovery of the colonies by Spain to be hopeless. 2. That the question of their recognition as independent States was one of time and circumstances. 3. That England was not disposed, however, to throw any impediment in the way of an arrangement between the colonies and mother country by amicable negotiations. 4. That she aimed at the possession of no portion of the colonies for herself. 5. That she could not see the transfer of any portion of them to any other power, with indifference.

Mr. Rush, in response to Mr. Canning's note, said that the United States, having acknowledged the independence of the late Spanish provinces in America, desired to see it maintained with stability, and anxiously desire to see them received into the family of nations by the powers of Europe, and especially by Great Britain. That in other respects the sentiments unfolded in Mr. Canning's note were shared in the United States. Because: 1. We considered the recovery of the colonies by Spain to be entirely hopeless. 2. We would throw no impediment in the way of an arrangement between them and the mother country, by amicable negotiations, supposing an arrangement of such a nature to be possible. 3. We did not aim at the possession of any of those communities for ourselves. 4. (and last.) We should regard as highly unjust, and as fruitful of disastrous consequences, any attempt on the part of any European power to take possession of them by conquest, by cession, or any other ground of pretext whatever.

Mr. Rush transmitted to the Secretary of State a copy of the correspondence, together with his views upon the matter.

On the 26th of August he received another note from Mr. Canning urging a prompt understanding on the Spanish-American question, inasmuch as England had received notice that as soon as the military objects in Spain were achieved, which France expected to achieve very speedily, a proposal for a Congress would be made in Europe specifically on the affairs of Spanish-America, and the complications to which such a proposal might lead were adverted to by Mr Canning.

In reply to this Mr Rush said he was sure his Government would regard, as alike objectionable, any interference in the affairs in Spanish-America, unsolicited by the late provinces themselves and against their will; that it would regard the convening of a Congress to deliberate upon their affairs as a measure uncalled for, and indicative of a policy unfriendly to the tranquility of the world. He also urged the acknowledgement of the independence of the new provinces by England.

On the 17th of September our minister received another communication from Mr. Canning; had a second interview with him on the 18th, and a third on the 26th of September, but the views of both ministers were so different upon the question of the recognition of the independence of Spanish America that nothing could be accomplished.

On the 25th of November a final interview was held between Mr. Rush and Mr. Canning on the affairs in Spanish-America. At that time the latter, after stating that nothing could be accomplished between them, he had deemed it indispensable that Great Britain should herself, without any concert with the United States, come to an explanation with France. He had, accordingly, seen the Prince De Polignac, French Embassador in London, and arranged for several oral conferences with him in reference to the Spanish-American question. In these conferences each party unfolded the views of their respective Governments, and agreed upon the written memorandum or paper which was to embody them.

The paper was read to Mr. Rush, though he was not allowed a copy of it. The points which appeared new to him were:

First, That England declares that she will recognize the independence of the colonies, in case France should employ force in aid of their re-subjugation; secondly, in case Spain herself, reverting to her ancient colonial system, should attempt to put a stop to the trade of Britain with those colonies. As regards the form of government most desirable for the colonies, considered as independent States, a preference is expressed for monarchy, could it be practicable.

The main points where the paper was illustrative of the policy of France, were as follows: It declares that France, like England, considers the recovery of the colonies by Spain as hopeless. It expresses the determination of France not to assist Spain in attempting their re-conquest. It expresses the desire of France to see the dispute made up by amicable arrangements between the mother country and the colonies. It disclaims for France all idea of exclusive commercial advantages from the colonies, saying that, like Britain, she only asks to be placed upon the same footing with the most favored nation, after Spain. It knows not what there is to be recognized in the colonies, as independent, France regarding all government there as a mockery. It labors to show to show the necessity of assembling a Congress to which England should be a party [which she declines] to bring about the benevolent end of reclaiming those remote regions from their past errors, and making up the dispute between them and the parent State on terms satisfactory to both, as the policy worthy of both.

By the early transmission of the proposals made to our Minister, Mr. Rush, by Mr. Canning, copies of them, as well as his reports of their conferences on the subject, arrived in Washington in time to engage the deliberations of President Monroe and his Cabinet before the meeting of Congress in December, 1823. In his opening message to Congress he put forth the two following declarations:

1. That it was impossible for the Allied Powers to extend their political system to any part of America without endangering our peace and happiness; and "equally impossible, therefore, that we should behold such interposition with indifference."

2. While alluding to discussions between the United States and Russia, then commenced with a view to arranging the respective claims of the two nations on the north-west coast of America, the President also declared that "the occasion had been judged proper for asserting, as a principal in which the rights and interests of the United States were involved, that the American continent, by the free and independent condition which they had assumed and maintained, were henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European Power."

The first of these declarations was probably expected by England, and was well received. Everybody saw at once that it referred to the hostile plans of the Allied Powers against the late Spanish provinces.

The second declaration was unexpected, and not acquiesced in.

When the message arrived in London the whole document excited great attention. It was upon all tongues. The press was full of it, the Spanish-American Deputies were overjoyed. Spanish-American securities rose in the stock market, and the safety of the new States from all European coercion was considered no longer as doubtful.

Brig. Gen. Fessenden, son of Senator Fessenden, is assigned to the command of the 2nd brigade of the 1st division of Gen. Hancock's Corps.

TRIAL OF THE CONSPIRATORS.

The trial of the conspirators for the assassination of President Lincoln is now nearly concluded. The evidence which during the past week has been introduced for the defense is entirely negative, with the exception of an absurd attempt to establish, in behalf of Payne, a plea for insanity. There has been no sort of necessity for protracting the trial by evidence of the character offered for the defense. But this delay has not been entirely unsatisfactory to the prosecuting attorney, as it has enabled him to introduce much testimoney corroboratory to that already given. The feature of greatest interest is the publication of the remaining portion of the reserved evidence taken on the first days of the trial. This testimony is very important, and is conclusive as to the complicity of the rebel authorities in the assassination, as also in other most heinous plots against the lives of our citizens. The object for the reservation of the testimony was to secure the safety of the witnesses—Conover, Merritt, and Montgomery.

Sanford Conover, the most prominent of these witnesses, is a native of New York. He has resided in Canada since October, 1864. He testifies that he was conscripted into the Confederate army, and detailed to service in the rebel War Department at Richmond, under James A. Seddon, the Secretary of War, and that while in Canada he was intimately acquainted with Geo N. Sanders, Jacob Thompson, Dr. Blackburn, Beverly Tucker, William C. Cleary, C. C. Clay, and others. He knew Surratt also, and Booth. He saw Surratt in Canada on several occasions last April in Thompson's room, also in the company of Sanders and other rebel agents. On the 7th of April he saw him in company with Thompson, Sanders, and Booth. He saw Surratt at that time deliver dispatches from Richmond to Thompson. These dispatches were from Benjamin and Davis—that from the latter being either a cipher dispatch or a letter. Previous to this occasion Thompson had conversed with Conover upon the subject of a plot to assassinate President Lincoln and his Cabinet. He corresponded at that time with the New York Tribune, receiving compensation from that journal. In one of his letters he gave warning of the existence of a plot to assassinate the President. This letter, it appears, failed to reach the Tribune. One letter was received, however, giving intimation of a plot to kidnap the President, with a suggestion of his possible murder. Thompson invited Conover to take part in this enterprise. When Surratt delivered the message above alluded to Thompson laid his hand upon the papers and said, referring to the assassination and to the assent of the rebel authorities, 'This makes the thing all right.' The dispatch spoke of the persons to be assassinated: Mr. Lincoln, Mr Johnson, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of State, Judge Chase, and Gen. Grant. Mr Thompson said on that occasion, or on the day before that interview, that the assassination proposed would leave the Government of the United States entirely without a head; that there was no provision in the Constitution of the United States by which they could elect another President. Mr. Welles was also named, but Mr. Thompson said it was not worth while to kill him: he was of no consequence.

Conover's first interview with Thomson on the subject was early in February, in Thompson's room in St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal. On that occasion Thompson said: "Some of our boys are going to play a grand joke on Abe and Andy;" which he explained was to kill him, remarking that the killing of a tyrant was not murder. He said that he had commissions for this work from the rebel authorities, and spoke of conferring one on Booth. These commissions were in blank, with Seddons signature at the end. It was such a commission which Bennett Young, the St. Albans raider, received, the blank being filled by Mr. Clay. In a subsequent conversation Thompson told Conover that Booth had been commissioned, and every man engaging in the plot would be. On the day of the assassination, or the day before, Conover was conversing with Cleary about the rejoicing in the States over the surrender of Lee and the capture of Richmond. Cleary said they would have the laugh on the other side of the month in a day or two. The assassination was spoken of among them as commonly as the weather.

There was a proposition before the rebel agents in Canada to destroy the Croton Dam, by which New York City is supplied with water. These agents also had eight hundred men, with arms for them, concealed in Chicago for the purpose of releasing the rebel prisoners there.

Dr. Blackburn, according to Conover's testimony, was recognized in Canada as a rebel agent. Conover had heard Thompson and Cleary say that they favored his scheme for introducing yellow fever into New York and other large cities. About the time when it was proposed to cut off the Croton Dam, Dr. Blackburn proposed to poison the reservoirs and calculated the amount of poison necessary. Thompson, however, thought it impossible to collect so large a quantity of poison without suspicion.

James B. Merritt, a physician in Canada, corroborated Conover's testimony. He had heard Sanders and others say that Lincoln would not live out his second term. Sanders named a number of persons ready and willing to remove the President, Vice President, and Cabinet, and some of the leading United States Generals. He heard Sanders read a letter from President Davis justifying him in making any possible arrangement for the accomplishment of that end. Merritt also bore witness to Booth's intimacy with Sanders.

Richard Montgomery testified that he had heard Thompson say that he had friends of the Confederacy all over the Northern States, and that he could at any time have Lincoln and his advisers put out of the way. He had seen Payne a number of times in Canada. Once he had seen him talking with Clement C. Clay. A few days after the assassination Tucker said to Montgomery that Mr. Lincoln ought to have died long ago, and that it was a pity the boys had not been allowed to go when they wanted to. Cleary also talked to him on the subject, and said it was too bad the whole work had not been done.

From some testimony offered on Friday it appears that Payne previously passed by the name of Powell. His father's name is George Powell, and resides in Florida. That he is a brutal man is evident from the testimony of Margaret Kaigham, who deposed that he had shamefully outraged a negro girl for disobeying his orders, throwing her on the floor, stamping her, and attempting to kill her. In regard to the plea of insanity brought forward in Payne's behalf Dr. Charles Nichols testified that the exclamation, "I'm mad, I'm mad!" uttered in Mr. Seward's room, would give ground in his mind to a suspicion that the man was feigning insanity.

On Saturday June 3, Marcus P. Norton, a lawyer from Troy, New York, was sworn for the prosecution. He was at the National Hotel from January 10 to about the middle of March. While there he saw Atzerott and O'Loughlin in company with Booth, This was about the time of Lincoln's inauguration. He overheard a conversation between Booth and Atzerott, the substance of which was that, if the matter succeeded as well with Johnson as it did with Buchanan, they would get terribly sold. There was also something said to the effect that the company of witnesses would be of that character that little could be proven by them. On the 3d of March Dr. Mudd entered Norton's room hastily and appearing to be greatly excited. He said he had made a mistake, that he wanted to see Booth.

In regard to the testimony implicating Davis and the rebel agents in Canada in the assassination, it is very plain that, being so circumstantial, it can easily be proved to be false. Until rebutting testimony is offered, it must stand as true.

Presbyterian General Assembly.

The meeting of this religious body at Brooklyn, recently, was one of unusual interest. Among the incidents of the meeting worthy of note, we extract the following:

COLORED MINISTERS.

The most telling speech thus far has fallen from negro lips; and when Mr. Reeve sat down, the next white man's voice sounded harsh and unmusical—Reeve is a finer declaimer than Douglass, well educated, modest, manly and without a solitary streak of Saxon blood in his ebony visage. His fine speech told powerfully in favor of the subsequent motion to recommend our government to grant free suffrage to the black loyalists of the South. The other colored member of the Assembly—Thompson, of Newark, N. J., brought down the house by saying: 'we negroes prefer our own preachers, I once asked a white man to preach for me, and he did very well until he came to the closing prayer,—'Oh Lord, we know that in thy sight a black man's soul is as precious as a white man's—and that just spoiled it all. The fact is, brethren, there is a great prejudice among the blacks toward the white race.' This capital sally was greeted with a roar.

INTENSELY LOYAL.

The grand striking feature of this assembly has been its intense loyalty, and equally intense anti-slavery utterances. The atmosphere of the Plymouth Church never burned with a fiercer glow for liberty. When the commissioners from East Tennessee appeared, and asked to be re admitted to the general assembly, they were welcomed with open arms. Our friend Samuel Sawyer (who was exiled from Tennessee for denouncing slavery in 1857.) told his artless tale of the sufferings of those 'hunted partridges' among the mountains. All hearts melted; the Tennessean presbyteries were re-admitted by a rising vote; Dr. Adams led in sublime thanksgiving to God, and the Doxology was sung on the spot. When Dr. Spear, after the passage of his powerful paper on the 'sin of treason,' exclaimed, 'I would hang Jefferson Davis I would hang Gen. Lee, and would keep on hanging the leading traitors until the judicial arm of the government has as fully vindicated Union, liberty, and law as have the swords of Grant and Sherman,' the house thundered out their approbation. The culmination of this enthusiasm was reached this morning, when Dr. Spear presented his trenchant report in favor of NEGRO SUFFRAGE.

A member from the shores of Lake Champlain expressed some honest doubts as to the expediency of an immediate investiture of the Southern freedmen with the right of citizenship. This brought out half a dozen rejoiners, hot, quick, and telling, a volley of canister. Thompson, the colored commissioner, claimed for his race an organic equality with the whites. 'We are practically inferior,' said he, 'because we have never been put into practice; but a natural foundational inferiority we will not admit.' Herrick Johnson, of of Pittsburgh, in a few vehement sentences, protested that every oppressing race had charged the victims of their wrongs with generic inferiority. J. F. Sutton gave a brief touching photograph of the loyal blacks at the tent doors of our soldiers, weeping over Union defeats or jubilant over our victories: he claimed that the lingering treason of the South could only be smothered under negro ballots. 'You are setting in one direction' said the moderator, 'why not take the vote?' The vote was taken; one loud majestic 'aye' sounded through the spacious church; not a solitary 'nay' was whispered, and then the assembly rose to their feet and sang, 'My country 'tis of thee!' This made the record of the assembly complete. They have voted unanimously to sustain the Government in punishing treason—to exclude every rebel minister from the church fellowship until he repent and forswear disloyalty—to establish home missions among the freedmen, and to recommend the fullest rights of citizenship to the black loyalists of the South! Need any member of the assembly blush to meet his constituents?

QUANDARY.—'I am a married man,' writes our correspondent, 'and am in hot water; and I want you to help me out of it. We are keeping house; and my mother, being a widow, is living with us, and there's where the trouble comes. My wife and my mother are having little petty quarrels, pretty much all the time, about doing this and that—how the baby should be dressed, and such trifles. First, my mother will come and tell a great long string about my wife's being so young and inexperienced and claim that she should take her advice, &c. Then my wife will come and say that my mother interferes, and dictates, and has too much to say in her house, &c. I try to smooth it over, generally taking my mother's part; but between them both they nearly set me crazy. What shall I do?' You should first repent of your outrageous conduct in taking part against your wife, and then reform your conduct altogether. A wife should be supreme in her own domestic affairs; and not even her own mother should be allowed to interfere with her against her will. A husband who 'tries to smooth such a matter over,' betrays his incompetency. He shouldn't 'try to smooth it over,' at all. He should tell his mother—kindly, affectionately, reverently—but with invincible emphasis and firmness, that while living in his house she must be content with the position of an honored and beloved guest, whose interference with his wife, or in domestic affairs, could not and would not for a moment be tolerated.

A FORCIBLE CONTRAST.—One of our cotemporaries thus contrasts the closing career of John Brown and Jeffreson Davis respectively: Honor, personal honor, has been the boast of the Southerners; but their representative dragged his in the dust. Old John Brown exerted his last failing strength, not in defence of his life, not to escape a felon's death, but to vindicate that alone for which he cared—his honor—and, assured that his intentions and hopes were clearly proven, consigned himself freely to an ignominious death. The very men captured by him described the grandeur of the old hero's attitude as he at once commanded his little garrison, encouraged the fearful, spoke words of kindly comfort and sympathy to his prisoners, and insured their safety by every precaution in his power. At the moment of his seizure so stood old John Brown resting one hand firmly on his weapon, with the other clasping the stiffening fingers of his dying son, while the dead body of the other lay at his side—a type of courage, endurance, magnanimity, and generosity. Of the last scene of Davis' capture what remains to be said! It must be left where it belongs, to the pencil of the caricaturist; while over its rehersal will ever peal.

Army Chaplain—'My young colored friend, can you read?'

Contraband—'Yes sah!'

Army Chaplain—'Glad to hear it.—Shall I give you a paper?'

Contraband—'Sartain, massa, if you please.'

Army Chaplain—'Very good. What paper would you choose now?,

Contraband—'Well massa, if you chews, I'll take a paper ob terbacker.'

The chaplain looked at the contraband, and the contraband looked at the chaplain; then the latter sighed and passed on.

STICK A PIN HERE.—The only churches at the South (under the control of the South) which observed the last Fast Day, were African churches. As for example, one item of news from Raleigh North Carolina reads thus: 'The proclamation of the President of the United States, setting apart Thursday, the 1st of June, for a day of prayer and humiliation on account of the late national calamity, was observed in Raleigh by the African Methodist Episcopal Church, where there were religious services through the day, and a sermon in the evening upon the assassination of President. All the other churches remained closed.'

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday June 23, 1865.

RECONSTRUCTION OF STATES

Since the war has closed it becomes a question of expediency as well as of right how the rebellious States shall be brought into practical and fraternal relations with the Union. To a clearer view of the objects to be attained it is indispensable first to define the relative position of the rebellious sections as we find them at the close of the struggle. If upon examination we arrive at the conclusion that these States are now and always have been members of the Republic, having forfeited none of their constitutional right except that of slavery, which was lost to them through an exercise of the war power, it logically follows that their functions were lawfully assumed by State and legislative authority after the surrender of the confederate armies, that no Provisional Governor should be appointed to control the affairs of State, that the people without let or hindrance should be allowed to return to official positions such as have been foremost in aiding abetting and sympathizing with the rebelling, and that Congress will be compelled to accept as members of the national council from the rebellious States any persons who by the laws of such State are duly elected and accredited and who take the required oath, disregarding their avowed enmity to the Government and the rebellious and disloyal proclivities of their constituents. By this interpretation of the condition of things south, we have the same elements of treason and animosity to the Government which will stand unrebuked save by the military arm which dispersed the rebel forces. The power of the rebellion is at present crushed while the spirit of treason remains defiant under a recognition by the United States Government of State rights.

But were not these States both in theory, and practically out of the Union? Secession ordinances were adopted by the legislatures of the several States. Nearly all the fortifications within their limits belonging to the United States were captured. Custom houses were seized. Postal facilities were broken off, members of Congress resigned their seats. The entire power of the judiciary of the United States was fettered and banished, a new Government was erected whose functions were at once recognized by the seceding States, and no formula necessary to the complete establishment of a new Government was overlooked by the framers of the so called confederate States. Had the United States Government recognized the right of secession, what farther act would have been necessary to complete the dismemberment of the Union? The theory that a State cannot secede because it has no authority of law for so doing, is quite as untenable as to say that no man can commit a robbery because he is not justified in the law. To admit the fact of secession is not an acknowledgement of such a right, and as in a case of robbery it were well to admit the fact, pursue the offender, recover the property and punish the deed. We can hardly see how any vital point is yielded by admitting that the rebellious States are out of the Union. If not out, why the appointment of a Provisional Governor? Why the refusal to allow their legislatures to assemble? Why the calling of State constitutional conventions, and the imposing of conditions upon voters in establishing a new government? Certainly the relations now existing between the Government and rebel States are not identical with those held previous to the war, and until such States have been re-constructed and taken position with the States, bearing the same relation to each other and to the Government, they have no constitutional rights which the Government is bound to respect. This may be a sort of "Dred Scott" decision, but it is intended to savor more of equal rights than the famous opinions of Judge Tancy.

Upon this theory the re-organization of the rebel States must be confided to the national Government, which should adopt the surest means of bringing them into fraternal relations with the Union. The present relation is an anomaly in the history of nations, and no precedent is at hand for our guidance, therefore any policy which re-organizes the States upon the basis of a "Republican form of government," and unadulterated loyalty to the government, would meet the views of all lovers of the Union, harmony, and equal rights. In a nut shell, the negroes must vote, as through them only can the disloyal sentiment of the South be overcome.

ANNOUNCING CANDIDATES.

The propriety of announcing through the newspapers the names of such as desire to become candidates at the fall election, for State and county offices, was discussed and approved in the last issue of the Record, upon the ground that the merits and demerits of the parties announced, will be more thoroughly known, and wire-pullers thwarted in their schemes of forcing upon the people their favorite candidate, regardless of qualifications. This plan, as yet, has not been generally adopted in this State, and in other States we think it is rather the exception than the rule. That the qualifications and peculiar fitness of persons seeking a nomination or election should be known to those exercising the elective franchise is doubtless true, and none more readily than we, would seek to enlighten the public mind in reference to those elements in an office-seeker which make up a good office-holder. But will the mere announcement of the names of persons desiring to become candidates effect the purpose? An announcement of the name does not involve an expose of the merits or demerits of the party. These must be learned through other sources, and just here opens a field for sharpers and wire-pullers which promises just what the Record would avoid, namely, controling the conventions and forcing the nomination of incompetent persons by a few politicians. No man will object to the nomination of his friend if he is competent, though no effort would be made to accomplish that end for him. Were he publicly announced, however, as an aspirant, one political trickster having personal antipathies and being thus fore-armed, might by misrepresentation, defeat the best aspirant of the party. The people are not always informed on these matters, and are liable to be misled by just such men as the Record would exclude from the conventions. Therefore our system of nominating admits of no defined policy or rule upon the subject. It is optional with everybody who desires nominations for office to publicly announce the fact, and our columns are open to all aspirants, leaving them to judge of its expediency. If the Record, however, favors the plan, it will doubtless take the initiatory and "trot out" the Democratic nags. Sporting men could tell better after seeing them how much to bet on them.

—The New York Post says that John Mitchell, formerly of the Richmond Enquirer, was arrested in that city by detectives Kelsey and Elder, under direction of General Dix. This John Mitchell, after the fall of Richmond escapes the Government authorities and turns up in New York where he has been employed as editor of the New York Daily News. We should as soon think of taking vipers into our bosom as of allowing this man who has poured out for four years, the blackest venom of his traitorous heart upon the loyal men of New York, any thing more than a halter and room enough to swing in. The News has perpetrated the foulest of insults upon the people of that city who in return for the compliment should 'spew it out of their mouth.'

FRONTIER DEFENCES.

Letter from Captain T. M. Smith.

Editor Mankato Union:

Having noticed several communications in the papers in reference to the protection of the frontier settlements by soldiers stationed on the lines of stockades and others who have been occasionally sent on the frontier to patrol, and having myself been stationed on the frontier for the last fifteen months, I propose to investigate the matter and let the responsibility rest where it rightfully belongs. There is nothing I deprecate more than to screen parties in power who fail to faithfully discharge their duty and their whole duty, when the lives of helpless women and children are exposed to the merciless tomahawk of the savage, and no one to protect them. The question may be asked, where are the men? They are down South fighting rebels. Yes, whole neighborhoods left with scarcely an able bodied man in it. I have seen a dozen women living on the extreme frontier, their husbands and sons down South, and they left with little children from five to ten years old, looking to the soldiers on the frontier for protection, and living under the promise of protection till the savage enters their happy homes and butchers them.

The cry is raised against the soldiers on the frontier; but, so far as my experience goes, I think for the limited force on the lines of stockades, the soldiers have done the best they could. Having been stationed on the south line from Fort Ridgely to Fairmount, a distance of some seventy five miles, my company was stationed at seven different posts. I had eighty-eight non-commissioned officers and enlisted men. One of these men was detailed to drive team, one as Q. M. Sergeant. one as Commisary Sergeant, requiring all their time to supply clothing and rations on the line. This line had to be patroled to and from once a day. I took fourteen men, two at each post, to guard horses grazing on the prairie, for we did not get half rations of grain during the summer. Our horses were in poor condition when we received them, and scarcely fit for service. At the seven posts we had seven detailed as cooks, and four men were detailed by Lieut. Col. Pfaender as scouts, leaving at each post six and four sevenths of a man. Admitting all fit for duty, these men had to do police guard, and carry wood on their backs for they had no teams to do it with, cut and put up two hundred tons of hay, build three new stockades, and dig three wells. So you see we had but little time to look after Indians. There was not a man on the entire line that was justifiable in leaving his post to hunt Indians and protect government property. The truth is, we had no force to protect the frontier. We never have had any till after the people have been butchered by the savages, and the cry comes up from Macedonia for help. After the Indians have fled with their plunder then troops pour in from every direction. On the 11th day of August 1864, Indians made their appearance in the neighborhood of Vernon, butchered two men, wounded one boy, and stole ten horses. In two hours after I got the news I started with seven men from headquarters at Lake Hanska. I took a south-west direction about fifty miles from the scene of murder, west. In four hours after I started I discovered eight or ten Indians about two and a half miles off going in a westerly direction, I going south. I pursued them at full speed about fifteen miles, and overtook them at Lake Bingham. I dismounted and fired on them. They dodged our fire and then returned it, and hit one of our horses. Another bullet struck the canteen of one of the men, when we mounted and tried to flank them. They disappeared behind the bank of the Lake which was surrounded with brush, and were so completely hid we could not see them.

I held them till a quarter past nine at night, and sent one of my men back to hurry up reinforcements. He arrived at Watonwan station sometime in the fore part of the night, found Lieut. Colonel Pfeander there, and there he remained till the next day about one o'clock P. M. On my return I found him with some seventy or eighty soldiers laying in the shade some twelve or fifteen miles from where he had been informed on the previous night of the situation of affairs.

Your readers will recollect that after the massacre he placed troops on the line in order to pacify the people. On the 7th day of May eight or ten Indians made their appearance in the neighborhood of Garden City, and murdered, in the most brutal manner, the Jewett family. It was a cold-blooded murder, and who is responsible for it, I ask? Is Capt. Bonham and his men? He had thirty serviceable horses all told. He was hauling the stolen lumber from the old stockades out west from fifteen to twenty miles. I want it distinctly understood that Capt. Bonham did not steal the lumber. Those who first built the stockades had to steal or do without. I know some of my company had to steal lumber or lay out doors. We tried to get something to cover our shanties with, but never could get a foot. The stockade at my headquarters was covered with dirt. Every time it rained I had to pack out bushels of dirt. Capt. Bonham had a line to defend from Red Wood Falls to Spirit Lake, a distance of about sixty miles, with thirty good horses. I ask what could be expected of him, with his men scattered, some at the old stockades, some at the new ones, some on the prairie going to and from the stockades. I think he did his duty and did it well to protect the government property in his charge, without going after Indians. We had nine companies of Cavalry this side of Fort Wadsworth. Where were they? Self-protection is the first law of nature. We were well protected at Fort Ridgely. Co. F, 2nd Cavalry, had eighty-five men for duty, with seventy six good horses, and other equipments. Co. A. had some fifty horses, and a man for each, well armed and equipped for any emergency. The 2d Connecticut Cavalry and unassigned men, the 1st U. S. Vol., 75 men, the 3rd Minn. Battery, with 100 men, with nine pieces of artillery, and plenty of ball and shell, were laying about the Fort. There were about 400 in all, living on the fat of the land, till the messenger on his panting steed announced death on the frontier, then, as usual, a great muss made, calling men to go after Indians, and everything in confusion. After the people are murdered then plenty of troops from Forts Ridgely and Snelling are placed on the frontier.

I leave the matter with your readers to judge whether Lieut. Col. Pfaender is responsible for the massacre or not. I think he is chargeable with a gross dereliction of a plain military duty in keeping the forts crowded with troops while the frontier is so destitute of protection.

T. M. SMITH,
Former Capt. Co. F, 2nd Reg't Minn. Cav.

NINETEEN MONTHS IN REBEL PRISONS.

MANKATO, June 21st 1865.

Editor Mankato Union:

At the solicitation of friends in Mankato, I have consented to make a statement of facts concerning my confinement in Southern prisons for a term of nineteen months which you are at liberty to publish. Two days before the battle of Chickamauga I was detailed to assist the surgeons who were in charge of our hospital of sick and wounded men. Two days later through the misfortunes of war our hospital was found to be between and exposed to the fires of both armies.

Many of the convalescents of the hospital fled, as well as many who were in charge of them, and had I been recreant to duty and followed their example, doubtless my experience as a prisoner need never have been written. Remaining at my post with the surgeons, in charge of our helpless soldiers, and the battle raging fiercely against us, we were taken prisoners on the 21st day of Sept. A. D. 1863. Before being removed from field hospital we began to realize our future destiny as the rations of four days were hardly sufficient for one man a single day. Our only relief was a neighboring corn-field, mostly destroyed by cavalry, from which we gathered a few ears, pounding them up and making mush for myself and serving it to wounded men of Co. H. who received it with marks of gratitude.

While remaining here nearly the whole rebel force passed by giving us a good opportunity to judge of its strength. Many have thought that the North might easily have crushed the rebel forces sooner than they did, but such persons had but little idea of the strength and iron will of the southern people, nor the magnitude of the country to be subdued. We left the hospital at about 4 o'clock P. M. on foot for the nearest railroad station, some six days after the battle. At this time our dead had not been buried, and the odor of decaying bodies both of man and beast was most loathsome. At ten o'clock we arrived at the depot tired and hungry remaining until morning when we took the cars for Atlanta. All this time and until we arrived at Atlanta more than three days, nothing was to be had to eat except what was bought from the citizens, while many had nothing to buy with. At Atlanta corn meal was issued with a little bacon, and here I was first initiated into the mush and corn bread diet. The meal was mixed with cob and dirt, and bad water and but little salt completed the compound. Our men were here relieved of their valuables, rebel soldiers would call us d—d Lincolnites, and abolitionists, and apply to us the most abusive and vulgar epithets. They would thrust their hands into our pockets taking what they found, and the least resistance was met by a loaded gun at our breasts. On the route to Richmond while passing a bridge, about fifty women collected, throwing stones and sticks of wood at us, and uttering the most vulgar and abusing language. It was truly a disgusting spectacle. Fatigued, we arrived at Richmond emerging from filthy box cars where 80 to 100 were stowed away in each car. Rebel officers here demanded our money saying that our money would be taken and to us returned when we were liberated; In case of resistance we were to be searched and the money confiscated. From 370 men they received not less than $10,000 which of course, was never returned. Three hundred and seventy one of us were driven into a tobacco house 50 by 150 in size. The reader can easily imagine what close confinement we were subjected to. Here the horrors of prison life commenced. Rations were scanty, soldiers discouraged and dissatisfied causing disturbance among themselves and confusion without end. We lay crowded on the floor at night, and constantly trampled upon by the crowd. I made up my mind that if hell spoken of in the scriptures was any worse than this it was truly a fearful punishment. At least I should rather be excused from such torment, nevertheless, a certain person in this community rejoiced that I was made to suffer thus. In less than a month 100 including myself were taken with small pox and sent to the hospital, of these only one out of five survived, simply on account of ill treatment. Upon recovering I was removed to Pemberton's tobacco house remaining until Feb, 25th 1864. Having a vigorous appetite, and very scanty rations, starvation seemed staring me in the face, and contemplating the horrible thought I sat my wits to work to relieve my condition. With 60 cents and through the assistance of the guard I procured some salt which I sold to the boys for $1,80. From this time Providence permitting I thought I could live through it, and in a short time I accumulated $20,00 by similar speculations.

There was always some money among the soldiers which escaped the search of the rebel officers, Sanitary stores sent from the north were frequently appropriated by the rebels especially such as wines, fruits and other delicacies. Not one in fifty ever received shoes, though an abundance were sent to them, and this was the case with clothing. The provisions sent to us did not benefit us because when issued, rebel rations were withdrawn. Mr. Fairbanks a prisoner, paroled to issue sanitary stores, says that the wines and canned fruits never reached the hospitals, but were taken by the rebs when they wanted a "merry time."

Feb. 25th we arrived at Andersonville, the stockade being not quite finished. Here we had no shelter from sun, heat, rain, dew, and cold. The first week we witnessed the most deplorable and heart rending scenes imaginable. A train of cars arrived at night with 1000 sick prisoners many of whom were unable to walk, they were dumped on to the bare sand, many having no blankets, hats, shoes, or coats, and some nothing sufficient to cover their nakedness. A cold driveling rain was falling, the themometor being at 5 degrees below freezing, at night while at midday the sun would be very hot. In three weeks, more than half of these pitiable objects were in their graves. These deaths are attributable to exposure and insufficient and improper food. The condition of the sick was slightly improved by the use of tents but even then they were obliged to lay on the sand. Prisoners were constantly coming in until we numbered over 32,000, and the daily mortality had reached 122. No contagion being among them, starvation and exposure did its work. Only hopeless cases were admitted to the hospitals, and many were daily dying within the stockade. But little medicine was given and this only at sick call when the crowd was so great that the most feeble were unable to reach the surgeon, and many fell dead in the crowd. from weakness and suffocation. A whole day would be spent surging too and fro in the crowd and toiling for a hearing with the doctor. It fell to my lot to carry many helpless men to sick call, who, before reaching the surgeon, would be dead in the blanket in which they were carried.

Hundreds would lay for weeks unsheltered from the weather, and die unattended by any one. Many having sores would become fly blowed and half eaten by maggots before death came to their relief. The prisoners were greatly demoralized and hardened, each caring for no one but himself. Many, even when well, would be disheartened, and resolve to die, and they generally would.

Fuel was so scarce that little cooking could be done. When a corpse was to be carried out of the prison, two or three dollars would be paid for the opportunity, as this would afford a chance for bringing in wood, which could be sold at a profit. The main street in the prison was named Wall street because it was constantly thronged with gamblers, suttlers, theives, black-legs, speculators, buyers and spectators. Theives and robbers became so bold that we were obliged to hang six of them in order to preserve order. About 14,000 of our soldiers are buried in a grave yard which is surveyed in blocks and streets, each grave having a head board with the name, Co. and Reg. inscribed.

The prison encloses 25 acres 5 five of which, nearly in the centre are low and swampy. This swamp was the only place for the deposit of the offal and dirt of 32,000 persons. At times the filth created a most offensive and sickening stench. A stream of water passed into the prison at one side and flowed into this swamp. Where the water entered, might always be seen a crowd pressing for water, until some one would be pushed over the dead line and shot by the guard. This was of frequent occurrence.

In Sept. a portion of us were moved to Savannah, and from thence to Lauden. In December we were moved to Blackshire near the Florida line, thence to Thomasville near the Alabama line, and in Jan. we were marched sixty miles back to Andersonville. The suffering on this march was intense. Many were very feeble, and without food or shoes. Officers would force them on with bayonets until they staggered by the way side unable to rise, when they would be left to starve or be dumped into a wagon as so much inanimate baggage.

We were moved from place to place in order to avoid capture by our forces, which were very near by. Previous to leaving Andersonville in September we had learned from rebel papers that a general change had been affected, and when ordered out of the stockade all were buoyant with the hope of soon seeing the old flag. Being drawn up in line outside the stockade Gen. Winder ordered all sick and weakly persons to fall out of the ranks and go back, saying that our Government would not exchange sick or dead men, but that they wanted fighting men. This disappointment was a death knell for all such as were unable to walk to the cars, and many returned to the prison, the last ray of hope having disappeared in the night watches of death. Many strived to reach the cars, but turned again to battle with starvation and disease, and ending their days mid the enemies of humanity and their country. One wealthy old gentleman of East Tennessee, sixty five years of age had been imprisoned more than 30 months in rebel dungeons simply for expressing union sentiments. We became intimatly acquainted, but at our second arrival at Andersonville he died from exhaustion.

But to return. About the 25th of March 1865 an arrangement was made to pass a portion of us through the Union lines to be fed by our Government. The point designated was Camp Fisk at Vicksburg. Accordingly it was announced by the rebel prison keepers that those who would pay the most should be sent first. A portion of each train was made up of sick and paroled men who paid nothing, but all others were compelled to pay over what they had as the price of liberty. Some paid as high as $20. This amount being more than I had, I was obliged to wait until the third train, when I paid little more than five dollars to get away. We were clothed at camp Fisk by the Government, while the sanitary commissions feted us with all the delicacies of their stores. The Minnesota "boys" were paroled and sent to Benton Barracks where they received commutation money, obtained a furlough and went home.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhoea or seminal weakness Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity; Impediments to Marriage, etc, also, Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.

The celebrated author in this admirable essay clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife—pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

UNITED STATES ASSESSOR'S OFFICE,
FIRST COLLECTION DISTRICT, MINN.
Rochester, June 15th, 1865.

NOTICE is hereby given that the lists of all taxes assessed under the Excise Tax Law of the United States, for the Annual List of 1865, within Division No. 16, comprising Blue Earth Watonwan, Brown, Renville, Cottonwood, Murray, Redwood and Rock counties, will be open for the inspection of all parties concerned for the space of ten days from this date at the office of William Reid, Esq., Assistant Assessor in the village of Mankato.

Further notice is hereby given that I will be at said office on the 5th day of July, A. D. 1865 for the purpose of hearing all appeals which shall be made, as provided under Sec. 19, amended Act of March 3, 1865, of the Excise Tax Law of the United States.

NOTICE TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
LAND OFFICE, ST. PAUL, June 21. 1865

NOTICE is hereby given that instructions, with proper blanks, have been forwarded to the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of each of the several Townships in this State, to give ten days' public notice, in at least three different localities, stating the place, day and hour of sale, and to sell to the highest bidder the right to cut the grass now growing upon all unsold and unoccupied School and Swamp Lands in their respective Townships.

Persons desirous of obtaining permits for cutting grass on State lands must avail themselves of this opportunity, this being the only method of procuring such rights. The notices should be given and the sales conducted in as public a manner as possible. In case the instructions and blanks fail to reach their proper destinations in time for such sales, said officers are authorized to act from this notice, applying immediately to this office for special instructions and blanks.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

THIRD SERIES.

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum, to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent	per day on a	$50 note.
Two cents	" " "	$100 "
Ten	" " "	$500 "
20	" " "	$1000 "
$1	" " "	$5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

New Ulm Mail—Leaves on Tuesdays at 8 A. M., and arrives Wednesdays at P. M.

RAIN AND WIND.—On Friday last this section was visited with a wind and rain storm unparalleled for its severity and destruction of property. Small shanties suffered indiscriminately while larger buildings were more or less injured.

The walls of a fine two story brick building just erected by Mr. Wampler of Mankato, were blown down to the chamber floor, the ruins falling upon the house in which he lives. The damage is estimated at $250 of which sum $180 have been made up to him by the members of the Masonic lodge.

Across the river in Nicollet County fences were blown entirely away for a distance of half a mile, not a vestige remaining. The upper story of Henry Johnson's log house was blown away, and but for the weight of wheat and corn below the entire building would have been destroyed. The school house in the town of Granby near Swan Lake was completely torn to pieces. The roof of Dunham's grist-mill was also blown off. The roads leading into Mankato were lined with trunks and branches of trees which had been twisted into fragments, and had so blockaded the roads that the stages were more than six hours behind time. Rain accompanied the wind to such an extent that all fears regarding a drouth are banished and the most pleasing prospects for good crops are now presented to our farmers. Last Sunday morning it rained copiously, and hopes were entertained of a slight rise in the river. We believe, however, that the ground absorbed the most of it.

FROM MONTANA.—On Wednesday of this week eight men arrived in town from the territory of Montana via Fort Benton and Sioux City. We learned the names of four of them which are H. Bruce, S. Smith, W. Scott and R. Irvin.

They had been mining at Helena a small mining town 140 miles south-west of Fort Benton, and returning by the Fort took steamer for Sioux City. They report that the steamer was fired into by Indians but no damage done. They were eleven days at Sioux City and five from there to Mankato. They exhibited some fine specimens of gold, and it is reported that they brought with them $11,000 of the precious metal. They started out last year with the Tom. Holmes expedition, but the company parted in a family gale, and these men took a northern route by Fort Benton and Milk River. They represent the country as being more desirable than they anticipated, in point of agriculture as well as mining, though they manifest ted no disposition to return thither.

They designate the frontier as being the most feasible starting point to the territory and call it seven hundred miles by a direct route.

NEW POST OFFICE.—Mr. C. H. Slocum, who recently forwarded a petition for a post office at Linden, in the county of Brown, has just received the following communication:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE, June 12th, 1865

SIR: An application for the establishment of a post office at Linden, in the county of Brown, State of Minnesota, transmitted by you, has been received at this office, and the usual letter of interrogaties, as to locality, the Post Office it is nearest to, the number of families within two miles, &c., sent to Andrew Strom, (the person recommended as Postmaster,) to the care of the Postmaster at South Bend, Minn. As soon as they are answered and returned, the case will be prepared for the action of the Postmaster General, and you informed of his decision in the case.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
ALEX. W. RANDALL.
First Assistant Postmaster General.
To C. H. SLOCUM, Mankato.

LARGE TRADE.—In the past week Mr. J. J. Shaubhut, who is only one of quite a number who are doing a warehouse business in this place, has received from below nearly fifty wagon loads of goods which are not unpacked here, but are purchased for the trade west and south of Mankato. It is astonishing to see the immense stores of merchandise which are needed to supply the demands of the people living on and settling the Winnebago Reservation. Indeed, the merchandise does not all pass through this place, for, since the steamboats have been hauled off large quantities of goods are unloaded at Hastings, and teamed direct to Winnebago and Blue Earth cities.

ASSOCIATION.—To those interested in Sabbath school instruction we refer the notice of the State Sabbath School Association which is to be found on the fourth page. Delegations from all evangelical denominations are specially invited to attend the annual meeting which convenes at Lake City, on Tuesday, the 18th of July next. Arrangements for a reduction of fare have been made, rendering it possible for a full delegation to go from this place. We earnestly hope that the Sabbath Schools of this place will be represented in the counsels of this assembly.

TOO MUCH BUSINESS.—Messrs. Bierbauer & Rockey, who own a grist and saw mill in lower town, having more business than they can attend to, offer for sale their saw mill together with lath and shingle mills, all of which are in good running order. They have logs on hand sufficient to stock the mill until next winter. As lumber is selling at from twenty to thirty dollars per thousand, a good opportunity is afforded for some one to commence business with the chances of success greatly in his favor.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—The July number of this magazine opens with an engraving appropriate to the season, called "On the Cliff." It is a fine specimen of art, consisting of two lovers enjoying the repose and freshness of the seashore —and reminds one of the calm sea beach of the Pacific shores. The double fashion plate is quite brilliant, while the literature for the month is quite varied and interesting.

—KILLED BY A REBEL.—We are informed that Lieut. Martin N. Slocum of the 7th Minnesota Volunteers, was killed at Baton Rouge by a paroled rebel, about the first of this month. The Lieut. was a cousin of C. H. Slocum Esq late proprietor of the UNION, and was stationed at Mankato during the Indian trials of 1862. The particulars of his death are not yet known. He leaves a wife and one child to mourn his untimely death, who now resides at Northfield in this State.

VILLAGE REGULATIONS.—At a late meeting of the Board of Village Trustees the rate of license for shows, exhibition, concerts &c. was fixed to range between $3 and $50, at the discretion of the President. Ten dollars was the sum fixed upon for saloons, and four dollars for bowling alleys or billiard tables, and three for other gaming tables.

N. C. Conner was appointed pound master. He is authorized to charge 15 cents for receiving and discharging any animal from the pound, 50 cents for each twenty four hours such animal is kept and 25 cents for assistance in driving the animal. No animal is allowed to run at large upon penalty of a fine of 50 cents.

CHANGE OF FIRM.—The long standing firm of White & Marks was this week dissolved by Mr. Marks purchasing the interest of his partner. These gentlemen have been in business for over seventeen years, and it is the oldest firm in the State. They have never kept any books of account between them, and have never given utterance to an unkind word in their business relations. This is more than can be said of any other firm in the country. We wish Mr. Marks and his late partner unbounded success.

ANXIOUS.—Some of our friends are anxious to know how the large building which is expected in from West Mankato, can be accommodated on account of its extreme "breadth." One proposes that it be set on end after the New York fashion. By consulting Blackstone it is found that the title to land reaches downward as well as upward, and it is therefore thought advisable to end up the building, and sink it so as to bring either extremity equi-distant from the surface.

MUSIC.—Prince's Organs and Melodeons, which stand unrivaled for their quality of tone, cheapness and durability, can be had of Mr. C. H. Slocum at Chicago prices, with freight added. Also a supply of Bertini's and Root & Cady's Instruction books, and a new selection of sheet music will be received next week. Those desiring anything in this line will do well to call upon Mr. Slocum at this office, where he may be found, and his stock examined.

COLISEUM.—By flaming bills posted on the street, we notice that our citizens are to be treated to some fun to-morrow afternoon and evening. Holland & Madden's Coliseum exhibiting here at that time. Our exchanges speak in favorable terms of their performances, and if it proves to be less a humbug than Yankee Robinson our citizens will be satisfied.

"WELL, Mr. B. how is this? Been to the city I should calculate!"

"Yes, sir! I just have, and the city of Mankato at that."

"Did not get that style at Mankato, I reckon."

"I just did. That's from Randall & Smith's. They have a splendid lot of clothing, and between you and me, you may bet high that you do not find a better place to buy.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.—Who would'nt be a Mankato editor? Our black republican friend Wilson, who is'nt half so green as his peas, and knows how to appreciate a free government and a republican paper, presents our best looking half with a peck of splendid green peas, which we propose to have prepared in cream, and eaten to the health of the donor.

EXCELLENT FLOUR.—We are in receipt of a sample of flour manufactured at the mills of Capwell and Quayle of Garden City. We (that means Mrs. Griswold) have tried it, and our authority for it it is a little the best flour we have seen in the State. We wish people to understand that we are not paid for this puff, but that the merit of the article demands that public attention be called to it. We understand that these gentlemen will keep their flour on sale in this city.

OUR good natured friend W. K. Morris, has set himself up in the dray business, and informs the public in another column that he is prepared to fill orders for teaming at short notice. Wyllys' dray is decidedly a public benefit, and does away with all further use for wheelbarrows.

NEW MILLINERY GOODS.—Mrs. Oglesby has just received a fresh lot of bonnets, ribbons and flowers, of beautiful styles, to which she calls the attention of customers.

THE Methodist Mite Society will meet in City Hall next Wednesday evening at the usual hour. All are cordially invited to attend.

BOUQUET.—Our thanks are due to Mrs D. H. Tyner for a magnificent bouquet presented to us last Friday. We trust this may be initiatory of a better acquaintance.

STRAWBERRIES.—Large, luscious ripe strawberries have made their appearance in market and are eagerly sought for even at exorbitant prices.

FOUND.—A gold sleeve button. The same can be had by applying at this office, and producing its mate as proof of property.

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Wm. Long, of Garden City, sold to Mr. Davis, of Berlin, Wisconsin, a quarter section of improved land for $2150.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD
AGAIN RE-OPENED!

THIS GREAT NATIONAL THOROUGHFARE is again open for

Freghts and Travel.

The Cars and Machinery destroyed are being replaced by New Running Stock, with all recent improvements; and as the bridges and Tracks are again in substantial Condition, the well-earned reputation of this Road for Speed, Security and Comfort, will be more than sustained under the re-organization of its business.

In addition to the unequalled attractions of natural scenery heretofore conceded to this route, the recent troubles upon the border have associated numerous points on the road between the Ohio River and Harper's Ferry, with painful but instructive interest.

CONNECTIONS

At the Ohio River, with Cleveland and Pittsburg, Central Ohio, and Marietta and Cincinnati Railroads; and, through them with the whole Railway System of the Northwest, Central West and Southwest. At Harper's Ferry with the Winchester Road. At Washington, Junction, with the Washington Branch for Washington City and the Lower Potomac. THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows, and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated.

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instrumetsn constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.

Caution to purchasers.

All our instruments have upon the name board, in full, "GEO. A. PRINCE & Co." When a dealer represents any other instrument as "the same as ours," it is usually a mere attempt to sell an inferior inferior instrument, on which he can make a large profit.

MINNESOTA STATE SABBATH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The Seventh Annual Session of the Association will be held at the Congregational Church at Lake City, commencing on Tuesday, the 18th day of July, 1865, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

This time has been fixed upon by the Central Committee, after consulting with brethren active in the cause, in the hope of thereby securing a full representation from all portions of the State.

The growing importance of Sabbath School instruction demands a co operative work by all evangelical denominations of Christians; and it is exceedingly desirable that at our coming session there will be full reports from our whole field, and free discussion upon practical points.

It would be well for those designing to attend to prepare, from their own experience, brief synopses of difficulties met, and of successful plans adopted to overcome them.

A collection to defray expenses is requested rom Sabbath Schools of the State, to be forwarded by delegates to the convention.

Arrangements have been made with regard to fare as follows:

By steamboat (either La Crosse or Dunleith line) full fare to the convention will entitle delegates to a free return on presentation of certificate of attendance signed by the President of the Association. It will not be necessary to go and return by the same line.

Same arrangements by Minnesota river boats.

By Burbank & Co.'s Stage Line, two thirds fare—tickets for going and returning to be purchased in advance.

Friends of Sabbath Schools in Minnesota remember your State Convention, and let our next session be an era in our work.

St. Paul, Minn. May 25, 1865.

Jeff. Davis and C. C. Clay.

The Fortress Monroe correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, says:

We have the arch rebel still among us, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. He has not stirred out of his casement since the day he was first immured within its thick stone walls. He has not taken a single excursion up the Potomac since his incarceration, either on gunboat or monitor. In fact, Jeff is closely guarded; twenty six armed men stand guard over him night and day. Two soldiers with loaded and bayoneted muskets pace incessantly to and fro in his cell. These dungeon sentries walk in opposite directions to each other, to and fro across the cell. The prisoner is always under the eyes of one of them. A commissioned officer, too, continually keeps watch and ward within the cell.

Since the removal of the irons Jeff. takes his confinement more resignedly. He is socially disposed, and is ever opening conversations, which cannot be kept up, as the officers are not allowed to talk to him. There is neither chair nor table in his cell. Nor books nor papers are allowed, neither pen, ink, pencil nor paper. There are exceptions in the way of books. Two volumes are allowed the prisoners, the Bible and Book of Common Prayer. These two are certainly the two books of all others most needed by Jefferson Davis.

CLEMENT C. CLAY

Bears his confinement with the same dignified philosophy as at its commencement. He occasionally expresses concern for Mrs. Clay. Clay is an inveterate smoker, tobacco is furnished him, and the most of his waking hours are occupied in puffing the soothing weed. His food is the regular army ration, of which he partakes but sparingly. His cell is as barely furnished as is that of his chief in crime. The only books permitted him are the Bible and Prayer Book. Writing materials and the newspapers are rigidly excluded.

A Just Decision.

The commissioner of internal revenue has written a letter to the collector of the first district of Illinois, deciding that highwines which had evaded the revenue duties were liable to seizure, though, in the hands of purchasers, who had obtained them innocently and in good faith. The Chicago Times objects to this decision. It is, however, not only a necessary decision, but a just one; being based on the same principle that warrants the owner of stolen property to recover it, wherever he finds it. The commissioner takes the ground that the distiller has no clear title to the article until the tax is paid. Until then it substantially belongs to the government, and having no title he can convey none, and hence purchasers have bought of those who did not own what they sold and no authority to sell it. The case, seems to us as clear as that real estate taxed, is liable to the tax, into whosever hands it may pass.

COMING TO IT.—The New Orleans Delta relates that a social party was given in Mobile, a few evenings since, to which were invited a number of both Union and Confederate officers. In the early part of the evening, an evident restraint hung over the assemblage, and anything but a pleasant time was in prospect. At last the brave rebel Colonel———, of the——— Alabama, proposed a song, and upon being pressed to start one, he broke forth in that stirring national air. 'The Star Spangled Banner.' After a few moments of blank astonishment, the whole party, Union and rebel, joined in, and the utmost good feeling and joviality prevailed from that time forth until the breaking of day warned the merry company to disperse to their separate abodes. The good fruits that may spring from this little incident are incalculable.

Brig. Gen. Robert Allen, senior Quartermaster in the Valley of the Mississippi, has been promoted by the President to Major General by Brevet.

HELMBOLD'S
GENUINE
PREPARATIONS.

"HIGHLY CONCENTRATED" COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

A positive and Specific Remedy for diseases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Gravel and Dropsical Swellings.

This Medicine increases the powers of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the matter of calcareous depositions, and all unnatural enlargements are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation, and is good for men, women and children.

H

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, attended with the following Symptoms:

Indisposition to Exertion,	Loss of Power,
Loss of Memory,	Difficulty of Breathing,
Weak Nerves,	Trembling,
Horror of Disease,	Wakefulness,
Dimness of Vision,	Pain in the Back,
Hot Hands,	Flushing of the Body,
Dryness of the Skin,	Eruptions of the Face,
Universal Lassitude,	Pallid Countenance,

Muscular System.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on (which this Medicine invariably removes), soon follow—

FATUITY, EPILEPTIC FITS, &c.,

in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases,"

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.

The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most sceptical.

E

In many affections peculiar to Females, the EXTRACT BUCHU is unequaled by any other remedy, and for all complaints incident to the sex, or in the

DECLINE OR CHANGE OF LIFE,

☞ SEE SYMPTOMS ABOVE.

☞ No Family should be without it.

L

Take no Balsam, Mercury, or unpleasant medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

AND

IMPROVED ROSE WASH

Cures Secret Diseases

In all their stages little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience, and NO EXPOSURE.

M

USE HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For all affections and diseases of these organs, whether EXISTING IN MALE OR FEMALE,

From whatever cause originating, and no matter how long standing. Diseases of these organs require the aid of a diuretic.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Is the Great Diuretic.

And it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.

B

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
Helmbold's
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas, and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin,

AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

NOT A FEW

of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the Blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now, for the first time the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.

Two tablespoonsful of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

O

HELMBOLD'S ROSE WASH,

An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having Fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.

L

My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier; my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.

Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:

See Dispensatory of the United States.

See Professor Dewees' valuable works on the Practice of Physic.

See remarks made by the celebrated Dr. Physic, Phila.

See remarks made by Dr. Ephraim McDowell, a celebrated Physician and Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, and published in the Transactions of the King and Queen's Journal.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!
SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

A healthy tonic, gentle stimulant and unequalled morning appetizer. Prepared in ripe old Bourbon. Being now used to the exclusion of all other Bitters in more than fifty United States Army Hospitals, and millions of private families, and is the only popular medicine which has been especially exempted from stamp tax by the U. S. government, on the ground of its having been adopted as a standard remedy by the medical profession.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ They are made of ingredients well known and approved by the medical profession, as having powerful tonic properties, are both palatable and pleasant, with sufficient strengthening properties to correct the bilious derangement of the system and act like a charm when taken according to direction, as a remedy for the following diseases;—Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Liver Affections, Jaundice. Loss of Appetite, Lowness of Spirit, Sallow Complexion.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

FOR

Headache, Costiveness, and kindred diseases, arising from a disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver or Bowels. Let every one try these agreeable Bitters; once tried and used, they will recommend them with confidence to all others who are in need of a wholesome, agreeable and effectual tonic. The rapidly increasing demand for these Bitters has induced me to give them publicity; so that thousands who have not used them, may try them and be convinced of their efficacy.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ Ladies who have tried and found most other "Stomach Bitters" too bitter, unpalatable and too highly medicated for their delicate taste, please give these a trial, and you will not be without them. They will give tone to the stomach, and strength to the whole system. If your druggist or tradesman has not got these Bitters have him send for him. Remember the name and take no other.

SWAIN'S BOURBON BITTERS!

☞ The composition of Dr. Swain's Bitters, having been made public through the columns of Medical journals, and having been adopted as a standard remedy by the Medical Profession are by the decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, EXEMPT FROM STAMP DUTY.

GROVESTEEN & CO.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS,
499 Broadway, New York.

THE attention of the Public and the trade is invited to our NEW SCALE 7 OCTAVE ROSEWOOD PIANO FORTES, which for volume and purity of tone are unrivalled by any hitherto offered in this market. They contain all the modern improvements, French, Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Iron Frame, Over Strung Bass, &c., and each instrument being made under the personal supervision of Mr. J. H. Grovesteen, who has had a practical experience of over thirty years in their manufacture, is fully warranted in every particular.

The "Grovesteen Piano Fortes" received the highest award of merit over all others at the Celebrated World's Fair.

Where were exhibited instruments from the best makers of London, Paris, Germany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, and New York; and also at the American Institute for five successive years, the gold and silver medals from both of which can be seen at our ware-room

By the introduction of improvements we make a still more perfect Piano Forte, and by manufacturing largely, with a strictly cash system, are enabled to offer these instruments at a price which will preclude all competition.

MARRIAGE GUIDE.—Young's Great Physiological Work, or, Every one his own Doctor, being a private instructor for married persons or those about to marry, both male and female. In everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production or prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by Wm. Young M. D. This is a really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with upwards of one hundred engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with. Still it is a book that must be locked up, and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any one on the receipt of 25 cts. Address DR. They are Coming from the War.

BY EUGENE H. MUNDAY.

They are coming from the wars,
They are bringing home their scars,
They are bringing back the old flag, too, in glory:
They have battled long and well
And let after ages tell
How they won the proudest name in song or story!
They have broken up their camps;
They are laughing o'er their tramps;
They are joking with the girls—who flock around them,
They have left the scanty fare
They have left [illegible] air,
They have dashed to earth the prison walls that bound them.
And they're coming from the wars,
They are bringing home their scars,
They are bringing back the old flag, too, in glory:
They have battled long and well
And let after ages tell
How they won the proudest name in song or story!

We are eager with our thanks,
We are pressing on their ranks,
We [illegible] hands that held the States unbroken,
Yet we sadly think of those
Who are sleeping with their foes,
And our trembling tongues give welcomes sadly spoken.
But the long delay is past,
They have brought us peace at last,
And how proudly through our veins the blood bounding
As we bless our honored dead,
While the steady martial tread
Of returning veterans in our ears is sounding,
Yes, they're coming from the wars,
They are bringing home their scars,
They are bringing back the old flag, too, in glory;
They have battled long and well,
And let after ages tell
How they won the proudest name in song or story!

Thrilling Developments.

THE CHICAGO CONSPIRACY.

From the Atlantic Monthly for July.

On the eve of the last general election the country was startled by the publication of a report from the Judge Advocate of the United States, disclosing the existence of a wide-spread conspiracy at the West, which had for its object the overthrow of the Union. The conspiracy, the report stated, had a military organization, with a commander-in-chief, General and subordinate officers, and 500,000 enrolled members, all bound to a blind obedience to the orders of their superiors, and pledged to 'take up arms against any Government found waging war against a people endeavoring to establish a Government of their own choice."

The organization, it was said, was in every way hostile to the Union, and friendly to the so called Confederacy; and its ultimate objects were "a general rising in Missouri," and a similar "rising in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Kentucky in co-operation with a rebel force which was to invade the last named State."

Startling and incredible as the report seemed, it told nothing but the truth, and it did not tell the whole truth. It omitted to state that the organization was planned in Richmond; that its operations were directed by Jacob Thompson, who was in Canada for that purpose; and that wholesale robbery, arson and midnight assassination were among its designs.

The point marked out for the first attack was Camp Douglas, at Chicago. The 8,000 rebel soldiers confined there, being liberated and armed, were to be joined by the Canadian refugees and Missouri "butte nuts" engaged in their release, and the 5,000 and more members of the treasonable order resident in Chicago. This force, of nearly 20,000 men, would be a nucleus about which the conspirators in other parts of Illinois could gather; and, being joined by the prisoners liberated from other camps and members of the order from other States would form an army a hundred thousand strong. So fully had everything been foreseen and provided for, that the leaders expected to gather and organize this vast body of men within the space of a fortnight! The United States could bring into the field no force capable of withstanding the progress of such an army. The consequences would be that the whole character of the war would be changed—its theater would be shifted from the border to the heart of the Free States; and Southern independence, and the beginning at the North of that process of disintegration so confidently counted on by the rebel leaders at the outbreak of hostilities, would have followed.

What saved the nation from being drawn into this whirlpool of ruin? Nothing but the cool brain, sleepless vigilance and wonderful sagacity of one man—a young officer never read of in the newspapers—removed from field duty because of disability, but commissioned I verily believe, by Providence itself to ferret out and foil this deeper-laid, wider-spread, and more diabolical conspiracy than any that darkens the page of history. Other men—and women, too—were instrumental in dragging the dark iniquity to light; but they failed to fathom its full enormity, and to discover its point of outbreak. He did that; and he throttled the tiger when about to spring, and so deserves the lasting gratitude of his country. How he did it I propose to tell in this paper. It is a marvellous tale: it will read more like romance than history, but, calling to mind what a good man once said to me, "Write the truth, let people doubt if they will," I shall narrate the facts.

There is nothing remarkable in the appearance of this young man. Nearly six feet high, he has an erect, military carriage, a frank manly face, and looks every inch a soldier—such a soldier as would stand up all day in a square hand to hand fight with an open enemy; but the keenest eye would detect in him no indication of the crafty genius which delights to follow the windings of wickedness when burrowing in the dark. But if not a Fouche or a Vidocq, he certainly is an able man; for, in a section where able men are as plenty as apple-blossoms in June, he was chosen to represent his district in the State Senate, and entering the army a subaltern officer, rose, before the battle of Perryville, to the command of a regiment. At that battle a rebel bullet entered his shoulder, and crushed the bones of his right elbow. This disabled him for field duty and so it came about that he assumed the light blue of the veterans, and on the second day of May, 1864, succeeded Gen. Orme in command of the military post at Chicago.

When fairly settled in the low-roofed shanty which stands a sort of mute sentry, over the front gateway of Camp Douglas, the new commandant, as was natural, looked about him. He found the camp—about 60 acres of flat, sandy soil, inclosed by a tight board fence, an inch thick, and 14 feet high—had a garrison of but regiments of veteran reserves, numbering, all told, only 700 men fit for duty. This small force was guarding 8,000 rebel prisoners, one-third of whom were Texas rangers, and guerrillas who had served under Morgan wild, reckless characters, fonder of a fight than of a dinner, and ready for any enterprise, however desperate, that held out the smallest prospect of freedom. To add to the seeming insecurity, nearly every office in the camp was filled with these prisoners. They served out rations and distributed clothing to their comrades, dealt out ammunition to the guards, and even kept the records in the quarters of the Commandant. In fact, the prison was in charge of the prisoners, not the prisoners in charge of the prison. This state of things underwent a sudden change. With the exception of a very few, whose characters recommended them to peculiar confidence, all were at once placed where they belonged—on the inner side of the prison fence.

A post-office was connected with the camp, and this next received the Commandant's attention. Everything about it appeared to be regular. A vast number of letters came and went, but they all passed unsealed, and seemed to contain nothing contraband. Many of them, however, were short epistles on long pieces of paper, a curious circumstance among correspondents with whom stationary was scarce and greenbacks were not over plenty. One sultry day in June the Commandant builded a fire, and gave these letters a warming, and lo! presto! the white spaces broke out into dark lines breathing thoughts blacker than the fluid that wrote them. Corporal Snooks whispered to his wife, away down in Texas, "The forthe of July is comin' Sukey, so be a man; fur I'm gwine to celebrate. I'm gwine up loike a rocket, et I does come down loike a stick." And Sergeant Blower said to John Copperhead of Chicago, 'Down in 'old Virginny' I used to think the fourth of July a humbug, but this prison has made me a patriot. Now, I'd like to burn an all fired sight of powder, and if you help, and God is willing, I shall do it." In a similar strain wrote half a score of them.

Such patriotism seemed altogether too wordy to be genuine. It told nothing, but it darkly hinted at dark events to come. The Commandant bethought him that the Democratic Convention would assemble on the fourth of July; that a vast multitude of people would congregate at Chicago on that occasion; and that, in so great a throng, it would be easy for the clans to gather, attack the camp, and liberate the prisoners. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and the young Commandant was vigilant. Soon Prison Square received a fresh installment of prisoners. They were genuine "Butternuts," out at the toes, out at the knees, out at the elbows out everywhere, in fact, and of everything but their senses. Those they had snugly about them. They fraternized with Corporal Snooks and Sergeant Blower, and others of their comrades, and soon learned that a grand pyrotechnic display was arranged to come off on Independence day. A huge bonfire was to be built outside, and the prisoners were to salute the old flag, but not with blank cartridges.

But who was to light the outside bonfire? That the improvised "Butternuts' failed to discover, and the Commandant set his own wits to working. He soon ascertained that a singular organization existed in Chicago. It was called the "Society of the Illini," and its object, as set forth by its printed constitution, was "the more perfect development of the literary, scientific, moral, physical, and social welfare of the conservative citizens of Chicago." The Commandant knew a conservative citizen whose development was not altogether perfect, and he recommended him to join the organization. The Society needed recruits and initiation-fees, and received the new member with open arms. Soon he was deep in the outer secrets of the order, but he could not penetrate its inner mysteries. Those were open to only an elect few who had already attained to a "perfect development"—of villainy. He learned enough, however, to verify the dark hints thrown out by the prisoners. The society numbered some thousands of members, all fully armed, thoroughly drilled, and impatiently waiting a signal to explode a mine deeper than that in front of Petersburg.

But the assembling of the Chicago Convention was postponed to the 28th of August, and the 4th of July passed away without the bonfire and the fireworks.

The Commandant, however, did not sleep. He still kept his wits a working; the bogus Butternuts still ate prisoners' rations; and the red flame still brought out black thoughts on the letter paper. Quietly the garrison was reinforced, quietly increased vigilance was enjoined upon the sentinels; and the tranquil, assured look of the Commandant told no one that he was playing with hot coals on a barrel of gunpowder.

So July rolled away into August, and the Commandant sent a letter giving his view of the state of things to his commanding general. This letter has fallen into my hands, and, as might sometimes makes right, I shall copy a portion of it. It is dated August 12th, and, in the formal phrase customary among military men, begins:

"I have the honor respectfully to report, in relation to the supposed organization at Toronto, Canada, which was to come here in squads, then combine, and attempt to rescue the prisoners of war at Camp Douglas, that there is an armed organization in this city of 5,000 men, and that the rescue of our prisoners would be the signal for a general insurrection in Indiana and Illinois. * * There is little, if any, doubt that an organization hostile to the Government, and secret in its workings and character, exists in the States of Indiana and Illinois, and that this organization is strong in numbers. It would be easy, perhaps, at any crisis in public affairs, to push this organization into acts of open disloyalty, if its leaders should so will.

Except in cases of considerable emergency, I shall make all communications to your headquarters on this subject by mail."

These extracts show that, seventeen days before the assembling of the Chicago Convention, the Commandant had become convinced that mail bags were safer vehicles of communication than telegraph wires; that 5,000 armed traitors were then domiciled in Chicago; that they expected to be joined by a body of rebels from Canada; that the object of the combination was the rescue of the prisoners at Camp Douglas; and that success in that enterprise would be the signal for a general uprising throughout Indiana and Illinois. Certainly this was no little knowledge to gain by two months' burrowing in the dark. But the conspirators were not fools. They had necks which they valued. They would not plunge into open acts of disloyalty until some "crisis in public affairs" should engage the attention of the authorities, and afford a fair chance of success. Would the assembling of the Convention be such a crisis? was now the question.

The Story of a Loyal East Tennesseean.

The Knoxville Whig has the following history of a loyal East Tennesseean who has endured much in his opposition to the rebellion:

'Every loyal man and woman in East Tennessee has heard of Capt. Shade T. Harris. Three years ago, at the age of twenty, he left the home of parents, surpassed by few in East Tennessee in wealth, and entered the Federal army as captain of a company which he recruited. In one month he returned with the first raid made into East Tennessee—that of Gen. Carter. On this raid, he left the small cavalry command of Carter for the purpose of recruiting, and was captured through the treachery of a rebel who pretented to be a Union man.

'From the place of capture Captain Harris was brought to Knoxville, lodged in jail and doubled-ironed, having shackles on his feet and hand cuffed. Before leaving home Captain Harris had been enrolled in the rebel army. That is, the rebel enrolling officer wrote his name on his book, personally being well acquainted with young Harris, and hating him because of his bold declarations of loyalty. The rebels themselves officially declared this enrollment illegal because of the mode in which it was done. Notwithstanding this, young Harris was court-martialed as a deserter from the rebel service, and sentenced to be shot on the 13th of February, 1863.

'The Judge Advocate of this court martial was a third-rate county court lawyer of Knoxville, who had many Union men cowhided, and whose name will be forever infamous in the history of the war in East Tennessee. We refer to William Claiborne Kain. Kain, in the prosecution of parties, was unscrupulous, so great was his thirst for the blood of all Union men.

'Captain Harris was kept in the Knoxville jail seven months. From this place he was taken to Columbus, S. C., and imprisoned nineteen months. In all, he was imprisoned twenty-six months. For twenty five months Capt. Harris was in irons, a great part of the time in a dungeon—at no time allowed to communicate with any one. Capt. Harris would have been executed, but the federal authorities held a Tennessee 'blood' as hostage for him. He was exchanged on the 1st of March, and for some time walked on the side of his feet from having worn shackles twenty-five months.

'During the whole time Captain Harris was in prison he was defiant, denouncing the confederacy and pleading the cause of the Union when taunted and insulted by rebel officers and citizens.

For a youth his heroism was sublime. With bloodhound ferocity he was prosecuted, and his hanging demanded by W. C. Kain, John E, Toole, W. D. Fain and other citizens of East Tennessee. If Captain Harris should shoot any of these men he would be excusable.

'While in prison in Knoxville he broke his fetters, weighing from fifteen to twenty pounds, got out of jail, and was pursued and recaptured by soldiers and citizens. Eleven guns were fired at him within fifteen steps. Prominent in the pursuit of young Harris was an old citizen of this place—William Beard. When Harris was captured, Beard cursed him and called on the guard to kill him. There was no personal difficulty with them—it was the spirit of rebellion.

'We mention these facts that our thousands of subscribers in the free states may learn the character of a large element with which loyal men of East Tennessee have to contend.'

A Successful Operation of Amputation at the Hip Joint.

From the Phil. North American. June 15th

To quarter a human being alive appears to be a desperate operation, and yet it is successfully performed. We yesterday saw an adult female upon whom amputation at the hip joint had been performed by Professor Pancoast, about seven weeks ago. The first operation of the kind successfully done in this country was done by Dr. Washington J. Duffey. At that time, when it was understood among the faculty that he intended performing the operation, he was assured that if the patient died under the knife he should be prosecuted for manslaughter. He performed the task, disjointing one of the limbs at the thigh. There is no sawing of the bone. It is a literal quartering of the patient while alive. Dr. Pancoast performed the same perilous operation upon a man with a frightful tumor upon his limb. It was done while the Japanese embassy was in the city, and the two native surgeons accompanying it witnessed the remarkable feat. The high caste oriental never manifests emotion. These surgeons, therefore, evinced no surprise, but that they experienced it is scarcely to be doubted. Professor Pancoast, as we have above mentioned, took off the limb of a woman, at the hip joint, just as a fowl is carved at the table, about seven weeks ago. The patient has entirely recovered, and very shortly will be in as vigorous bodily health as she ever was. The reaction is of course very great, and without the wisest care the patient would sink. Such is the pride of a surgeon in capital operations like these, that a patient stands as good a chance to recover as from the effects of a minor operation. The man whose limb was thus amputated while the Japanese were here did not lose a night's rest after the task was performed. Professor Pancoast attended him in person, directed the course of stimulants to be employed, and in four weeks' time saw his patient moving about the room. If we are not mistaken, this operation is in France regarded as so perilous that surgeons are prohibited from making it.

Beauties of Slavery

Danville Letter to the N. Y. World.

They are as a class unfitted with their late slaves, and in some cases feel afraid of them. It is a noteworthy circumstance that our troops have been called upon to protect the masters from the demands of the slaves. Not a single case of violence on the part of the freedmen is reported. On the other hand I hear from the agents of employment that many of the late masters are guilty of excessive meanness. Many of them are turning away from their homes the women and children, in the hope that the government will maintain them, while they retain the able-bodied men for labor. One case is reported to me where a planter complained to the employment agent that one of his house servants had decamped leaving a child behind. Upon being summoned she was asked:

'Why have you left home?'

'Because master said he didn't want me no longer.'

'Why don't you take your child with you?'

Because the child is as much his as mine; and this man is my father also as much as my child's.'

The degraded wretch, though holding a high position in Nottaway county, was ordered out of the presence of the officer.

A few such disgusting revelations give one but a poor opinion of the private morals of these people. I suppose that this is not an average case, but the evidence of this illicit concubinage are everywhere present. All the testimony is to the same effect. Of ten hundred thousand mulattoes in Virginia an enormous proportion are the children of their owners. Every consideration which surrounds female chastity in free communities is here absent. Pecuniary profit lent an additional zest to the promptings of lust.

Death of Mrs. Wm. H. Seward.

The public mind was in a measure, and the family of Mr. Seward fully prepared, for the bereavement it becomes a painful duty to announce. Mrs. Seward had been sinking from the moment that her intense anxiety for the safety of her husband and son were relieved. Up to the time that hope, in both cases, came, she was wonderfully sustained. It seemed that, infirm and feeble as she had been for years, while those she loved so devotedly were in danger, disease had no power over the wife and mother. But when the strain was off, her over-taxed powers, mental and physical, gave way.

Mrs. Seward has been a sufferer many years, bearing her illness, sometimes with cheerfulness—always with christian resignation—and ever diligent and watchful in the discharge of every duty, especially in the mental and moral training of her children, in which her great happiness consisted. As a wife and mother she was eminently a counselor and teacher. Her rule was supreme; but it was a supremacy in which wisdom and affection were so happily blended that all rejoiced to recognize her sceptre.

The attempted assassination of the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of State, it is hardly necessary to say, has, whatever their fate may be, caused this death. Those only who know, as we know, not only how devotedly she loved them, but how worthy they are of such affection, can judge of the intensity of her anxiety and suffering. The day but one after that fiendish attempt by which both lives were suspended by a thread, she said to the writer, "It seems as if I had two hearts, one throbbing for Henry and the other for Frederick."

Mrs. Seward was, in the highest sense the companion, counselor and friend to whom her husband turned and upon whom he relied on all occasions. Between them there was perfect trust. They shared each other's hopes and fears, joys and sorrows. Their household was one of uniform and undisturbed peace and purity.

Mrs. Seward leaves three sons and one daughter, all most tenderly attached to her. Her death is the first in that family. Of her own family, Mrs. Worden, an only sister, survives.—N. Y. Times.

French Debates on the Mexican Question.

NEW YORK, June 24.

The Herald has a translation of the debates in the French Legislature, June 8th, on the Mexican question.

Jules Favre, leader of the Republican party, said the expedition was undertaken to recover a recognized claim of about a million, with eventual claims which might vary from five to twelve million, and they had already increased the expenses four hundred millions. It had been promised that the French troops would protect the Mexicans, and parties in the full exercise of their opinions, but this had not been done. Favre cited a case where French troops had burned a town of 400 inhabitants. He declared that to attain the object they had in view, would take 40,000 men ten years at an expense of sixteen millions. If it were the intention of France to continue the Mexican expedition, no effort would be spared; but it was the part of France to withhold her blood and her treasure. The debate was very fierce and exciting, and the speaker was frequently interrupted. He declared that Maximillian's empire would fall to pieces as soon as the French troops were withdrawn, and denounced the scheme of a Mexican loan.

Subscriptions.

The Independent has this paragraph: "Who will furnish us with a copy of the subscription paper which is said to be circulating in this city in behalf of General Lee, and to have gathered some $60,000? We are curious to see if it has been passed among the invalids at David's Island, whose feet were rotted off at Andersonville, and Salisbury, and Belle Isle; and how many signatures were obtained from the former inmates of the Libby. We will gladly print the list without charge, for the information of the public.'

"My sister Charleston writes me," said a lady the other nay, "that we (secesh) have now no country. What do you say to that?" "Only this," replied the gentleman addressed, "that, if they have now no country, I hope they won't insist on ruling ours."—Tribune.

BELL & HOWELL

THE UNION.

Mankato, Minn, Friday July 7, 1865

FOR STATE TREASURER.

In the issue of last week we mentioned that it was the desire of the people of this portion of the Minnesota Valley to be represented in the distribution of State offices at the fall election. A careful inquiry among such of the party as we have been able to see, satisfies us that the Valley will be content with the office of State Treasurer, and that the people of Mankato are a unit in recommending the name of Major E. H. Smith of this town, for the position. Will our contemporaries, and the people of the Blue Earth section co-operate with our citizens in securing to Western Minnesota this nomination. Major Smith has every qualification necessary to a faithful discharge of the duties of the office of State Treasurer, and is peculiarly acceptable to the people of this vicinity. He is now the treasurer of one of the best insurance companies of the State, and has had much experience as a thorough and reliable business man. As it is urged and, by the way, eminently proper, that some of our officers must be chosen from those who have lent an active helping hand in preserving the Union, we are gratified to state that this prerequisite may be found in Maj. Smith.

Enlisting in the 2nd Illinois Artillery, as a private, in less than six months he was promoted to Senior First Lieutenant of Co. B. for meritorious conduct on the field, and was assigned to duty as assistant chief of ordnance of the District of Cairo. He soon assumed full command of the ordnance depot at that place. As our armies advanced southward the Major moved with them, and in June 1862 was placed in command of the Depot and armory established at Columbus, Kentucky, Department of Tennessee.

In September of the same year he was promoted to the rank of Major over twelve Captains in the same regiment, for gallant conduct at Island No. 10, and having held the positions of Provost Marshall Gen. of the District of West Tennessee, and commandant of the post at Columbus, Ky., on his own motion, March 16th 1863 he resigned his position, received an honorable discharge and came to the State of Minnesota where he has since resided. Such, in brief, is the flattering military record of Major Smith, the appreciation of which, we trust may be acknowledged at the approaching Union convention by declaring him the candidate for State Treasurer. It is needless perhaps to repeat that another and quite as potent ground is urged in behalf of his nomination and that is that this section is without its due representation in the State Government, which fact will doubtless be everywhere conceded. With these few words, we lay the matter before our readers and our State contemporaries, hoping it may meet with favorable consideration and ultimate sucess.

MILITARY SUPERCEDURE.

We briefly alluded last week to the fact that, Hon. W. P. Dole commissioner of Indian Affairs, is soon to visit the west and attempt negotiations with the hostile and friendly Indians of the frontier. The President instructs the commissioner to press upon the Indians the necessity of adopting the habits of civilization, and hints that the Government will assists them in gaining a livelihood by agricultural pursuits. Statesmanship is evoked to accomplish what cannot be done by the military arm of the Department of the North West. The military District of Minnesota having failed to give the citizens adequate protection and peace by the sword, the Government will see what will come of the effort of a single individual.

We never expected that occasion would require, in this connection, a reference to the second resolution of the famous Democratic Platform of 1864, but, with little variation, we find it eminently fitted for a truthful expose of the pusillanimity of General Sibley's rule.

Resolved, That the Mankato Union does explicitly declare as the sense of the Blue Earth Valley, that after 'three years of failure to restore security to the frontier settlers, by the experiment of war, during which, under a pretense of military necessity, so many of the forces of this District have been detained at Ft. Snelling, as to weaken the frontier defense, and to drink Frank Steele's beer as fast as four men can serve it, thereby imperiling our safety and impairing the material prosperity of the west, justice, humanity, and the public welfare demands that an immediate effort be made for a cessation of hostilities with a view to an early trial of Sibley and his coadjutors by drum head court martial, to the end that all "sich" may be speedily dumped into private life, and that peace may be restored on the basis of Dole's negotiations, "or any other man."

It is doubtless the sentiment of those acquainted with Indian and military affairs in this State that the war is a failure, and that any expedient other than the feeble attempt of this military District, will be hailed as ominous of an early settlement of Indian difficulties. It is high time that some disposition be made which will result in immediate security to the frontier, and lift the pall of barbarous massacre and indiscriminate murder from the elysian fields of the West. The cry of extermination ceases to find response in the minds of many simply because experience has taught, either that the U. S. forces can not or will not, effect such an end.

The barbarous mode of warfare adopted by the Indians, precludes the idea of perfect security through the military power, and so long as neither principal, nationality, or dignity of the Government are compromised by peaceful negotiations, let us save further bloodshed and the desolation of our homes, by appropriating one half the amount expended on maintaining the defenses, to the performance of such treaties as we are able to make. It is useless to deny that it is not the proximity of Indians we fear, but it is the hostile relation, the attitude of belligerents, coupled with the merciless mode of slaying whole families of non-combatants, which we dread. In times of peace with the various tribes, no one felt insecurity, though their very doors were swarmed with red skins, who, knowing their obligations to the Government, submitted to personal abuse without committing an overt act of resistance. This fact is attested by our oldest settlers, who have for years traversed the Indian reservations and come in daily contact with them. Revolution, or breach of treaty, are recognized as acts admissable in every Government, and these tribes for some cause, no matter what, have repudiated their obligations, which for many years have been the breast work of our defense. Shall we, after three years of failure, still continue to rely upon our military defenses for protection, and struggle on mid insecurity of life and property, in the development of the garden of Minnesota, or shall we try what virtue there is in negotiations. The safety of our citizens is a consideration paramount to every other, the next, being the safe access of new comers to those lands for the landless, which Congress has bestowed upon all who accept the provisions of the homestead act.

Western Minnesota demands that no expedient be left untried to rid us of these threatening clouds of human butchery which have hovered over us for three long years and still menace the safety of the populace.

COMING HOME.

We have the pleasure of announcing that orders have been issued for the dischargeof the 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th regiments in addition to those already mustered out and returning. It is also intimated, though not official, that the 2nd will also soon be home. The Eleventh is doubtless now at Fort Snelling, and Co. F. which was raised in Blue Earth and Faribault counties will probably come to Mankato in a body. Upon 24 hours notice the people of this town can give this company a public welcome which is not only due to them but also to the credit of the town. Shall we see the slightest demonstration of public spirit in this matter? But little time or effort would be required to give the "boys in blue" a kindly recognition of their services, and while St. Paul entertains ten companies there is no reason why Mankato should not receive one.

FRIGHTFUL TORNADO.

The town of Viroqua, in Wisconsin, about thirty five miles from La Crosse, was visited by a furious wind on the 29th of June which, for destruction of property and life is shocking to relate. Seventeen persons were killed outright, and one hundred wounded, some of whom are beyond hope of recovery. In two minutes' time the fury of contending elements was spent upon these luckless inhabitants crushing to atoms the most beautiful portions of the town, and reducing many of its citizens to want.

Winnebago Lands.

The General Land Office, acting under the orders of the Secretary of the Interior, has advised the local officers at St. Peter, Minn., that the lands within the Winnebago Indian Reservation cannot be sold at a price less than their appraised value, until other-wise ordered by the Secretary. There are some 18,000 acres of valuable land within the reserve still undisposed of, appraised at from one dollar and twenty-five cents to three dollars per acre.

Reception of Returning Regiments.

The people of St. Paul are moving with considerable spirit in the landable undertaking of giving all of our returning regiments a public reception. All receptions are to take place at the Capitol where preparations are rapidly making to that end. The carpets and desks are being removed from the Senate Chamber and Representatives' Hall, where the tables are to be placed, and loaded with the fruit of the land. A temporary kitchen is erected in the rear of the building, and provision will be made to continue this institution of entertainment until all the regiments which are announced for a discharge shall have arrived. The Eleventh will probably be the first to receive the hospitalities of that city as they are already on the move northward.

—At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee held at St. Paul on the 30th ult, it was decided that the State Convention will not be called until early in September. It was ascertained that by that time many of our regiments will be home, the members of which would like to participate in the choice of candidates. This decision of the committee will meet with general favor.

CHICAGO REPUBLICAN.—We print this week the prospectus of the Chicago Republican, to which our readers are referred. This sheet is the largest paper of the West, and although but lately established is fast gaining the confidence and patronage of the north western States. A more desirable paper we could not commend to the reading public. It is published daily, weekly, and tri weekly.

—The Daily Winona Republican comes to us in an enlarged form, and really presents a beautiful typographical appearance. The increase in reading matter will keep pace with the enlargement, and we trust that additional patronage will abundantly repay its enterprising proprietors for the increased expense of publication.

MOVEMENT OF INDIANS FROM DEVIL'S LAKE—GEN. SULLY

Dispatches were received at District Headquarters yesterday from Fort Abercrombie and also from General Sully.

On the 12th ult. Lieut. Col. Adams, in command at Fort Abercrombie, sent a number of scouts to the head of the Sheyennee river. They were absent fourteen days, having been delayed by a violent storm of rain and snow. Snow fell to the depth of one and a half inches at Devil's Lake on the 19th of June. They found no Indians at the Lake, but learned from some half breeds that the mounted Indians had gone north and west, driving the buffalo before them, and those who were without ponies had removed to Turtle Mountain and the end of the woods on Mouse river. Great destitution exists among them.

Gen Sully's dispatches were dated June 27th, near Fort Pierre. He learned that a large party of Indians, numbering three thousand warriors, had been waiting to see him at Fort Sully. His arrival having been delayed they had gone on a buffalo hunt in the direction of Fort Wad-worth, but requested the post commander to inform them when the General arrived; as they were anxious to know what word the President had sent to them. They comprise, for the most part, the Indians who surrendered last year.

Gen Sully writes that the remainder of the western Sioux wished to surrender, and would undoubtedly have done so had not the Sheyenne and Platte Indians been driven among them. These Indians related their exploits and claimed that they had defeated all of the white soldiers below, and induced the wandering Sioux to believe that their united strength would be sufficient to crush Gen. Sully. A large body of Indians consisting of Sheyennes and Sioux had approached Fort Rice to attack it, but the commander marched out to meet them with four companies of soldiers and seventy mounted Yanktonnais, belonging to Two Bears' band, and succeeded in driving them off without losing a man.—St Paul Press July 4th.

STATE NEWS.

A few weeks since a project was inaugurated to place the Saint Croix Valley in communication with the East and "the rest of mankind," and we have the pleasure of announcing this morning that such connection was made last evening, through the energetic exertions of Mr. Robertson, the efficient Superintendent of the North Western Telegraph Company. The wire is now strung to this city and the Stillwater office open for business. Within a few days the line will be completed to Hudson and Prescott. Our city is now in direct communication with Milwaukee and all intermediate points, via Saint Paul.—Stillwater Messenger.

From Washington.

Special Dispatch to the Chicago Republican.

WASHINGTON, June 27.

The President continues indisposed, and only a brief cabinet meeting was held to day in consequence. Applications for pardon have fallen off considerably, very few were received to-day, none for any important rebels. Sixteen pardons were granted to day, chiefly to Virginians.

The Army of the Potomac will soon cease to exist. Forty regiments were ordered to be mustered out.

THE State Educational Convention, which has been in session in this city during the past two days, adjourned at noon to day. This is the first convention of the king that has ever been held in Minnesota, and the comparison of views and opinions among many of the leading educational men of the State which it has called forth will doubtless be productive of market benefit to the cause of common schools. There was one thing made obvious by the remarks of the County Superintendents, and that is the sad deficiency in education and training of a great majority of the teachers in this State. This deficiency, it was agreed upon by all present, can be remedied only through the instrumentality of an efficient Normal School, where teachers can acquire a thorough practica as well as theoretical knowledge of their profession; and such an institution, it was also cheerfully conceded, is now in successful operation in Winona. —Winona Republican June 30.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

For the Mankato Union

Last week we had the pleasure of attending the examination of the State Normal School and became somewhat acquainted with the manner in which that school is conducted, and from what observations we were able to make, we conclude that the Normal School cannot be too highly estimated. It is conducted by able and experienced teachers. Seldom if ever have we seen teachers use so much energy in discharging their duties, and the advancement their pupils seem to have made, shows that they have not labored in vain. The model school is indeed a model school. It is divided into two appartments. The primary department contains pupils from five to nine years of age,. It is here that the first lessons are given the pupils.

The word system is adopted and no attention is given to teaching the names of the letters. Under this plan reading is taught before the alphabet. This school is used for the benefit of the Normal department. It is here that pupils in the Normal department receive practical lessons in the art of teaching. This is in addition to the branches taught in the Normal department. No teacher can attend this School without advancing in the branches taught in common schools and in the art of teaching. We are much more pleased with the school than we expected to be, and feel that it ought to be better supported. The different localities in the state were represented in the educational convention which met at the close of the examination.

Many subjects pertaining to education were examined and discussed, among which was the examination of teachers and the visitation of schools. From statements made, we had some chance to compare the schools of this county with others in the state and have reasons to believe that the schools in Blue Earth County will favorably compare with those in other counties. Those counties situated nearest the Normal School more readily feel its influences and therefore they have better opportunities to get good teachers. The convention decided to memorialize the Legislature for an appropriation to support teachers institutes which were considered of the greatest service in educating teachers. We were sorry that no action or discussion was had upon the subject of graded schools, but the time allotted to the convention was too short to consider all the important matters relating to schools.

The proceedings were characterized by the best of feelings and an earnest desire to promote the welfare of the common schools. The people of Winona were unbounded in their hospitality and are wide awake on the subject of education.

D. W.

EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION.

At the convention held last week at Winona the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That no system of popular education can accomplish its benign purposes which does not provide a supply of teachers thoroughly qualified for their duties; that we recognize Normal Schools and Teachers' Institutes as indispensable requisites to that end, and that these agencies should therefore receive the united and hearty support alike of the Legislature and the people of this State.

Resolved, That it is the judgement of this Convention, that these Institutes should be at once recognized as a necessary part of our educational machinery, and we therefore respectfully ask the Legislature to make such annual appropriations in their behalf as may be needful to defray their actual expenses.

Resolved, That school houses well located, well constructed and conveniently arranged, are among the necessary requisites to good schools; that we look with solicitude and pain upon the condition of these buildings, many of which are utterly unfit for the noble purpose of education; that we commend the subject to the serious attention of the people, and that we urge upon the Superintendent of Public Instruction the necessity of providing for publication and distribution among the people through his annual Report, of such plans of school houses as may be adopted to the pressing wants of the schools.

Resolved, That in the examination of teachers it is desirable that a series of professional questions be adopted and presented by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to the several County Superintendents and examiners, both to serve as a guide in ascertaining who are competent, and to direct the earnest attention of teachers to the study of those subjects on which the proper management of a school so greatly depends.

Resolved, That in the visitation of schools, it is our important duty to be faithful, thorough and practical; that each school demands our attention at least one half day each term: that we look carefully to, and assist properly in the organization of the school, in the formation of its classes, and in the classification of its scholars; that we believe it to be a part of our important work to prescribe a course of study for the respective schools under our care, and that as far as lies in our power we will earnestly strive to induce parents to conform strictly to such a course; that while we should add every word of encouragement to the teachers and pupils and reprove with the utmost caution and kindness, at the same time, we cannot be too vigilant in correcting erroneous methods of instruction and discipline, and establishing in their place a thorough and sufficient system; and that in our visits we should look well to the moral instruction imparted in our respective schools.

Resolved, That there is no interest of a civilized society which is paramount to that of educating the whole people and of generating that intelligence and virtue which alone can create, conserve, and perpetuate the blessings of national liberty; that while we fully concede the importance of so organizing our State government that each and all of its ordinary concerns, as represented by its executive, judicial, military and financial departments should be properly provided for, yet we claim that a least equal prominence should be given to the Interest of education, by the prompt organization and equipment of an independent department of public instruction.

Resolved, That one of the most serious obstacles to the success of our common schools is the almost entire want of maps, charts, globes, class records, and other indispensable aids to instruction, and that we earnestly recommend to the school districts of the State, the early adoption of such measures as will supply these deficiencies.

Resolved, That an energetic and competent local supervision of common schools is, if possible, of more vital consequence than any other agency to the success of a well working system; and we earnestly recommend that the law establishing the office of County Superintendents of schools in such counties as elect to do so, may be made general and binding in its provovisions upon every county in the State.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention the annual gathering of teachers and friends of education for mutual consultation, is a powerful means of good; and we will endeavor to use our influence in securing a full attendance at the coming meeting of our State Teachers' Association at Winona, August 30th, 1865.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Convention be tendered to the citizens of Winona for their abounding hospitality extended to the delegates here assembled, to the several R. R., Packet, and Stage companies, who have so generously reduced the fare on their several lines—to the religious society whose commodious house has been freely offered for our use, and to those friends who have added so much to the harmony of our proceedings by favoring us with such delightful and soul-stirring music.

Resolved, That we extend our thanks to the Hon. David Blakely, our worthy State Superintendent, for the able and courteous manner in which he has presided over the exercises of the Convention.

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to furnish a copy of the resolutions adopted by this Convention to the Winona Daily Republican, and that the publishers of the several newspapers throughout the State be requested to publish the same in their columns.

Resolved, Finally, that, fired with new zeal and devotion for the great work of Education, we will go back to our respective fields of labor and exemplify in truth the good old proverb, that actions speak louder than words.

The resolutions were acted upon separately and adopted unanimously.

Miscellaneous Items.

APPLICATIONS for pardon have been sent in by Gen. Ewell, ex Gov. Vance, and ex Congressman John A Gilmer.

A Washington dispatch says that, at the rate at which these applications are now being received, the whole "Confederacy" will have applied for pardon by the 1st of August next.

Breckinridge, who is still at Havana, counsels his fellow rebels to throw themselves upon the clemency of President Johnson and it is thought probable that he will himself adopt such a course.

A Mexican paper, in the Imperial interest, states that the French have occupied Chihuahua, the capital of the Liberal government, and that Juarez has fled to Paso del Norte. A sentinel on the American side of the Rio Grande is alleged to have fired, recently upon two French officers on the Mexican side—which occurrence has elicited much insolent expression from French officers and newspapers.

All rebel officers who are prisoners are to be discharged upon taking the oath of allegiance, except those who were graduates of the United States military or naval academy.

The vacancy in the United States Supreme Bench, caused by the death of Judge Catron, will, it is supposed, be filled by the appointment of either Horace Maynard or Judge Darrell, of Louisiana.

The War Department is preparing a list of brevet promotions, designed to include all officers who have performed meritorious services.

The Herald's Richmond correspondent says the steamer Silas O. Pierce passed through the Dutch Gap canal on Monday. The Pierce is 43 feet wide, and this is the great and much maligned work demonstrating its usefulness in saving over seven miles of water course on the James river.

A comprehensive order relating to the consolidation of the different armies, and to the commanders of new military divisions, is about to be issued as soon as the present mustering out is completed.

The expenditures of the government during the past year amount to the enormous sum of $1,120,000,000, or over $3,000,000 per day.

A memorial from the citizens of Richmond to the President, was presented yesterday, praying that the $20,000 clause in his proclamation may be withdrawn, as it was creating great embarrassment.

Mosby, having been paroled on the same terms as were granted to Lee's army, has opened a law office in Culpepper.

Accounts from Texas state that the transition from a condition of war to peace, is proceeding very quietly and in an orderly manner.

The rebel Gov. Clark, of Miss., has been committed to Fort Pulaski, Savannah. The rebel Secretary of the Treasury, Trenholm, had been released from that stronghold by orders from Washington.

The failure of Charles Barnes, wheat speculator, of Chicago, is announced. Liabilities over $25,000.

The President's health does not improve and it is doubtful whether he will be able to attend to any business this week.

The military commission trying the conspirators met yesterday and agree upon a verdict, but up to last night it had not been announced.

Gen. Meade has ceased to command the Army of the Potomac, and, under date of the 28th, has issued a farewell order to his troops He feelingly alludes to the history of the past two years, including the battle of Gettysburg, where he first commanded that army, and expresses a belief that history will do justice to the brave men who fought so resolutely and successfully under him from that time to the surrender of Lee.

President Johnson has appointed Gen. A. J. Hamilton, Governor of Texas, and Judge James Johnson, Governor of Georgia. Their duties are defined precisely the same as those of the new Governors of North Carolina and Mississippi. Both of these appointees have been undeviating union men from the start. Gen. Hamilton was formerly U. S. Senator from Texas, had has done good service to the union cause the past two years in the North. Judge Johnson is an old and distinguished lawyer in Columbus, Ga.

It will cure Asthma and relieve Consumption
It will cure Whooping Cough.
It will cure your Cough
It will prevent Consumption.

It cures all if the directions are strictly followed, or the money will be refunded.

That Cough which you are neglecting may result in fatal Consumption, if some prompt remedy is not used.

Why sacrifice your life when your disease can be cured so quickly and at so small a cost?

What is the value of Money when compared to Health?

MORSE'S EXPECTORANT

Is warranted to break up the most troublesome cough in an incredibly short time. There is no remedy that shows more evidence of its merit than this for curing Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Difficulty in Breathing, Asthma, Bronchitis, Laryngitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of patients in the advanced stage of the disease.

Morse's Expectorant is a vegetable anodyne, prepared expressly to meet the constant demand for a safe and efficient remedy for diseases of the

THROAT AND LUNGS,

Diseases of those organs are so prevalent and dangerous that a reliable Medicine is a necessary safeguard in every community. In such a remedy for family use, the absolute absence of danger from occidental overdoses, freedom from poisons, and the adaptation to patients of every age and condition, of either sex, is indispensible. These qualities are most combined in this preperation, and so admirably is it adapted to the cure of all diseases for which it is recommended, that its entire influence is brought to bear against them, and so perfectly assist nature in its efforts to rid the system of disease, that the most delicate constitution can use it with perfect safety and a fixed certainty that a RELEIF AND A CURE WILL SPEEDILY FOLLOW

As Time—the great developor of Events—advances, these truths becomes wider and better known, and this Medicine has already become a simple necessity, with a growing demand, unprecedented in the history of Medicine—the natural results of its INTRINSIC MERITS.

A single trial is all that is necessary to establish the fact that it is the most efficacious remedy ever offered to suffering humanity.

This medicine is put up in 50, 75 and $1,00 bottles and warranted to contain more and better material than any similar medicine introduced to the public in a medicine.

—With this issue closes the second volume of the Mankato UNION.

—A new work on modern spiritualism, by Wm. Bailey Potter, M. D. can be seen at this office.

—Mrs. Ballou, inspirational lecturer who spent a few days here in April last, has returned, and is at the Clifton. She lectured at City Hall last evening.

FOR SALE.—Old files of the UNION, and other papers, suitable for wrappers, for sale at this office.

FRUIT.—E. Taylor & Co., have lately added to their stock a choice lot of dried apples, currants, peaches, and canned fruit of all kinds. We'll go up and take a look at 'em. Won't you, reader?

WHISKERS.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m,

Will "N" whose communication was left at our office this week give us his full name. This we require as a guarantee of good faith, and especially so in communications of such a nature.

SHEEP.—Three brothers at Garden City named Potter have purchased in Michigan 2.0000 sheep which are now en route for Blue Earth. Judge Finch also left last week for the sheep country to purchase 600 for his stock farm near Mankato.

MORE BUILDING.—James Shoemaker, Esq., commences immediately a building on Front street, which is intended as a business house below, and public hall in the second story. The dimensions are 24 feet by sixty, two stories high. It will be built of heavy frame work, and will afford a public hall somewhat larger than the one now used for public purposes.

WANTED.—We desire to obtain the following back numbers of the UNION: One copy of No. 4, one of No. 13, one of No. 19, five of No. 20, and six of No. 38, of volume one. One copy of No. 7, five of No. 43, five of No. 45, three of No. 46, and two of 47, of volume two. The retail price will be paid for any of these odd numbers upon delivery at this office. Will our subscribers do us the kindness to look over their files and bring them in.

MANKATO HOUSE.—Last week friend Burt, of this house, had a general time of cleaning, papering, repairing and furnishing the rooms of the Mankato, and is now settled down again with everything in superb order. We thought that the "Colonel's" rooms were, even before this cleansing process, as nice as any to be found west of the Mississippi, and doubtless now they will satisfy the most fastidious "pattern of neatness."

CLIFTON HOUSE.—Capt Mark D. Flower having purchased an undivided half interest in the Clifton Hotel the business will be conducted under the name of M. T. C. Flower & Son. The sale includes 88 feet on Front Street, running through to Second Street, with all the buildings thereon. For the undivided half of this property the Captain pays $4,000, and enters immediately upon the duties of hotel keeping. Their advertisement to be found elsewhere, solicits a continuance of patronage, which, as heretofore, they will doubtless continue to merit.

REMOVING.—The furniture of Col Jas. H. Baker, formerly Secretary of State, was sold last Saturday, preparatory to the removal of his family to the State of Missouri. We are informed that he has purchased an extensive farm near Booneville on the Missouri river, to which he will remove as soon as his services in the army are no longer wanted. Guess that farm won't be much benefited by his services, unless the Col. has been converted from political aspirations since he donned the shoulder straps and led his regiment to the front. Perhaps somebody will breathe easier upon learning that a formidable and popular rival has chosen another field of labor.

FOURTH AT BLUE EARTH CITY.—The celebration at this town may be classed among the finest affairs west of the Mississippi. It is estimated that nearly two thousand people were present to enjoy the festivities of the day. An address delivered by Hon. J. B. Wakefield is reported to have been an excellent effort while a competent choir discoursed in the best of style a number of patriotic airs. Salutes were fired by a company composed of a portion of Co. H. 2nd Cavalry, and returned veterans. A display of equestrianship by ladies and gentlemen formed into a company, was quite a feature in the exercises. Three tables, 480 feet long in the aggregate, were spread and laden with all the luxuries incident to such an occasion. Well done for Blue Earth.

STORM.—A heavy wind and rain storm visited this vicinity on Sunday night last. Though the wind was not so capricious and changeable as that of two weeks previous, it was almost frightfully strong and heavy, causing our largest buildings to quiver like an aspen. It is almost wonderful to state that it passed off without serious damage to persons or property. We learn that on the same night at Shakopee the landlord of the American aroused all his guests and bade them prepare for a tornado, which could be distinctly heard at no great distance from town but fortunately its route did not quite touch the village.

POSTMASTR.—Mr. H. L. Gude is not yet Postmaster of Mankato, though he probably will be if his bonds are accepted. Concerning the remonstrance spoken of by the Record, protesting against his appointment, doubtless it is as well posted as we are, it being a Democratic move; which party in this county, having nothing to lose and every thing to hope for, will, of course, lose no opportunity to distract the harmony of the ruling element. The position of postmaster is somewhat desirable and withal quite important, and it may be that the friends of another aspirant were disappointed, which little circumstance suggested to our Democratic friends the timely opportunity of kindling a nice little flame of bitterness; which, however, didn't seem to burn well, as, at the time of Mr. Gude's appointment, other applicants had withdrawn and the appointment conceded to Mr. Gude. We are but little acquainted with him or his qualifications, but it is hardly fair for any one to denounce his neighbor, except after a fair trial. He may prove to be the best of postmasters, and we wish he may. It is understood that his appointment is intended as an official recognition of the German element of this vicinity, but it would not have been made in the face of patent disqualifications knownto the appointing power.

THE FOURTH.—The morning dawned with a clear sky and a bracing atmosphere, promising to pleasure seekers a propitious day for the execution of the little plans and anticipations, which are intended to overflow the cup of patiotic joy. Although there was no general programme for a celebration in town, the day was thoroughly observed by our citizens, who visited the various pic nic parties who were celebrating at the outskirts of the village. The German Turners and Lutherans, selected the grove on the side hill near the brewery, where an endless amount of edibles were provided, together with ice beer and lemonade. The Mankato band was also in attendance, and by no means the least feature of the occasion was the troupe of vocalists consisting of about fifteen gentlemen, whose execution of German patriotic songs did not fail to bring down the crowd.

At the Beer Garden the Catholic Germans assembled in untold numbers, and having the advantage of better accommodations were spending the day in merry glee. Eating, drinking, swinging, dancing and riding were the principal features of amusement.

A pic-nic was given to the Presbyterian sabbath school in upper town which we are told passed harmoniously.

In the evening the dance at City Hall seemed to be the chief attraction.

We have no serious accidents or abuses to record' and should judge that the people and the 4th of July had a good time.

—We learn from Mr. Seward of this place, that the wife of Rev. J. E. Conrad who was lately bitten by a rattlesnake, near Lake Lura, is slowly recovering.

INSURE IN THE PHŒNIX LIFE, AN OLD AND TRIED COMPANY.

An Agent in Mankato.

We have the pleasure of introducing to the citizens of Mankato and vicinity, Mr. Henry Elliott who holds the agency of the Phœnix Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, and who will remain here a few days for the purpose of introducing this company, and taking applications for insurance.

This company presents better inducements to insurers than most any other eastern company, as the following exhibit will show. In this table the age is fixed at 30 years, for the ten annual, and endowment plan, and in the latter the money is paid when the insured arrivesat the age of 45.

	Ten Annual	Endowm't
Conn Mutual,	$52,65	$18,26
New England Mutual,	50,44	67,10
Charter Oak,	49,07	——
Ætna,	49 07	64.57
Phœnix,	46,51	60,72

It will be noticed that the figures of the Phœnix are considerably lower than any other company while a fifty per cent dividend, which is the highest declared by any company, is annually declared by the Phœnix.

When the annual premium exceeds thirty dollars, one half may be paid by a note, which after four years is cancelled by dividends at the rate they are now paying.

After being insured four years dividends are declared and paid annually to the end of life.

A man dying, after four years of insurance, draws the four back dividends immediately, to apply upon his notes, and the policy is settled without waiting for the notes to mature, and dividends to be declared.

To assure our readers that the Phœnix is in every sense worthy their consideration, we clip a few paragraphs from the Insurance Monitor, a paper published in New York, and devoted exclusively to reporting the standing of the various companies. It says:

The Phœnix Life Insurance Company is among the best, not only because of its moderation of rates, its excellent features and principles of organization and its liberality of dealings, but also for its promptness in meeting all its losses.—With its half million assets, and its prudent officers it is as sound and sure as any corporation in the land. Its equity towards insurers is an especially noticeable feature in its business policy.

Read for example the subjoined extract from its prospectus.

"As all our policies share equitably in the dividends made upon payments while the policy is in force, and as the company pays a surrender value—when such value exists—or issues a paid up policy entitled to share in future dividends, no policy-holder need lose the value of his policy if he will apply for it in proper season.

"This inducement is not confined to new policies alone Every policy now in force may on application at the office be rendered non-forfeitable, so far as future premiums are concerned, to the extent of the amount which its present value would purchase, as a paid up policy, and the ordinary annual premiums on any policy may be so changed that all payments to the company shall cease after a definite number of of annual installments, or upon the attainment of a given age."

Having a personal acquaintance with Mr. Elliott we can heartily recommend him and his company to our readers, knowing that every representation made by him will be borne out by the facts, and that all business in his line will be faithfully transacted. Mr. Elliotts "headquarters" are at the Clifton House and he will spend a few days here in canvassing this town and vicinity. We trust he will meet with the favorable consideration which both he and his company merits.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—We learn that Mrs. M. H. Bergholtz, wife of a harness dealer in this city, on the 4th inst., attempted to take her own life by tying herself to a grape vine by means of a towel. She was found suspended to a grape-vine in the rear of her house by some children, who reported the fact to Mr. Williams, grocer in the next building, who was just in time to cut her down before life was extinct. The only cause to which this rash act is attributable is a family difficulty in which her husband is charged with being the aggressor.

ARRANDALE & CO., Manf'g Agts.
No 167 Broadway, New York.

Announce that all of the above list of goods will be sold for One Dollar each.

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England, through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice Under these circumstances, Arrandale & Co, acting as agents for the principal European manufacturers, have resolved upon a great Gift Apportionment to be divided according to the following regulations:

Certificates of the various articles are put into envelopes indiscriminately, sealed up, and when ordered, are taken out without regard to choice, and sent by mail, thus showing no favoritism On receipt of the certificate, you will see what you are to have, and then it is at your option to send the dollar and take the article or not Purchasers may thus obtain a gold watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry on our list for One Dollar.

SEND 25 CENTS FOR CERTIFICATE.

In all transactions by mail, we shall charge for forwarding the certificates, paying postage and doing the business, 25 cents each, which must be enclosed when the certificate is sent for. Five certificates will be sent for $1, eleven for $2, thirty for $5, sixty-five for $10; one hundred for $15

WHAT THE "PRESS" SAY OF US.

The Lafayette (Ind) Daily Courier, March 18 1865, says: A better selected, more varied or fashionable assortment of jewelry cannot be found on the continent than Arrandale & Co., are now offering Messrs Arrandale & Co., occupy a high position in commercial circles as men entirely above the common trickery of trade. Their statements may be implicitly relied upon, both as to the character of their goods and the manner of disposal. Ladies especially, in all parts of the country, are realizing handsome profits as agents, and if any of our fair readers desire to interest themselves in this enterprise they may do so with perfect confidence

We have inspected, at the office of Arrandale & Co's Agency for European Manufacturing Jewellers, a large assortment of valuable and fashionable jewelry of the newest patterns. We also noticed a large quantity of silver plate and understand that the whole of these newly imported articles are to be disposed of on a novel principle giving great advantage to buyers, and affording extensive employment to agents We know the firm in question to be very respectable and thoroughly worthy of public confidence, and recommend our friends to read their advertisement.—N. Y. Albion, September 3, 1864.

The British Whig, of Kingston, C W. says Nov 26th, 1864; One of our lady subscribers became an agent for Arrandale & Co. and by request brought some twenty articles sent as prizes for her agency, to this office for inspection and without hesitation we can state that each and all of the articles were worth treble the amount of cost to the recipients, and some of them six times.

AGENTS—We want agents in every regiment, and in every town and county in the country, and those acting as such will be allowed ten cents on every certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to one dollar, also other inducements which can be learned on application. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit fifteen cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

U. S. 7-30 LOAN.

THIRD SERIES.

$230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the undersigned, the general Subscription Agent for the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent interest per annum, known as the

7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15th, 1865, and are payable three years from that time, in currency, or are convertible, at the option of the holder the

U. S. 5-20 Six per cent.

Gold Bearing Bonds!

These bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from State, County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent per annum, to their value, according to the rate levied on other property. Interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents " " " $100 "
Ten " " " " $500 "
20 " " " " $1000 "
$1 " " " " $5000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this third series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven-Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7 3-10ths in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency up to July 15th, at the time when they subscribe

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the Seven thirties will commence on the 1st of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three tenths per cent in currency. This is

THE ONLY LOAN IN MARKET.

now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the great

POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Less than $230,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other loans

In order that citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and private bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure [without medicine] of Spermatorrhœa or seminal weakness Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity; Impediments to Marriage, etc, also, Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.

The celebrated author in this admirable essay clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife—pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.
